Dear Sir:

Having just finished reading your August edition of the California Herald I felt compelled to let you know how much I enjoyed the pages of "Interesting Structures" and the brief history of each. Please have more such issues. I also enjoy the articles you print from time to time about well-known early "Californianos". It would be interesting to read of such characters as Tibercio Vasquez and Joaquin Murieta. Thank you again for your enjoy le magazine.

PIONEER LUMBERING ON THE MENDOCINO COAST

BY DR. LEO J. FRIIS

BACK IN 1840 Captain Stephen Smith was standing on the deck of his bark George Henry as it skirted the rocky cliffs of northern California. He was amazed to see vast stands of timber growing almost to the water's edge. He asked himself, "Why don't the local settlers get their lumber here instead of importing it from the Sandwich Islands?" Three years later he returned to California and built a water-powered sawmill on Salmon Creek east of Bodega Bay.

Smith was not the first person to utilize the coast redwoods north of San Francisco. In 1811 the Russians had established themselves at Fort Ross where they built a mill with which they sawed the lumber to construct their stockade, cabins and church.

However, it was not until 1852 that much interest was taken in the timber lands of the upper coast. In that year a ship from the Orient, laden with silk and tea, piled up on the rocks off Mendocino County. Its survivors made their way south and reported their experience. Groups of men sailed to the site of the wreck in an attempt to salvage the cargo. They returned with enthusiastic accounts of the great groves of enormous sequoias.

Henry Meiggs, operator of the well known Meiggs' Wharf of San Francisco, was intrigued with the stories of the salvagers. Visualizing a fortune in the lumber business he acquired a saw mill and recruited a gang of workmen. Sailing northward on the ship Ontario he entered a small cove which indented the rocky coast. Here he found a good sized stream suitable for power and for transporting logs from the interior. All around were giant redwoods.

Scenically it was a beautiful spot. Commercially it promised great wealth. At this place Meiggs built his mill and created the settlement of Big River, now called Mendocino City. Meiggs spent money with a lavish hand and later was compelled to sell his holdings.

Meiggs' venture inspired Captain William A. Richardson to build a similar mill on land owned by him in Mendocino County. Richardson was one of California's most interesting pioneers. As the mate of the whaler Orion he had "left" his ship at San Francisco (then Yerba Buena) in 1822 and obtained permission to remain. Three years later he married Maria Antonia, daughter of Comandante Ignacio Martinez. Although he was active in business he seemed to be continually engaged in litigation, but as Bancroft once said, "Who wasn't?"

Richardson built his saw mill at a location about seven miles south of Meiggs' establishment and called the place Albion, the ancient name of England, his homeland. Later he installed another mill at Noyo near the place where the silk ship had been wrecked. Local Indians objected to the disturbance of their fishing grounds and after numerous raids they burned down the Noyo mill. To prevent a recurrence of this episode the United States Army established a post nearby which they named Fort Bragg.

Silas Coombs, an experienced logger, went to work for Richardson. Later he and some associates started a mill at Little River, half way between Albion and Mendocino City. By 1860 about three hundred mills were operating along the coast.

In the meantime schooners, plying between Humboldt Bay and San Francisco, picked up cargo at the mills. It is recorded that the Little River mill was served by about three dozen of these ships during the first year of its operation.

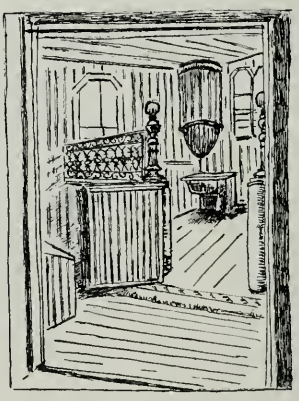

There were virtually no suitable places for anchorage along the Mendocino coast. Schooners would cau-

CALIFORNIA'S PAST is full of variety and color — rich in human interest. Legends and tales abound packed with the activities of men and women of courage — some noble, some ignoble. Elias Jackson Baldwin or "E. J." as he was familiarly called filled no particularly hallowed niche in this state's history. But he most definitely fits within the exciting jigsaw pattern of Californiana regarded as the 'westward movement' when men of non-Spanish origins treked the plains seeking new lands and fortunes. "Lucky" Baldwin has indeed, at Rancho Santa Anita in Arcadia, left an indelible imprint upon the soil that harbored him and touched his heart. His was a lusty era of fantastic living, packed with romance, intrigues, derring-do, chicanery and traditions.

They say the spice of life to a man is sports, and "E. J.'s" love of fiery horseflesh alone vied with his love of land. This interest began in his boyhood on his father's farm, later involving him in the successful transportation of horses from Indiana to Nevada in the summer of 1853. His actual introduction to thoroughbreds began with his son-in-law Bud Doble the famed hackney driver. Only imported English coach horses pulled the exquisite four-in-hand drag built by Hooper and Company, the still-surviving manufacturer of Britian's royal conveyances, to its varied destinations. Baldwin himself was an excellent four-in-hand driver, a recreation he greatly enjoyed along with walking the California hills, his gun resting in the crook of his elbow.

As with the housing of expensive automobiles today, men of means in the late 1800's exhibited this same concern over their elaborately appointed equipage. Carriagehouses replaced, in terminology and architecture, the older type coach barn. The more handsome the equipment the more detailed the structure. One of the first buildings erected on the Rancho by Baldwin was such a carriagehouse some three years after his purchase of the old Hugo Reid grounds in 1876. A. A. Bennett, assigned to designing the general architecture for the Baldwin estate was apparently affected by the new public taste that followed the conclusion of the Civil War, and stimulated by the decor of a renowned Englishman. Thus, the Queen Anne Style, emanating through the Eastlake School was suitable to the new wealth of America now entering the Gilded Age. And, with the carpenter of that period also the master craftsman, the public took the re-named Queen Anne Style to its opulent bosom. Further, the Centennial Exposition of 1876 also exposed millions of Americans, among them "Lucky" Baldwin to the greatest art exhibit ever seen. As wealth and affluence expanded, so did the Style until its later architectural vulgarisms were called by critics 'Victorian Cathartic'. Fortunately, Baldwin's admiration for the exquisite whether in horses, buildings or women kept the carriagehouse within the bounds of good taste.

ble lead-horse stall on the left, and stalls housing the other four coach horses to the right. It is presumed this initial phase was built to take care of the Philadelphia Exposition. Interior panelling is of alternating redwood and pondorosa pine, an artistic luxury associated solely wtih private residences but impressively decorating the carriagehouse walls. "Lucky" however was not only a wealthy land-owner but had his own sawmill from which such hand hewn materials were available. Similarly, the wrought iron fretwork in the stalls adding to their beauty was all credited to Baldwin's impressions on various buying trips East for coach and race horses. As his interests and horsetrading techniques advanced so obviously did his needs for this first of his several carriagehouses and coachbarns, which apparently required an addition to the single room structure. This enlargement also introduced to the West the "wash-rack" or open-wood-slab sectional flooring upon which a coach would stand when being cleaned and refurbished after the long excursion, either from San Francisco or Falling Leaf Lake, at Tahoe, an important innovation for the southern California coach-owner, when the adobe floor was generally the mode. Despite the luxurious appearance of the main floor arrangements, the upstairs quarters simply displayed the raw, redwood beaming and floors, where sectioned areas stored the hay and fodder, upon which more often than not, the grooms tossed themselves to sleep at night, wrapped in blankets and the necessary pillow. Several of these negro g r o o m s and exercise boys brought from Kentucky and Virginia settled in Monrovia.

Baldwin's homeplace with its lovely park-like tract studded with live oaks, citrus groves, vineyards and dreamy lagoon naturally fed by ancient underground springs dating to the Pleistocene age became a favorite objective point for tourists. Adding to this general tourism disease of 'rubbernecking' was Baldwin's and other landowner's interests in sub-divisions and subsequent advertising attracting such groups. Immense waves of prospective buyers, as well as health seekers swept into Southern California. Tally-hos, basket carriages, fringed surreys et al crammed with rapturous females under parasols, and gallants struggling with wicker picnic baskets streamed through this Paradise. Evidences of his money-making activities under this tourist impetus are his clever playing cards (now collector's items) and the erection of the Oakwood Hotel located near the Santa Fe tracks in Arcadia. Another investor's enterprise was the San Gabriel Hotel, operated from 1890 through 1900. One of its registers has a section of a blotter page devoted to advertising regular tally-ho excursions to the Baldwin Rancho by way of Pasadena and Lamanda Park, returning via Sunny Slope to the hotel. From there the carriage went on to the Old Mission, Alhambra and Los Angeles, to 'East of the Park' — or the Plaza. Cost per ticket was approximately $1.75 to $2.00. The Eureka Stables were the advertisers, calling their tally-ho "The Swellest Rig in Town".

No one today is aware of the special exertions required to enjoy the pleasures of such an outing. Baldwin's carriages were always superbly decorated with garlands of flowers, peacock feathers and floating ribbons, often his racing colors of black, red and gray. Since the host was a man of genial temperament who loved jokes, the merrymakers were certain to experience not only a gourmand's fare, but entertainment of a unique type. He religiously kept the immediate environs of his lovely cottage

Several members of Santa Cruz No. 26, dedicated a Bear Flag at Camp Harmon, above Boulder Creek. This camp is maintained by the Easter Seal Society for crippled children. It is situated in the redwoods by a stream which is dammed. There are boats for the campers to use.

The open gathering place is situated above the stream and is dedicated to Lucille Geisel, who was the instigator of the camp.

There is also a large swimming pool in a sunny place and many water sports are held here. One large building with a fireplace contains the dining room, kitchen and community center. The dormitories and other buildings are scattered in the trees with paths connecting them. There are three sessions of two weeks each during the summer, and the children are in the hands of many capable counselors.

"There is a stream that all must cross,—
The River of Human Years:
Now lying calm in the summer light,
Now splashed with a rain of tears;
Out from the hills of God it flows,
And on — to the shoreless sea,
Where the noontide sun no shadow throws —
And time — is eternity."

"What," asked the teacher, "was the title for the former rulers of Russia?"

"Czar," replied a student.

"The Czarina."

"That's right," said the teacher, "and for his children?"

SANTA FE DEPOT

The marking of the Santa Fe Depot at Perris took place on Sunday, July 10, 1966 with approximately 100 present. Jurupa Parlor No. 296 of Riverside was in charge of the ceremony with many of the members, their husbands and families in attendance. Native Daughters of the Golden West consists of women over 16 years of age who were born in the State of California. Preserving historic landmarks or sites of landmarks are one of their aims. Recent research in the Santa Fe's engineers office produced data that showed the depot to have been built in 1892, making it the oldest depot in the County of Riverside. It is in very good repair.

Mrs. Steve Buchko, president of Jurupa Parlor was introduced as were the many visitors to the area. She was honored as a long-time resident of Perris and an employee of the Perris Post Office. Dick and Peter Jackson, small sons of a member of the History and Landmarks committee, Mrs. Roland Jackson, presented the American Flag and led the group in the salute to the flag. Invocation was given by Past President Mahala Leib. Little Patty Norton, a daughter of the Donald Nortons, natives of California, pulled the ribbon that loosened the large California flag which covered the plaque. A. K. Johnson, Santa Fe Division Supervisor of the Area, from San Bernardino spoke briefly and thanked the Parlor for interest in marking this beautiful old building. H. A. Burroughs of the Los Angeles office, and Train Master Glenn Young of San Bernardino also represented the Santa Fe. Present also were a group of men representing the Trolley Museum, a mile south of the depot.

Among the pioneers who were introduced were Alfred Leffen, grandson of Fred T. Perris, his sister, Mary Buckbee, and June Reeves, great grand daughter. Introduced also were Meta Cummings, Edith Harmon, Edith Ball, "Tillie" Ross, keeper and owner of the Southern Hotel which the Native Daughters marked in May of 1965, and Mrs. F. M. Reynolds. All are life-long residents of Perris. Miss Ruth Pico of the historical family of Pico and a life-long resident of Perris Valley, was also present.

Presiding at the refreshment table were Mmes. Donald Norton and Roland Jackson.

SANTA MARIA

Santa Maria No. 276 installed their corps of officers in very impressive ceremony at DES HALL on the evening of August 2nd. DGP Margaret Ziesenhenne and SDDGP Jeanne Fredrick, acting as Grand Marshal, were the installing officers. Other Acting Grand Officers were from visiting Parlors.

Mrs. Ida Hawkins, a life-long resident of Santa Maria Valley, and a daughter of pioneer parents, whose families came to the Valley in 1868 and 1869, was installed as president. Wearing a blue floor length formal, she was presented a white orchid by her husband, Rudolph E. and her nieces, Mary Ellen Broyers and Georgia Belle Guthrie. The Parlor presented her with an arm bouquet of pink carnations which she carried as she stood before the altar for installation. For Mrs. Hawkins, this is the second "go-around," she having been president for the 1949-50 term. She chose as her theme for the year "Veneration of the Pioneers."

Also installed were: Mmes. Mamie Kortner, Rowene Spears, Bethel McAllister, Mary Ann Weaverling, Helen Howard, Elsie Hayes, Amanda Krelle, Barbara Messell, Blanche Powell, Adeline Begg, GT Charity Righetti, and the Misses Meta Mehlschau, Mattie Mehlschau and Irene Rodrigues.

All officers were dressed in floor length formals and wore pink rose corsages. The escort team and flag bearers, wearing white formals, presented the California Bear Flag and the National Flag. During the installation ceremony, Blanche Powell sang the "Hymn to California", accompanied at the piano by Irene Rodrigues.

The hall was decorated with large baskets of white dahlias, shasta daisies and pink hydrangea. Over the president's station, in pink and greenery, were the letters "I D A". Meta Mehlschau was decoration chairman and furnished the flowers from her own garden.

Refreshments of sandwiches, cookies, punch and coffee were served from a table centered with a large bouquet of pink dahlias. The committee for the evening were: Mamie Fortner and Elsie Hayes, chairmen, assisted by Sue Krafft, Adeline Begg, Florence Green, Helen Howard, Mabel Lopes, Janet Howard and Barbara Sumner. Mrs. Hawkins, being an enthusiastic L. A. Dodger fan, was presented with an autographed baseball bat and ball to the tune of "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" by all those present, during the refreshment hour.

Jr. PGP Katie Jewett was a guest. Mary Rule, La Purisima No. 327, has been appointed as Deputy Grand President to Santa Maria Parlor for the 1966-67 term. Florence Green of Santa Maria No. 276 has been appointed as Deputy Grand President to La Purisima No. 327.

President-elect Ida M. Hawkins entertained the officers-elect for Santa Maria No. 276 at her home for a luncheon and an afternoon of planning. Besides Mrs. Hawkins, those present were Mmes. Kortner, Spears, McAllister, Weaverling, Howard, Begg, Powell, Righetti and the Misses Mattie Mehlschau and Meta Mehlschau. Past President Florence Green was a special guest. Miss Irene Rodrigues, organist, was unable to attend.

"A Salute to the Pioneers" was held on September 6 when the California History and Landmarks Committee, Velda Elliot and Ursula Botiller presented a program of old-time music and dance numbers. Refreshments were served.

Eschol Number 16 and Napa Parlor NSGW held joint formal installation ceremonies at the Native Sons' Hall. Native Daughters were attired in long floor length formals and Native Sons in white jackets and tuxedos. Mrs. Loella Muller, junior past president was chairman for the evening and introduced the installing officers: DGP Elvina Woodard of Vallejo Parlor, Vallejo and DGP Harry Chadbourne from Suisun Parlor, Suisun.

Guests present and introduced were Grand President, Annette Caiocca, La Junta Parlor, SDDGP Florence Buttimer from George C. Yount Parlor. DGP Emma Parnisari was introduced as the new deputy to Eschol.

PGP James Boitano and NSGW Grand Trustee John Kurtz both from Napa Parlor and Ben Farrogrand, outside sentinel from Nelson M. Holderman Parlor, Veterans' Home were present.

Mrs. Sager was presented with her own personal gavel by her sister, Iva R. Richardson of Santa Ana No. 235. It had a sentimental value in that it had been made from wood taken from an orange tree that grew at her childhood home. Where the home once stood now is a freeway interchange.

The Lodge Hall had been attractively decorated with large baskets of fresh flowers placed in front of each station and in front of the altar. Mmes. Hanna, Ambrose, Brown and Miss Dorothy Anglemeyer were in charge of decorations.

Eschol Parlor is very proud of the fact that each of the fifteen officers are new members, the majority of whom have never held office in the Parlor before. Following the installation ceremonies delicious refreshments were served.

Eschol Parlor is again off to a busy year. After taking part in the Fourth of July Celebration, where they operated their cotton candy machine, it proved to be both profitable and a new experience for some of the new members.

A decorated car, decorated to represent a California Mission with the words "Our California Heritage" on either side, was both beautiful and impressive. The Mission Bell tolled the entire parade route. Eschol Parlor was happy to win first place. The Parlor is now considering entering other parades as well as the Admission Day Parade at Stockton. The Mission was built to fit over the entire automobile and was made of corrugated paper. It was a good replica of a Misssion. This was entered in the Annual Napa Town and Country Fair Parade, sponsored by Napa Parlor, Native Sons. Grand President Annette Caiocca and Deputy Grand President Emma Parnisari rode in a car driven by Miss Dorothy Anglemeyer in the parade.

At the last meeting of Eschol Parlor, it was voted to sponsor a bowling team, consisting of Native Daughters. It is hoped this will influence other California born women to join the parlor. Plans are now being made for another joint Native Daughters and Native Sons dinner to be held October 15th.

Members of Eschol Parlor are also planning to attend La Junta Parlor's annual pot luck dinner at Beringer Brothers Winery. Eschol Parlor is proud to have two deputy grand presidents this year. Anita Land is deputy grand president to George C. Yount Parlor; Loella Muller, deputy grand president to Vallejo Parlor.

SAN JOSE

Green fans decorated with pink flowers and white ribbons were the carry-ins used to complement the white formals for San Jose No. 81's installation. The fan theme was used effectively.

The installation was held in the Eagles Hall in San Jose and the following were installed: President, Pat LaMetre and her corps of officers, Mmes. Christine Vaughan, Dolores Knox, Marie Knox, Marie Landini, Lavina Hogan, Lee Vaughan, Mary Sholes, Mildred Nelson, Frances Roland, Mildred McGrath, Sylvia Delgado, Elizabeth Brinkmann, Jewel Wyman, and Miss Shirley Landini.

Refreshments were served following the installation, also in the colors of green, pink and white. Upon taking office, President Geraldine thanked the Parlor for electing her as president. She said she hoped and knew that she would have the cooperation of the Parlor as she had during her year as 1st Vice President. Geraldine then announced her chairmen for the year. The installing officer SDDGP Vashti Papworth, introduced San Diego's new deputy, Alice Whitehead, of Las Flores Del Mar.

Under "Good of the Order", Past President Marie Myrtle Otto, gave the Parlor a copy of Robert's Rules of Order with the hope that it would help future presidents and start San Diego Parlor on the road to another successful fifty years.

The Parlor and officers presented the past president with a lovely necklace watch for her year's work as Parlor president. The Past Presidents Club of District 38 presented the past president with a souvenier spoon of San Diego, and the press book, compiled by Sarah Miller, was presented to her as a memento of the year's activities. PIO PICO MANSION

The dedication of a Historical Landmark Plaque was held at the Casa de Governor Pio Pico with approximately 200 guests. The mansion has been a historic landmark for many years. Native Daughters wearing colorful early California costumes and the Whittier Elks Junior Cavalier Band in their red uniforms and white-plumed hats set a festive mood. The ceremonies and the reception were co-hosted by the Pio Pico Mansion Society, Arthur Botello, president, Poppy Trail Parlor No. 266 of Montebello, Lucia Baquero, president and Whittier Parlor No. 298, Laura Sanders, president.

Mr. Botello thanked Assemblyman Jack Fenton of the 51st Distirct for his assistance in obtaining a congressional appropriation of $50,000 for the restoration of Casa de Pio Pico. Martin Cole, curator of the mansion, welcomed the guests and gave a history of Governor Pio Pico's home. Charles Fulkerson, president of the Southern California Historical Society spoke on the importance of preserving monuments.

Visitors looked through doorways of the adobe building at furniture including a grand piano, that had been carried by soldiers from San Pedro, where it had been shipped from Spain.

Parlors represented were Beverly Hills, Cien Años, Jurupa, Grace, Los Angeles, Poppy Trail and Whittier, also members from the Junior Unit of Norwalk. Ruth Pico of Jurupa Parlor and member of the Pico family was an honored guest.

EXCURSION . . .

private from the general tourist horde who could view its pristine beauty reflected in the lovely lagoon from the opposite shore. Only close friends and family sported on the cool greensward of the Baldwin Mall facing the Cottage festooned with strings of fancy Chinese lanterns, cozily clustered tables and chairs in comfortable array, and hovering solicitous attendants dispensing champagnes and vintage brandies from the Baldwin wineries. About 4 p.m. or towards sundown contented, laughing tourists or friends as the case may be were bundled into the coaches and returned to their various hostelries.

Arcadia's debt to "Lucky" Baldwin is the heritage he left behind in preparing the way toward its, and the Eastern San Gabriel Valley's progress, despite the numerous land and financial problems he experienced and forestalled. These 'excursions' of his into different avenues of commerce (horses, racing, sub-divisions, rancho products) and politics (Arcadia was incorporated in 1903 and he was its first mayor) were additional motivations for further tourism by other entrepeneurs which aided the growth of the Valley.

"A man makes his own prospects," said Elias Jackson Baldwin to a San Francisco Call reporter in 1892. . . and I am proud of my 80,000 acres. . . "with every damned one of them working . . . JUST FOR ME!"

The Fiesta Flower girls blossomed again at the 11th annual garden party given for them by Tierra de Oro No. 304, in the patio gardens of the historical Los Adobes in Santa Barbara. The idea of the Fiesta Flower Girls was originated at the 1949 Old Spanish Days in Santa Barbara. Members of Tierra de Oro Parlor assisted in the early years of this project and have sponsored this service group for the past eleven years. Girls between the ages of 12-16 years are invited to participate. Barbara Upton, Flower Girl chairman, explained the objectives of the program. At this age, she said, the girls feel that they are too old for children's activities, but they are still too young to participate in most other Fiesta events. As Flower Girls they serve the community as salesmen, advertisers and ambassadors of good will.

Introduced by Norma Grimm, one by one, the girls crossed the patio to receive their official Fiesta Flower Girl of 1966 badge from Terence Daly, the Fiesta el Presidente. Before taking their seats, they put a flower or a cascarone from their baskets into baskets which were later presented to Mr. and Mrs. Daly.

The Fiesta Flower Girl costume consists of a white ruffled blouse with a long, full colorful skirt. Each girl carries a basket of flowers. Most of the girls had been active for the preceding two-three weeks, attending luncheons with Fiesta officials and selling Fiesta badges. However, the Sunday party was the start of a busy Fiesta week. They met the trains, buses and airplanes to greet visitors, to give them a flower and a smile of welcome to the city. They participated in the ceremonies at the Old Mission and marched in the historical parade. A very important part of their activities is the visits to the shut-ins. Although, not a Native Daughter, Mrs. Adam Harrision has assisted the Flower Girl projects for several years as the coordinator. She organizes the Flower Girls so that they are grouped in cars and visit each of the rest homes and hospitals in Santa Barbara, always handing out flowers and bringing a bit of Fiesta to those unable to get out.

Other members of Tierra de Oro Parlor assisting at the party were Mmes. Florence Nagel, Margaret Lewis and Claudine Wullbrandt who assisted "back-stage" with the Flower Girls; Henrietta Cardona, Jennie Wollen and Edith Webster, refreshments; PGP Eileen Dismuke, Olympia Marquez and Jeanne Fredrick, hostesses; Belva Skeel, cascarones and Lucy Wofford, flowers.

When some of the flower girls reached the age of 16 years, they expressed a desire to continue serving the Fiesta events in some manner, and this year, Tierra de Oro again sponsored the usherettes. This group of older girls from 17-20 years, assisted ushering at Flower Girls party and also ushered at the Lobero Theatre during the four nights of Fiesta — Old Spanish Days in Santa Barbara.

REINA del MAR

Once again members of Reina del Mar 126 gave Santa Barbarans an opportunity to turn away from the present and step back into the colorful past at their annual pre-Fiesta tea. Junipero Serra Hall near the famous old Santa Barbara Mission was alive and gay with the hospitality of old Santa Barbara as City and Fiesta officials and their wives and state officers of the Native Sons of the Golden West gathered as honored guests of the parlor. Bright shawls, red roses, Spanish combs and fluttering fans were much in evidence as many guests attended in costume and entered into the spirit of Fiesta.

Miss Sue Harrison, 1966 Saint Barbara

Although the annual event has changed liittle in program over the years, it brings together descendants of early California families who look forward each year to renewing old acquaintances and recalling events of long ago as told to them by their fathers and mothers and even their grandparents as they relive the early history of California.

Adding to the festivities was the Arnold Diaz Orchestra with old-time favorites from the days of the Dons. The Parlor's Las Fiesteras dance group trained by Anita Joyal (Past President) in traditional early Spanish California dances was outstanding with the audience and truly brought back the gaiety of a hundred years or more ago. Adding to the program were Spanish dances by Susan La Greca and Lionel Morelos two quite young teenagers with tremendous talent. Elizabeth Hvolboll introduced for the first time a song especially written for Old Spanish Days by Ruth McNulty, "Fiesta Town of Santa Barbara" which once heard is destined to be a haunting song long to be remembered and sung.

The highlight of each annual tea is the introduction of the parlor member chosen to represent St. Barbara in the Old Spanish Days Parade. This year the parlor was proud to introduce Miss Sue Harrison who will portray the patron saint. She is a member of Las Fiesteras dance group and will be installed this month as the parlor's marshal. She is past worthy advisor of the Order of Rainbow for Girls, and teaches a Sunday school junior high class, sings in the choir and is a member of the commission on education. She is employed by the county of Santa Barbara as a Deputy County Auditor.

St. Barbara's attendants will be Lorraine Aceves, a 1961 St. Barbara, Miss Priscilla Sesma, parlor president and a 1963 St. Barbara, and Miss Lynne Heaton, parlor organist. The story of Santa Barbara's patron saint appears in the Greek and Muscovite Sanctorals and the Roman Breviary. Born in Nicodemia, Asia Minor, in 218 AD, Barbara was the daughter of Dioscorus, a Roman official who had been instructed by Emperor Maximin to exterminate all Christians in his territory. The girl, who had become a Christian in secret, pleaded with her father to spare those who shared her faith. Although she was imprisoned in a tower and tempted, she remained true to her vows, and was beheaded by her father, who was immediately struck dead by lightning. The head of St. Barbara who died December 4, 235 AD, is preserved in the temple of All Saints in Rome.

The Rev. Maynard Geiger, OFM, spoke on "A Spiritual Interpretation of El Camino Real". Father Geiger stressed physical access and personal relationship as he traced the path of El Camino Real and told how it affected the culture and commerce of the Golden State. Father Geiger, being archivist and Franciscan historian at the Old Mission, had the early books of records kept and written in small precise handwriting of Father Junipero Serra and many others which he brought to show the audience, one book dating back to the middle 1600's. All were beautifully bound and preserved in their original bindings of leather. When the archive library is a reality in the next few years, it will be opened to all serious minded scholars, students and researchers who care to delve into the original manuscripts, padres' books from Spain, photographs newspapers and historical paintings. There will be 63000 pages of documents in the library, mostly all hand-written pertaining to the days when California was just beginning.

Chairman Mrs. Henry Griffiths, and Co-Chairman Mrs. Ambert Phillips planning the tea were assisted by committee members, Mmes. Charles H. Cannon, Alfred Davies, Lillian Fraser, Peter Graham, Harry T. Hodgkins, Joseph Meyerink, Paul Miller, Roy V. Miller and Misses Mary Louise Days and Sylvia Ferrario. The tea itself was held in the garden under beautiful spreading trees. Spanish pastries and delicacies from treasured recipes handed down for generations and made by parlor members delighted the guests. Las Fiesteras dancers strolled through the garden in their colorful costumes.

Life Is Worth Living

Life is worth living
Wherever you are,
Down deep in a dungeon
Or high on a star.
Life is worth living;
It all has a plan
When God knows you're giving
The best that you can.
The saint and the sinner . . .
The great and the small . . .
We are all God's children
And God loves us all.
So pray when you're happy
And pray when you're blue,
For life is worth living
When God Lives with you.

PIONEER LUMBERING . . .

tiously grope their way through the breakers and nose into small openings in the cliff commonly called dog-holes. Seamanship of the highest order was required to manipulate a craft to a loading place. Errors were costly. A mistake meant a wreck and there were numerous mistakes.

When a ship "laid in" as close as it could to underwater reefs and ledges, the lumbermen on the cliffs above would let down a wooden slide, called an "apron chute." The cargo would move down by gravity and when it neared the deck of the ship an "apron" hinged to the side, would be raised up and slow the speed of the material. Later wire cables were stretched from the cliffs to anchorage in the sea. The ship would lay beneath and receive the cargo in slings which slid down the cable. Ordinarily about two days were required to load a vessel.

In about 1880 some inventive genius installed a steam engine in a sailing schooner, an event which revolutionized coastwise lumber transportation. With such an innovation the will of the pilot supplanted the whim of the elements.

The conversion to steam made little change in the outward appearance of the vessels. A cabin was installed on the after deck and a smoke stack was added. Sails were retained for the next thirty years. The first engines for these steam schooners were built by the Fulton Iron Works of San Francisco and had about one hundred horsepower capacity. Later they were greatly enlarged.

With the steam schooners came the "black gang," the men who stoked the boilers and kept the engines operating. Sailors of the old school derisively called them "monkey-wrench seamen." To keep some kind of peace aboard, the black gang had its quarters on the port side of the ship while the sailors occupied the starboard side. Even the officers were separated.

For many years the steam schooners of the lumber fleet were called "California's Scandinavian Navy." Many colorful characters skippered these ships. There was "Rain-water" Oscar Johnson who claimed to have once piloted his ship inland for several hundred feet on rainwater alone and upon realizing his mistake backed up and entered the sea without mishap! Everybody remembers Captain Gudmund "Midnight" Olsen who often steamed into treacherous Humbold Bay on a foggy night to be on time. "Port-wine" John Ellefsen was a teetotaler who served his fellow skippers wine rather than the usual whiskey. There are others such as "Pie-Face" Johnson and "Flat-Foot Hansen." They all belong to the great California tradition of which lumbering on the Mendocino Coast played an important role.

Captain Juan Bautista de Anza left San Miguel de Horcasitas, Sonora, on his second expedition to California. On this trip he had a number of colonists. His first expedition had been an exploratory one. After many years of distinguished service, which he completed with ten years as royal governor of New Mexico, Anza retired to Arizpe, Sonora, where he died on December 19, 1788.

For many years no one was certain of the exact location of his grave. When local officials determined that his remains were buried in the old Cathedral de Nuestra Señora de la Asunción in Arizpe, they requested that Governor Brown of California send representatives to confirm tentative findings of identification. Identity was corroborated by Dr. Robert S. Heizer and Dr. Theodore McCown, professors of anthropology, and Dr. Howell Williams, professor of geology, all of the University of California, Berkeley. In the coffin were found the remains together with traces of an 18th century military uniform, a Spanish decoration and a scapulary of the Third Order of St. Francis.

BURTON MOUND

by Dr. Leo J. Friis

ALTHOUGH BURTON MOUND in Santa Barbara was designated as a State Historical Landmark in 1939, it was not until 1966 that it was marked by an appropriate bronze tablet placed by the State Department of Parks and Beaches in cooperation with the California State Landmarks Advisory Committee and the Grand Parlors of the Native Daughters and Sons of the Golden West.

Excavations of the site made in 1923 indicate that three distinct Indian cultures lived there over a period commencing several thousand years ago. Archaeologists found that before the coming of the white men that the local inhabitants had acquired a high degree of skill in making "perfectly wrought sandstone bowls . . . great pestles as true of contour as though turned on a lathe, and striking ollas . . . globular in form and narrow-necked."

The mound was highly suitable for a village site as it possessed a number of springs which afforded an adequate drinking water supply.

It is probable that Cabrillo saw this village in 1542 and it is believed that it is the one he named "Xocotic" in his logbook. However, the first white men to visit the Indian rancheria on the mound were members of the Portolá Expedition who saw it on August 18, 1769. Miguel Costansó, a military engineer with Portolá, noted in his diary, "We pitched our camp close to a pond of fresh water from which the natives that occupy [the land] and live in the vicinity, take their supply. This was the most populous of all the towns that we, so far, had seen; we estimated that it might contain more than six hundred souls. They offered us as much fish, roasted and fresh, as we could desire, and came to the camp with their women and children; in no other place had we met natives so affectionate and good-natured."

During the period of Spanish control of California, Burton Mound and surrounding land was a small rancho under the control of Santa Barbara Mission and was known as El Rancho de la Playa (The Rancho of the Beach.) After Mexican Independence and secularization of the missions, it was granted to James "Santiago" Burke who derived some income from the property by charging an admission fee to scurvy-suffering sailors to bathe in the waters of the sulphur springs.

There is some evidence that during Burke's ownership of the site, that Thomas Robbins, formerly second mate of the Rover, rented the property and enlarged the adobe house which Burke had built on the mound. (Several years later, while sojourning in Santa Barbara, Governor Pio Pico granted Santa Catalina Island to Robbins.)

Burke sold the small rancho to Joseph Chapman in 1833. Chapman's introduction to California was an interesting and exciting one. He was an American who had been shanghaied by Hippolyte Bouchard, a privateersman, on Oahu, Hawaiian Islands, in 1818. He escaped during Bouchard's raid of the Ortega hacienda in Refugio Canyon, about twenty miles west of Santa Barbara. He gained asylum at Mission Santa Inés where he built a grist mill. Chapman was a very ingenious artisan and the improvements he devised and built in southern California made him very popular with the Californios.

During the period of Chapman's ownership, Benjamin Foxen rented the rancho and improved the adobe. He was an English sea captain who settled in the Santa Barbara area and was once a partner of José de la Guerra. His friendliness to Frémont rendered him somewhat unpopular with his Spanish-speaking neighbors.

Joseph Chapman sold Burton Mound and the surrounding acreage to Isaac Sparks, a native of Maine, who had come to California on a trapping expedition in 1832 with Ewing Young. He was the first Yankee to be buried in the Santa Barbara Mission cemetery. Sparks established a mercantile store in the adobe on the mound and entered into a partnership to hunt sea otter with another American trapper, Lewis T. Burton.

Title to the mound property was thereafter transferred to another otter trapper, George Nidever of Tennessee, who had come west with Capt. Bonneville's expedition. He joined Sparks and Burton in the otter trade. Nidever was living in an adobe on the mound during the Mexican War. He is best remembered as the man responsible for rescuing an Indian woman from San Nicolas Island.

Nidever sold the mound rancho to August F. Hinchman, a pioneer Santa Barbara attorney who built a store building at the foot of the mound which was operated by Burton and Harvey B. Blake until 1860. In that year Burton bought the land and here he resided until his death in

by Eileen Dismuke, P.G.P.

Padre Junipero Serra Medal Struck by the United States Mint

DEDICATION of the Junipero Serra Statue in Capitol Park in Sacramento, a project for the past eight years of the Grand Parlors of the Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West, will take place on Saturday, November 26, 1966, in the Camellia Grove located in the Park.

The project was begun as a result of a suggestion made by the Rev. Noel F. Moholy, OFM, during deliberations in connection with the return of the name El Camino Real to Highway 101 between San Diego and San Francisco, and return of the bells which carry the name of the highway. The suggestion was made to then Grand President Eileen Dismuke, of Santa Barbara, where the El Camino Real Committee meetings were held, in April of 1959, that the Native Sons and Native Daughters undertake a project of placing a statue of Padre Serra in our State Capitol. Many years before a statue of the Founder of California had been placed in Statuary Hall in our Nation's Capitol, as one of the two representatives of the State of California. The suggestion was passed on to the two incoming Grand Presidents, John Schmolle of the Native Sons, and Maxiene Porter of the Native Daughters, and both of their following 1960 Grand Parlors ratified the action of their respective boards in accepting this long-term project. Maurice Laurieux was commissioned to present sketches and many were considered before the final one was chosen. The statue chosen consisted of a nine-foot rendition of Padre Serra standing at the head of a map of California on which was delineated each of the missions established by the venerable padre and his successors. The statue has been placed in the Camellia Grove in Capitol Park, and is surrounded by a walkway the entire circumference of the statue and map. Placed at spaced intervals in the walkway are bronze relief replicas of each of the nine missions established by Padre Serra, San Buenaventura Mission being the last to be established by Padre Serra.

The committees of the two Orders responsible for final plans for the dedication are as follows: Native Sons — PGP Peter T. Conmy, chairman; PGP Richard F. McCarthy, PGP Robert Halsing, PGP Philip C. Wilkin, and the Rev. Noel F. Moholy. Native Daughters — PGP Maxiene Porter, chairman; PGP Eileen Dismuke, co-chairman; PGP Lee Brice, GT Rae Rominger, and Mrs. Genevieve Didion, member of La Bandera Parlor No. 110, Sacramento. Mrs. Didion assisted PGP Maxiene Porter in 1960 during the original interviews with the office of Governor Brown and the General Services Division of the State of California, through whom permission had to be secured before the project could proceed. Subsequently, Fr. Noel Moholy was instrumental in securing the cooperation of State Legislators in appropriating funds on a matching basis with Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West, and thus the project became one of Native Sons and Native Daughters and the people of the State of California.

The project was undertaken because of the great historical significance of Padre Junipero Serra's contribution to California as its first great pioneer, and members of both Orders, regardless of creed have made contributions to this historic project.

The dedication will be followed by a civic luncheon, the responsibility for arrangements for which are being delegated to GT Rae Rominger and Mrs. Didion, and other members of the Order working with them in Sacramento. PGP Philip C. Wilkin will act as liaison on the Native Sons committee as a resident of Sacramento and member of the Order there.

Final plans for the dedication will be announced in full in the November edition of the California Herald, and through other news media as the plans are completed.

California's 116th Anniversary and Los Angeles' 185th Birthday

by Margaret Ann Kerr

The Los Angeles Breakfast Club again hosted its famous "Ham 'n Eggs" (and d e l i c i o u s pancakes) breakfast-fiesta honoring two of California's historic events: September 4, 1781, and September 9, 1850. Native Sons and Daughters were especially honored, September 7th, in their spacious new clubhouse, 3201 Riverside Drive, Los Angeles, with approximately 351 club members and guests present.

Popular Emcee Harold B. Link, manager and radio voice of the club, presented George C. Sopp, Los Angeles-born Director of Special Services Department of Water and Power, City of Los Angeles, who presided. Song-leader James F. Keith and accompanist Frank Konyi conducted the musical song-fest. "Boosters" and Natives present led enthusiastic applause for Sheriff Emeritus Eugene F. Biscailuz, who was unable to attend this annual event over which he had presided for many years, as the regular radio broadcast opened the program (KRKD-FM 96.3, 8:00 to 9:15 A.M. Wednesdays). Messrs. Ralph E. Faulkerson and Richard Allan Dankers, both native Angelenos, were official hosts.

Club Chaplain Rev. James Brougher, Jr., delighted all present with the story of his "wrong-way" hike through the Oregon woods and over a mountain and commented that he would rather be lost in the woods than to be lost in a big city without friends.

Rev. Randall C. Phillips, D.D., D.A., Pastor of the Wilshire Blvd. Methodist Church, Los Angeles, took as his theme "California — Gold is where you find it." He sketched the influence of gold in the development of California and its aesthetic and cultural values in addition to its material assets: the arrival of the "SS GOLDEN HIND" (1769-1822); John Marshall's discovery of gold in 1848 at Sutter's Mill on the American River, followed by thousands who made the trek by steamer and covered wagon which was later followed by the tourist trade which proved to be another gold mine; the golden poppies; the golden orange acreage; black gold and oil developments, etc. Dr. Phillips urged all to continue to search for gold and to dig for real friendship and fellowship, faith and freedom.

Among the Native Sons and Native Daughters present were PGPs Mary Noerenberg and Anna T. Schiebusch, GVP June T. Goldie, PSP Phyllis Hirst, SDDGP Evelyn Forbes, Marguerite Tann, Hazel B. S t e c h e l, Blanch Oechsel, Barbara Swain, Irene Kuhl, Mildred Rickabaugh, Beulah Hood PGP Eldred L. Meyer, Verne Tucker, Jack Curran, Mark Russek, Harold Borden, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Lechlitner and Margaret Ann Kerr, again coordinator of NS-NDGW arrangements.

It has been my pleasure to attend many civic affairs since becoming your Grand President. I had the privilege of placing a wreath at the Father Junipero Serra Statue in Golden Gate Park on June 26 and then a Mass at historic Mission Delores followed by a luncheon held at the Presidio Officer's Club on June 29, a birthday celebration for the City of San Francisco. Then the commemoration program for Commodore Sloat in Monterey: the Old Spanish Days Fiesta in Santa Barbara, and the City of Sacramento's birthday banquet held at Sutter's Fort.

I have just returned from Stockton where I witnessed a beautiful as well as colorful parade. The marching units in their "River Days" costumes, the many outstanding floats as well as uniformed Bands made up a celebration long to be remembered. California's birthday is a very important day to each Native Son and Native Daughter. Let us strive to preserve the significance of Admission Day.

Meetings of Instructions are being held throughout the State and it is my desire and wish that much is gained from these meetings and that the Deputy Grand Presidents will bring this information into the Subordinate Parlor to which she was appointed throughout the coming year.

October is a full as well as busy month of Official Visits and I am looking forward to greeting you in your Home Parlors. October 8 and 9 is the Junior Conference in Redding and I hope to see many there to give support to our Junior Native Daughters.

LOOK FOR THE HOME THAT HELPS WITH THE HOUSEWORK:

It's called an All-Electric, Gold Medallion Home. The electric range never blackens pots and pans. Some even have electric ovens that clean themselves.

Electric heating keeps the whole house cleaner. Draperies stay clean longer. Walls need less scrubbing.

Gold Medallion Homes and Apartments come in all price ranges and work all day for surprisingly little.

by Amalia Vella

"Saludos: Hijas Natives del Dorado Occidente", what does it mean you ask? Translation: Greetings, Native Daughters of the Golden West, in a most sincere way. Before I start with my visit let me interject a thought that I feel is most à propos, and so well expressed by Samuel Ullman. "Youth is not a time of life; it is a state of mind. We grow old only by deserting our ideals. . . You are as young as your faith, as old as your doubt; as young as your self-confidence, as old as your fear; as young as your hope, as old as your despair." Think of this and you will see how true it can be.

Testimonials, celebrations, contests, travel, sewing bees, family nights, barbecues, teas, friendships and good fellowship nights, and oh, I don't know what! My head just starts to spin with all the thoughts of all the goings on around here. Let me tell you about a few, but first mark your calendar for October 27 for Vendome's Holiday Lane Bazaar.

"Holiday Lane" was so named eight years ago by me when I was publicity chairman, and has gained a reputation beyond compare. Here the early shopper finds of the beauties of grandma's day in the gorgeous hand-made linens, crocheted edges on pillow cases that are embroidered in the finest stitches. Novelties, toys, decorations, stocking stuffers of every description that only the imagination can come up with, for the early Christmas shopper. Vendome provides gifts that are a pleasure and honor to receive come Christmas morning. Booths all along the lane are awaiting the fastidious shopper as well as goodies from the oven and the candy kitchen. Preserves from mama's kettles are also in full display awaiting anyone who enjoys the nostalgic goodies of the past. The bazaar is to be held in the LETTERMAN'S CLUB — 425 N. Fourth Street here in San Jose. A scrumptious luncheon under the supervision of Chef Susie Engfer will be served from 11:30 a.m. The bazaar opens at 10:00 a.m. Remember now, Vendome's Bazaar, October 27. Circle your calendars and don't mistake it with any other date. This one will be Vendome Parlor — October 27. Hope I will be seeing you on that date.

FREEDOM TO WORSHIP GOD

Officers and available members of Californiana No. 247 lunched at the Melrose Nickodell, Hollywood. President Blanch Crabb Oechsel reviewed in detail proceedings of the 80th Annual NDGW Session at San Jose and responded graciously to questions. DGP Alice Arnstein added her observations.

Invocation was given by Miss Margaret Ann Kerr who quoted the suggested nondenominational prayer which was approved by the New York State Board of Regents, and carried by five nonconformists to the United States Supreme Court, which denied the use of a set prayer in the public schools, Justice Potter dissenting; no compulsion, nor coercion, nor penalty for non-participation was involved; it was entirely optional:

> "Almighty God, we acknowledge > our dependence upon Thee,
> And we beg Thy blessings upon > us, our parents, our teachers > and our country."

Miss Kerr cited another instance where Federal District Court Judge Edwin A. Boston, Chicago, refused to ban the recital in a kindergarten classroom "We thank you" verse, after the word "God" was removed:

> "We thank you for the flowers so sweet,
> We thank you for the food we eat,
> We thank you for the birds that sing,
> We thank you (God omitted) for > everything."

Elsewhere singing the last verse of "My Country 'Tis of Thee", display of "The Ten Commandments" on the walls, etc. have been banned from public schools, as have other testimonials to the ideals upon which this nation was founded "under God". The responsibilities of parents mount daily.

BURTON MOUND . . .

1879. He married Maria, daughter of Carlos Carrillo and was the city's first American mayor. His name is permanently attached to the mound.

After his death the property was purchased by the Seaside Hotel Assn. which intended to build a hotel there No construction took place, but the mound remained popular for its sulphur baths and as a picnic ground.

Milo M. Potter, of Long Beach, purchased the property and in 1901 commenced building the palatial six-story, 600 room Potter Hotel which catered to wealthy guests from the east. The hotel was constructed directly over the sulphur springs and although many tons of cement were poured into them to stem the flow of water, sulphur fumes continued to seep through which made polishing of the hotel silver a daily chore.

It was in the Palm Room of the Potter that Paul Whiteman got his start as a professional orchestra leader. In 1913, Potter sold the hotel to D. M. Linnard who changed its name to the Belevedere. In turn Linnard sold out to the S .W. Strauss chain which renamed the hotel the Ambassador. This fine building caught fire on April 13, 1921, during a heavy gale, and burned to the ground.

Following the fire an archaelogical study was made. Excavations unearthed extremely interesting artifacts relating to the Indians who had lived on the site.

Banker George S. Edwards and publisher Thomas M. Storke paid $5,000 for an option to enable the city to buy the property for park purposes for the modest sum of $100,000. A proposed bond issue for $95,000 was defeated by the electorate and shortly afterward the land was subdivided.

Many years passed without proper recognition of the historic site. To PGP Eileen Dismuke goes the major credit for heading the movement which led to the placing of a historical plaque on the land. On August 6, 1966, the site was dedicated under the sponsorship of the City of Santa Barbara, the Old Spanish Days in Santa Barbara, Inc., the Grand Parlors of the Native Daughters and Native Sons of the Golden West, and the California State Historical Landmarks Advisory Committee.

PGP Eileen Dismuke, as a member of the State Historical Landmarks Advisory Committee, gave the address of welcome.

THANKSGIVING

We plow the fields, and scatter
The good seed on the land,
But it is fed and watered
By God's almighty hand;
He sends the snow in winter,
The warmth to swell the grain,
The breezes and the sunshine,
And soft refreshing rain.

He only is the Maker
Of all things near and far;
He paints the wayside flower,
He lights the evening star;
The winds and waves obey him,
By him the birds are fed;
Much more to us, his children,
He gives our daily bread.

We thank thee, then, O Father,
For all things bright and good,
The seed time and the harvest,
Our life, our health, our foods:
No gifts have we to offer
For all thy love imparts,
But that which thou desirest,
Our humble thankful hearts.

EVELYN WHITE, MATRIARCH OF TAYLOR RANCH

By Dorothy Beebe

If you believe the idea of preserving and promoting the cultural heritage of this area is something new, born of bored socialites and others of the leisure class, then you haven't met Evelyn White, matriarch of the Taylor Ranch in Montebello. As a child she fell in love with the poppy fields in Pico and has pursued the romance all her life. Along the way she has touched the lives of persons who have attained places in our country's history and many great artists in America today.

Taylor Ranch is located at what used to be known as Pico Crossings. Originally the main ranch was in Downey at the old Foster bridge. Similarly Evelyn never has bothered to recognize community boundary lines; her scope of interest takes in the entire area east of the Los Angeles River. Her skills as cook and hostess are widely known. She caters to a crowd of 500 with the calm and finesse of a Perle Mesta. And at Taylor Ranch it is not surprising to find an artist of international fame emerging from her kitchen, coffee pot in hand, to refill the guests' cups. Her interest in humanity and people as individuals weekly beckons scores, both serious and madcap, to Taylor Ranch. The unitiated, knowing only her reputation for being dynamic, magnetic and energetic, perhaps except to be greeted by a woman in her 30's. But you meet a vibrant woman in her mid-70's, and you haven't recovered your aplomb when John Raitt arises to sing "If I Loved You" from "Carousel." The birthday of his mother-in-law is being celebrated. It's a typical day at Taylor Ranch; the unusual is the usual.

Later the first interview with Evelyn White is approached with trepidation. She enters the room radiating gracious hospitality and soon you realize you have not persuaded her, she has captivated you. The carefully thoughtout questions, the pencil and notebook become excess baggage. You sit back and listen as she recalls how it was.

"Whittier Boulevard used to be only a trail. The White Ranch was just off Rosemead Boulevard, about where St. Hilary Church stands today. My parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry White, were just good, Godfearing people. On the Sunday before my first day in school my father and I went for a drive in our buggy down the Whittier trail toward Los Angeles. The fields were covered with golden poppies. We gathered great armloads to bring home, and I remember thinking how beautiful they were. The next day after school my grandfather O. O. White, was taking me down that same trail to the car line to get my books. There, in the fields so beautiful the day before, were men and machines plowing under the poppies. I was so heartbroken at what I considered an injustice I cried. My grandfather stopped the buggy. 'Evelyn', he told me. 'those poppies aren't gone; they are still there under the ground. Those seeds will come up again. They will be the lunch baskets that men will carry to work. They will spring up in the form of many industries, as schools to educate the children of the people that will come. There will be many churches where people can go to the church of their choice.'"

"My grandfather was English and came to California from New York around the Horn in 1847. He was with Sutter when gold was discovered. I think there was a bit of the pirate in him, and I suspect there was a little more Irish than he admitted. He told me he wanted me to be a newspaperwoman to tell of the things the poppy seeds brought forth, or a lawyer to defend the rights of progress. I was not a pretty girl. I was fat and had flat feet. But from the time I can remember I dreamed of being a newspaperwoman."

Evelyn attended Ranchito School and was a chum of the Taylors and their cousins, Eugene Biscailuz and Leo Carrillo. Maude Price School is named for her sister, and one-time principal at Ranchito. Evelyn attended Whittier High School and was a close friend of the present Judge Frank Swain. It was at this time she worked for the Whittier Register. "I rode a bicycle around to all the ranches for news and to get subscriptions for the paper. I received five cents per printed inch and a small commission for the subscriptions." Then the Downey Champion offered her a quarter-page.

Evelyn's brother, Oswald, was in real estate and instrumental in developing the community of Pico. He helped his friend, John McCoy, start the first Pico newspaper, which today is the Pico-Rivera Times-Post. Her sister, Achsah, was postmistress in Rivera in the early days. In the early 1900s Evelyn became a promotion manager for the Express in Los Angeles. She also began to fulfill a desire to advance art and cultural endeavors. She served two years as the coordinator of the municipal art commission's annual city exhibits, and she worked with Mrs. Leiland Atherton Irish, Mrs. Valley Knudsen and Mrs. Norman Chandler, among others, to help establish the Hollywood Bowl.

"We were served by a dear girl named Agness Underwood. Unknown to us at the time she thought we were very important because we worked for the paper. When we realized how she felt we knew we wanted this girl with us." Ruth McClintock took Agness under her wing and helped launch the career of one of the most colorful women in journalism today. A living newspaper legend, Aggie Underwood presently is assistant managing editor to the Los Angeles Herald Examiner. Soon Evelyn had her own newspaper.

Evelyn sits at the old Fischer piano built in 1887

"In the early Twenties there was a disasterous flood in the Montebello-Pico area. I was sent out to get the story and to see what was needed to help the people who were traveling the streets in boats. Judge E. P. Woods, a wonderful man, met me to show me around. He told me I belonged here and that there was a need for someone to promote East Los Angeles. He took me to Fred T. Beatty, who owned a chain of newspapers. Beatty had worked in Linotype for the Express and knew me there. Beatty at that time was interested in running for county supervisor (he did and won) and needed a manager for his newspapers. He asked me to take the job and said if I was successful he would give me an option to buy one of the papers. I bought and paid for it."

It's difficult to imagine anyone busier than an editor of a metropolitan daily newspaper, but Aggie Underwood had time to talk about Evelyn White.

"Evelyn already owned the paper and had a large printing press. She asked me to come to work with her and get the paper going. She gave me the title of editor and she worked in business management. You know, there is so much to tell about Evelyn White and what she has done it would take a book. She is Mrs. East Los Angeles," Aggie said. The newspaper was the East Los Angeles Guardian. There was Aggie, there was Evelyn and her column, called "Poppy Trails", but there also was the Depression. Many papers larger than the Guardian ended publication during the Depression, but while it lasted Evelyn's paper made its mark on the community and stirred up the wrath of would-be racketers. The newspaper was invited to join a syndicate aimed at organizing vice and gambling in East Los Angeles, and was promised a share of the illicit returns. The gas and lights had been turned off, and they were walking because there was no money for gasoline. "I'm sure there were times when Agness' children were hungry, but this dear girl stuck through the struggle," Evelyn recalled.

November is the month of three very special occasions. On Veterans Day, November 11, we honor the men who fought and died for their country by being true to our trust, as they were to theirs, when they gave to their Country the full measure of their devotion.

On Thanksgiving Day let us give thanks to Him on high for our many blessings shared by all in our great State. May God preserve the reverence of our people for our Constitution and through its avenues continue to bless our Nation and our State.

May the meaning of this day be deeper,
Its friendship stronger
Its hopes brighter as it comes to you this year.

November 26th is the date designated for the dedication of the Father Serra Statue in the Camellia Garden at the State Capitol in Sacramento. Father Junipero Serra and his band of missionaries brought civilization, christianization and colonization to this great empire of the West — a man whom we honor for his contribution to the early history of California.

During this past month I have traveled many miles from the north to the south and viewed California in all its glory and beauty of the fall colors. It is my pleasure to greet the many members in their home Parlors, renew friendships and to again thank them for the many courtesies extended to me as I visit in the various areas throughout the State.

Sincerely,
Annette Caiocca
Grand President

Old Towns

by Alzada Eaton

A FEW WEEKS ago I took a drive and made a circle of Northern California. First I went to the Feather River country, through the Sacramento Valley to Weaverville; then to the coast and on down the coast back to Palo Alto.

JOHNSVILLE

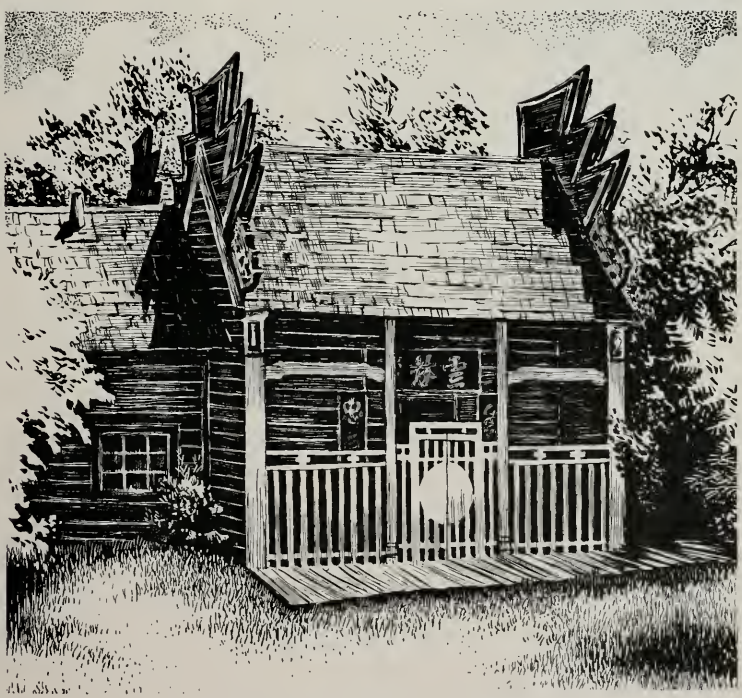

Johnsville is an old mining town located in the Plumas Eureka State Park. The old Eureka mine is about one half mile from the town of Johnsville. The state is slowly restoring the old stamp mill. The old boarding house is still there and is now a museum.

The town of Johnsville was almost burned in 1906. The story goes that a woman got mad at the owner of the old Eureka Hotel and attempted to burn it. Ironically it did not burn and is still standing with a few other old buildings that were saved during the fire. The original firehouse still stands. Most of the buildings were built after 1906, but look very old and weather-beaten, due to the severe winters.

VALLEJO

The red carpet was rolled out literally as well as figuratively when Grand President Annette Caiocca paid her official visit to Vallejo No. 195 at the Veterans Memorial Building. As Mrs. Caiocca was escorted to the altar by Marshal Leota Morrison, the red carpet was placed in her path by sentinels Nettie Lukes and Mata Hockin. DGP Loella Muller of Eshcol Parlor was also an honored guest. SDDGP Florence Buttimer was unable to be present because of illness. Grand President Caiocca presented 25-year pins to Alma Holzworth and Layol Welter.

A monetary gift was presented to the Grand President by Emily MacFarland as she read a poem composed for the occasion. Miss Jomargaret Gracy served as candidate "Miss California" in the initiatory ceremony. Deputies present included Anita Land, Emma Parnisari, Elvena Woodard and Emily MacFarland.

Tall baskets of flowers decorated the hall. Refreshments were served at small tables centered with yellow baskets of candy and flowers. Chairmen for the evening were Mary Susan Smith and Emily MacFarland.

Vendome Calling

by Amalia Vella

(Part 2)

Now to give you a résumé of some of the year's events. In March Vendome started with baby pictures, no less. Have you ever tried to identify a baby picture? Well I did as a judge, and what with "Hey Baby — Whose baby are you?" and "Who's that adorable baby?" I was ready to "flip my wig", and I do mean that literally, but it really turned out to be a great fun day, and the prizes. It was worth all the effort these gals put into the day. Now comes the testimonial — for who, you are asking— none other than our beloved "Little One", Irene Lial, whose selflessness has given so much happiness and pleasure through the many planned chartered trips taken by the Vendomite affiliates. It was in the form of a most beautifully decorated luncheon room and a delightful luncheon attended by 80 members who met to surprise Irene at Villa Felice in Los Gatos. A presentation was made Irene of a lovely sewing basket and a miniature covered wagon whose cargo was that nice "lettuce green produce." She was "rocked right off her feet" by all of the group that turned out to surprise her.

Then came the 106th birthday of the Pony Express and the riders, for which the banquet hall and meeting hall was elaborately decorated with horses, horses and more horses running all over the place complete with all the authentic trappings, and riders with their saddle bags filled with mail. Another interesting night of history not to be forgotten, followed by an essay contest on the history of the Pony Express. You should see how these gals of mine enjoy quiz programs. They enjoy them and the prizes offered for the right answers.

April 28 was party night with a hot dish supper preceding the business meeting. Acting as hostessess for the evening were Mmes. John Vella, Frank Catania, Ben Stone and Irene Lial. Everything followed the theme of spring and early summer as the months of January through April were featured and the colors were pink and white. Each birthday girl was given a small gift as a way of saying "Happy Birthday".

The roving "ambassadors" are still at it. Traveling to visit their many wonderful friends and sisters they have become so fond of. Aleli Parlor is a must when it comes time for them to have their annual salad bar. Five cars traveled down to Salinas to visit with our friends and enjoyed their luscious food. They too are invited to Vendome's Holiday Lane Bazaar to which a goodly contingent always come to San Jose for the event.

On May 3 it was Capitola Day for the travelers. Forty "Nimble Fingers" so called for their sewing prowess, went to the Fan Mar Way home of Martha Faulkner in Capitola. Again it was a hot dish luncheon and the special dishes that were to be enjoyed would have delighted the heart of the most meticulous of gourmets.

Wednesday, May 18 took one back to the real days of the Strawberry Festivals of old when our Elsie Figone opened her home to the Vendome Parlor group with an old fashioned Strawberry Festival where Mr. Strawberry reigned supreme. Games, cards and contests were enjoyed by the many that attended. Elsie had to nearly use the old cliché of "House Jacks" to make room for everyone that come. It was a most heartening and gainful day. Thanks to all of the girls who have opened their homes to the group.

On May 31, Irene, through her untiring efforts and selling ability, sold various items and raised a special fund on her own, and on this date gave all the sewers and hostesses who opened their homes to the Nimble Fingers for the year an appreciation luncheon. The event was held at the King's Table and the response was terrific. Everyone really enjoyed themselves. The luncheon was preceded by a "happy hour" and again a heartfelt thank you to our beloved "Little One".

For our flag day ceremonies a most interesting and enlightening program was planned to which the highlight of the evening was the beautiful reading given by Margaret Morgan. Margaret can always be depended upon to come up with something that is of the finest and truest meaning which is enjoyed by everyone.

Now comes June 28, the day that everyone looks forward to all year long, that wonderful day in June under the Majestic redwoods in the Big Tree area, Gordon's Boulder Creek "Shan-gri-la" on Canyon road in Boulder Creek. This is one day that all the "chips" go along with mama for the day of hiking, swimming or just any of the good old-fashioned fun of the long ago. After the luncheon is past the afternoon is spent with games, cards and various amusements. Velma is a most gracious hostess — Velma Gordon that is.

Comes now the truly big event of the officers, "Advance" night, practices, culminated by the installation of officers. The hall and dining room most attractive in the decor chosen by the president-elect in turquoise colors and white. The president-elect Ida Bonito chose as her talisman "Fraternal Unity". She was escorted by her husband, Manuel Bonito, to her seat of honor. Serving with Ida for the ensuing term as her corps of officers: Mmes. Rose Lanin, Margaret Amann, James Howard. Elsie Figone, Peter Yakobovich, George Morgan, Richard Engfer Sr., Richard Postier, Frank Catina, Robert Gordon, Virginia Smith, Sue Mattei, Violet Misakian and Irene Lial.

The month of August is nearly the home stretch. During this month are the special event days. First the annual Family Night Barbecue at Alum Rock Park when Mr. Big himself is king for all the days or nights that he is left alone while mama is with the Native Daughters, and of course the little "chips" must come along too as it is their big night also. Charlie Gordon comes down from Boulder Creek and gets the pits going for the barbecue. After everyone has filled himself, and is in that lackadaisical mood, out comes the guitar of Amalia's and everyone gets into the old-fashioned sing-along mood, and if you want to really go back to grandma's time, you should come to Vendome's Family Night. It's a "gasser" as the modern generation would say today.

At more recent festivities, a class of candidates were honored at a formal dinner at Original Joe's. They then convened at Schofield Hall at the YMCA for formal initiation, and what's so soul satisfying, they have continued to come to meetings most faithfully, and are participating in the many projects and works that Vendome has going constantly.

On September 9, the group went to Stockton for the Admission Day Parade and Vendome's bowling team participation in the tournament on Sunday. It's a fine start for the 1966-1967 NDGW year. Adios Hermanas — Adieu Sisters; however don't forget October 27! Come to our Holiday Lane Bazaar.

Extension of the Order

by Lee Brice
Past Grand President
State Chairman for
Extension of the Order

"We have a Tremendous Product — BUT TO SELL IT - WE MUST TELL IT." In our beloved Order of the Native Daughters of the Golden West we have the State's first women's Patriotic organization. We have a package with tremendous merchandise appeal. Wrapped with dignified activity and tied with bands of worthwhile purpose, ours is a prestige product. It is a product that is good — that is state-wide — that has excellent acceptance — BUT IT MUST BE SOLD.

Our market is eligible women, born in California, over sixteen years of age, who are citizens of the United States, are not and never have been a member of any subversive or Communist-front organization as listed by the Attorney General of the United States, and who are of good moral character.

The Native Daughters of the Golden West have many interesting activities which function throughout the State and will give ample opportunity for members to serve Parlors, communities and the State of California.

If you and hundreds of other loyal sisters deal in positive facts, we will sell our product, we will meet the challenge and bring into our Order a thousand fine new members. Our Grand President Annette would like to have a good gain in membership during her year; let us all try to bring in at least one new member.

IT CAN BE DONE. Remember — IT MUST BE TOLD TO BE SOLD.

SAN FRANCISCO DEPUTY RECEPTION

With the theme "Grape Harvest," the Deputy Grand Presidents of San Francisco County and their Supervisor, honored Grand President Annette Caiocca with a reception on October 28 in the Ball Room of the Marine Memorial Building. The Ball Room was decorated with grapes of the many varieties grown in the Napa Valley. SDDGP Marie Feil and Chairman DGP Helen McCarthy greeted the many guests, assisted by the Deputy Grand Presidents. Mrs. Feil chose a full-length pink formal of a very soft material trimmed with silver. All the deputies wore their deputy dress for this term made of soft blue material trimmed with silver.

All carried baskets of grapes while receiving and escorting the many dignitaries. All the Native Daughter Grand Officers were present and many Past Grand Presidents all wearing long formals in various colors that added much to the whole affair. The Native Sons of the Golden West were represented by many Grand, Past Grands and members of the Order. Chairman of the Board of Grand Trustees of the Native Daughters of the Golden West, Nancy Conens, greeted the Grand President as she was being escorted with a very special song. Mrs. Conens sang several numbers during the evening. Punch and cookies were served at the close by members of the Supervisor's Parlor, San Francisco No. 261.

CALIFORNIANA

VP Barbara Vinette Swain hosted members of Californiana No. 247 and friends at a buffet luncheon at her home, honoring Mrs. Austin August Lysight (nee Cornelia Luisa Hill) on her 90th birthday.

Mrs. Lysight was born in Anaheim, California, August 25, 1876, and has been a member of Californiana No. 247 since February 14, 1950, during which time she missed only one membership meeting due to an "unusual downpour" which prevented bus connections. She has also served as Inside Sentinel for the past three years and has attended all officers' sessions. In recognition of her faithful service, President Blanch Oechsel presented a Life Membership in Californiana No. 247 to her, along with other birthday gifts from the Parlor, individual members and friends. Secretary June Harrison presented a delicious birthday cake adorned with pink roses which keynoted the corsage and table decorations. "Cornelia" cut the first slice as greeting by President Oechsel was read in unison and HAPPY BIRTHDAY sung:

Oh, what is Gal is Cornelia,
Oh, what a Pal is she;
We greet you today on your birthday
With our hearts all filled with glee;
Bright is the sun we are under,
Love like our Golden State,
So we must say to you, today,
Cornelia,
We think you are great!

Mrs. Lysight's great-grandfather, Major Frances Restaine La Faucherie, was born in the same town in France as Lafayette and accompanied him to America. Major La Faucherie remained and served with distinction in the War of 1812. His son (her grandfather) came to Anaheim from Trenton, New Jersey. His wife, her maternal grandmother, Louisa Pitcher La Faucherie, was a great-niece of the renowned Molly Pitcher.

Mrs. Lysight's paternal grandfather, John James Hill, was born in Ireland, came across the plains in a covered wagon over the Oregon Trail, in 1849 from Philadelphia, Pa., along with James Flood, Mr. O'Brien, et al. Mr. Hill purchased a home adjoining the home of Mr. Flood on Nob Hill in San Francisco. Her father, John James Hill, Jr., served in the Civil War and later came to Anaheim. A family bibliography of this pioneer family is now being written by the Reverend Mr. John Kimball Saville, rector of St. Michael's Episcopal Church, Anaheim, as it is interwoven with the history of Orange County during that period.

Mrs. Lysight has resided at 4736 West 18th St., Los Angeles, for the past 43 years. She has one son, Austin Norris Lysight, and three daughters: Mrs. James (Margaret Virginia) Clancey of Beverly Hills, Mrs. Walter (Katherine) Hartry of Los Angeles, and Mrs. Walter (Allison) Hoag of Santa Barbara, six grandchildren and twelve great-grandchildren.

Special guests included SDDGP Hazel Lasher Cain of Wilmington No. 278, which was instituted in 1944-45 during the Grand Presidency of Mary B. Noerenberg. PGP Noerenburg cut the cake. Assisting PP Barbara Swain were: VP Inez Hobbs, PP Flora Jacobs, Trustee Lela Capra and other officers.

Mrs. Lysight attended St. Michael's Episcopal Church as a girl. This 90 year-old church is now used as a chapel and a new, large edifice, dedicated in 1963, stands to the right of this fine old church in Anaheim, California.

Guiseppi was being examined for naturalization as an American citizen and was doing very well. After answering correctly the names of the President and Vice President he was asked, "Could you be president, Guiseppi?"

No," came the quick answer.

TIOGA ROAD

By Eugene McAllister

Rocks rolled down, grades were steep,
Curves were sharp and canyons deep;
No driver every fell asleep
On the Old Tioga Road.

A car would creep along and boil
And use an extra quart of oil;
It made the timid ones recoil,
That old Tioga Road.

Now it's wide and smooth and fast,
Thanks to the hardrock men who blast
And the engineers who built to last
The new Tioga Road.

Old-timers drive it now with pride,
Confessing fears they used to hide,
Recalling thrills of an early ride
On the old Tioga Road.

Eugene McAllister's grandsons Jim and Paul Skelton look down upon old Tioga Road where it skirts Tioga Lake, approaching the Pass. Kuna Crest is in the background.

The eastern entrance to Yosemite National Park by way of Tioga Pass has been one of California's most frightening roads. It is now undergoing extensive modernization at a cost of more than five and a half million dollars.

ALELI

California's 116th birthday, Constitution Day, the Founding of the order, and Childrens Foundation Day were appropriately observed by Aleli No. 102.

Chairman Ila Anderson introduced Pauline Holm, who represented California and reviewed the highlights of the state's history and of the Native Daughters of the Golden West. She told of the year 1906, the year of the big earthquake, when Grand Parlor met in Salinas. Grand President Ariana Stirling of Aleli presided at that Grand Parlor.

Accompanied by Claudina Clark, Anna Black sang a group of songs of the '50s, concluding with "I Love You California." Go-Go, the crystal gazer in the person of Rose Rhyner, saw many things of interest in the crystal ball, a few of which were visible to the audience. Among the things seen was a woman of 1850, whose lovely costume covered her from head to foot, exposing only her face and hands. In contrast, Alma Borchert in an extremely short skirt and almost topless blouse portrayed the dress sometimes seen today. Her solo dance was a far cry from the dignified dances of yesteryear.

The crystal ball revealed that the Order of the Native Daughters of the Golden West would become the largest woman's organization in California and would have the distinction of sending the first woman to the moon. Carmelina Rasmussen, dressed for the flight in black leotards and space helmet, carried the California Bear Flag, which would be the first state flag planted on the moon.

Refreshment tables were tastefully decorated with yellow marigolds and pennants of the four special dates. Individual cakes with candles honored California's birthday. Thanks for an outstanding evening were said to Chairman Ila Anderson, Co-Chairman Pauline Holm, and Alma Borchert, Gladys Berryessa, Elsie Hicks, Claire Lanini, Anona Parker, Lois Koue, Christina Storga, and Ann Welch.

GRAND PRESIDENT HONORED

Five parlors in Alameda County joined in welcoming Grand President Annette Caiocca of La Junta No. 203, on Tuesday, October 25 at 8:30 P.M. in Veterans Memorial Hall, Hayward.

Participating were Angelita, No. 32, Livermore with President Adele Kreuger, Deputy Kathleen Madsen and Chairman Joan Stuart; Hayward No. 122 with President Irene Jahn, Deputy Dorothy Lynn and Chairman Maxine Luce; El Cereso No. 207 with President Dora Phillips, Deputy Josephine Lauricella and Chairman Gertrude Olympia; Betsy Ross No. 238 with President Margaret Phillips, Deputy Dolores Ferenz and Chairman Roumilde Emge and Vallecito No 308 with President Lena Lemos, Deputy Florence Smith and Chairman Marie Dye.

The publicity chairman for the official visit was Geraldine Degler of Hayward. Margaret Phillips of Fremont president of Betsy Ross No. 238 presided.

JR. UNIT NEWS

MENLO JUNIORS

Fourteen Juniors and eight advisors of the Menlo Unit attended the 14th annual conference of the Junior Order at Redding. Two candidates from the Unit were presented and both were successfully elected. Junior State Trustee, Lynn Scott was elevated to Junior Marshal and Linda Ucovich was elected Junior State Secretary.

In the field of the essay contests, Lynn Scott was awarded first prize of $15 for her entry "What California's History Means to Me". The year book with 56 inches of publicity was given honorable mention.

The social highlights of the conference were the formal installation of the Junior Officers, a delicious barbecue at Redding Park and a bus trip to Shasta Dam.

About 175 Juniors and advisors attended the conference. The hostess unit for 1967 will be Hayward.

Menlo Unit's installation of officers was November 4. Plans are being made for their 25th anniversary, December 9, which will be public. Junior and Senior members are invited. Menlo Junior Unit is a subscriber to the California Herald.

JAMES LICK

The members of James Lick Parlor, San Francisco, had a very busy meeting in October. Their DGP Leora Darling gave a very full report on the school of instructions that was held on September 17. She said she was very pleased to see the president, Anna Ghisilli and Acting Marshal, Georgia Robinson present. Both officers said they felt they had spent a very enlightening day. President Ghisilli appointed Jardedna Johnson and Mabel Walker to take over James Lick part of the official visit in January. After meeting with the president furnishing the refreshments, our two new members, Shirley Scroggins and Kathleen Murray waited on every one, serving refreshments in keeping with Halloween.

Speaker for the event was the Rev. Fr. Maynard Geiger, OFM, archivist-historian of the Santa Barbara Mission and author of the definitive biography of Father Junípero Serra. The bronze plaque was dedicated by the grand officers of the Native Sons, presented by Chairman McCarthy and accepted by Mayor McGillivray.

Upon the bronze plaque, which is set in a two-ton sandstone boulder, are the words:

> "Thought to have once been the Indian village of Syujtun this site has yielded some of the most important archaelogical evidence found in California. In 1542 the village was recorded by Cabrillo while on his voyage of discovery, and again in 1769 by Fr. Crespi and the redoubtable Portolá. Don Luis Burton, after whom the mound was named, acquired the property in 1860."

The site was blessed by the Rev. Fr. Noel F. Moholy, OFM, well known for his interest in California history.

SAN DIEGO

San Diego No. 208 has been very busy getting started on their new year and striving to maintain their active participation in the activities of the community and organization itself.

August found us planning our second annual Waffle Bruncheon in the lovely patio of the First Vice President, Dorothy Mason. The event was held on Sunday, August 28 from 10 to 2 and many of our long absent members came out to enjoy the beautiful Sunday and the lovely patio of their host and hostess. Dorothy Mason was in charge of the waffles while her husband, Louis, our adopted sister, served as the cook for the sausage and eggs. This event also started us on the sale of Christmas cards and everyone in attendance seemed to enjoy the warm sunny afternoon, but just couldn't seem to realize that Christmas was fast approaching.

The month of September proved to be another very busy month for all the members. September 9 we celebrated Admission Day by the holding of a pot luck supper in the patio of our immediate past president, Marie Myrtle Otto home. This event was something new in one respect as there was a new addition to the Otto home—a swimming pool. Many members and their families went swimming and we practically had to give an ultimatum that everyone had to get out or else there'd be no dinner — that's the secret words — all got out and quick. Some forty members attended this Admission Day celebration and all joined in the fun of the evening.

On the evening of Wednesday, September 21, San Diego Parlor, under the sponsorship of the Children's Foundation Committee, held a Tupper Ware Party at the home of our Third Vice President, Martha Anderson. Some thirty people were in attendance and the results of the party proved to be very beneficial to the Committee on Children's Foundation.

September 25 again found us in the patio of the Otto home for our Ice Cream social as our second Ways and Means Event for the year from 2 to 5 P.M. Chairman Dorothy Mason held down the check-out table where everyone had to pay and also were asked if they would like to buy chances on a Tupper Ware Coffee Maker for the benefit of the Children's Foundation. All chipped in and helped with the serving and Dorothy apparently made a good sales pitch to all about the coffee maker as the report at the following night's meeting proved to be very profitable for the Parlor and the Children's Foundation.

On Monday, September 26 at our regular meeting, Children's Foundation Day and Founder's Day were observed. President Geraldine Martinez asked Emily Welch to read and tell of the founding of our organization. She gave a very interesting talk on the actual story as told by the Native Daughter's founder and telling us how and in what form she invited the first members to form the organization. Chairman of Children's Foundation, Dorothy Cheney, told of the workings of the Foundation and also reported that one of our own little girls, who was in attendance the day before at the Ice Cream Social, had been helped by the Foundation. When one can see the actual results of our Foundation, we feel that we have a real worthwhile organization and one that needs to be continued and grow from year to year. Delicious refreshments were served following the meeting and all thanked Dorothy Cheney and Martha Anderson for their work in setting up this important and interesting evening.

This has been a very quick and thumb nail sketch of the activities in San Diego Parlor. Much is in store for the future and we are all sure that the events in the future will be as interesting, if not more interesting than those reported in this little article. We have a very active group of women working and striving to maintain our existence in this fast growing world and trying to uphold the traditions of our past fifty years.

was built in 1863 and was a stage station between Quincy and Calpine, which was an old lumbering town. The original oak floors are still in the building, but will soon have to be replaced. Transients stayed in this building in early days.

Early hotel in Mohawk Resort still carries on. The building is 103 years old.

Earl Smith is the manager and he and his family live upstairs. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson operate the dining-room where wonderful meals are served. Their speciality is sourdough pancakes, which are made from a yeast starter.

It is interesting to know that a few Chinese are coming back into this area and the Joss House is again being used for services.

I visited Moon Lee who owns an electrical store here. His grandfather helped build the Joss House. The only descendants of the early Chinese during mining days are his family.

THE "FLAPJACK BOYS"

A blue figure of a 49er panning gold against a red and gold background: that's the familiar 49th Infantry Division patch. But what does it mean and how was it adopted? Blue and gold are California's state colors and blue is the infantry's color. Red and gold recall the colors of Spain, an early settler of the Golden State. The 49er commemorates the California gold rush and the early American history of the State.

That's the explanation given by M/Sgt. George Woehrle who served on the original committee which chose the design in 1949. The division, at that time commanded by Maj. Gen, John U. Calkins, Jr., sponsored a contest with a $100 first prize for the best design and attracted some 300 entries. After careful study Sgt. Woehrle, at that time Lt. Col. Woehrle, with committee members, Lt. Col. Arthur L. Benson, GSC and Maj. Edmund M. Saunders, GSC. chose the present design — with a slight modification.

Sgt. Woehrle, who is an expert in heraldry, noticed that in the design as submitted the red and gold formed a "bar sinister". A "bar sinister" is the heraldric term for the diagonal across the patch when it slants from top right to bottom left. A "bar sinister" is a sign of illegitimacy. The bar was changed so that it slants from top left to bottom right and now forms a "bar dexter." The Division's nickname of "Argonaut," although it came into use several years after the adoption of the patch, is also symbolized in the figure of the 49er. According to Greek mythology the Argonauts were a band of adventurers led by the hero, Jason, who went in search of a golden fleece. The early 49ers who came to California in search of gold were also popularly known as Argonauts.

The current patch, however also resembles the Alber's Milling Company trademarks. "Wise guys called us the 'flapjack boys'" commented Sgt. Woehrle.

The Wise Men

Saw you never, in the twilight,
When the sun had left the skies
Up in heav'n the clear stars shining
Through the gloom, like silver eyes?
So of old the wise men, watching,
Saw a little stranger star,
And they knew the King was given,
And they followed it from far.

Heard you never of the story
How they crossed the desert wild,
Journey'd on by plain and mountain,
Till they found the holy Child?
How they open'd all their treasure,
Kneeling to that infant King;
Gave the gold and fragrant incense,
Gave the myrrh in offering?

Know ye not that lowly baby
Was the bright and morning Star?
He who came to light the Gentiles,
And the darken'd isles afar?
And we, too, may seek his cradle;
There our hearts' best treasures bring;
Love, and faith, and true devotion
For the Savior, God, and King.

Is There a SANTA CLAUS?

IS THERE A Santa Claus? There comes a time in every child's life when this question is asked. It is usually planted in the mind by some older, skeptical, disillusioned playmate. But it is always asked, whether mentally or orally.

In 1897 little Virginia O'Hanlon wrote to the New York Sun for an answer. The classic reply, composed by Francis P. Church, appeared in the editorial columns of the newspaper. Obviously, it was directed principally to grown-ups. Here it is:

"We take pleasure in answering thus prominently the communication below, expressing at the same time our great gratification that its faithful author is numbered among the friends of the Sun:

Dear Editor—

I am eight years old. Some of my little friends say there is no Santa Claus. Papa says "If you see it in 'The Sun' it's so." Please tell me the truth, is there a Santa Claus?

Virginia O'Hanlon

"Virginia, your little friends are wrong. They have been affected by the skepticism of a skeptical age. They do not believe except they see. They think that nothing can be which is not comprehensible by their little minds. All minds, Virginia, whether they be men's or children's, are little. In this great universe of ours man is a mere insect, an ant, in his intellect as compared with the boundless world about him, as measured by the intelligence capable of grasping the whole of truth and knowledge.

"Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus. He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist, and you know that they abound and give to your life its highest beauty and joy. Alas! how dreary would be the world if there were no Santa Claus! It would be as dreary as if there were no Virginias. There would be no childlike faith then, no poetry, no romance to make tolerable this existence. We should have no enjoyment, except in sense and sight. The eternal light with which childhood fills the world would be extinguished.

"Not believe in Santa Claus! You might as well not believe in fairies. You might get your papa to hire men to watch in all the chimneys on Christmas eve to catch Santa Claus, but even if you did not see Santa Claus coming down, what would that prove? Nobody sees Santa Claus, but that is no sign that there is no Santa Claus. The most real things in the world are those that neither children nor men can see. Did you ever see fairies dancing on the lawn? Of course not, but that's no proof that they are not there. Nobody can conceive or imagine all the wonders there are unseen and unseeable in the world.

"You tear apart the baby's rattle and see what makes the noise inside, but there is a veil covering the unseen world which not the strongest man, nor even the united strength of all the strongest men that ever lived could tear apart. Only faith, poetry, love, romance, can push aside that curtain and view and picture the supernal beauty and glory beyond. Is it all real? Ah, Virginia, in all this world there is nothing else real and abiding.

"No Santa Claus! Thank God! He lives and lives forever. A thousand years from now, Virginia, nay ten times ten thousand years from now, he will continue to make glad the heart of childhood."

The Story of

by Alice T. Smith

Card printed in Germany in the early 1900s.

Louis Prang was both an artist and a stern employer. The notice on the opposite page was posted in his factory for all employees to see and obey.

TO COLLECTORS OF OLD Christmas greeting cards goes the credit for preserving the history of the most widely observed of all Christmas customs and to England must go the credit for first creating and publishing these Christmas greetings, although American artists and lithographers quickly advanced beyond their British counterparts in excellence of art and production.

Sir Gilbert Cole, the first director of the Victoria and Albert Museum, commissioned his friend, John Calcott Horsey, R.A., to design a card to be used as a Christmas greeting in 1843. A thousand copies were lithographed, hand-colored and sold by Felix Summerly's Treasure, an art shop in Bond Street. Queen Victoria greeted the innovation so enthusiastically that she took the occasion to knight the innovator. But while Englishmen joyfully embraced the idea of a card to express the season's greetings, many Puritans among them disapproved of the design which depicted a family around a table, wine glasses in hand to toast the season. (The children should have been put to bed before the drinking started, claimed the objectors).

In spite of his critics, Sir Gilbert basked in the prestige of being the originator of the Christmas card. Some years later his claim was jeopardized by a rare book dealer in New Haven, Conn., who found a Christmas card in an old Bible shipped from England, and bearing the date 1839. It was unlike Sir Gilbert's card, and was a dainty lace-paper affair published by the firm of Windsor and Pearce in London.

The earliest known American Christmas card was a commercial one, used for advertising by a dry-goods merchant. It was designed, printed and distributed by R. J. Pease of Albany, New York in 1853. The design, typical of the period, portrayed Father with his hand on Mother's shoulder, two children standing by Mother's side and a baby in her lap. Towering in the background was a four-story building, the Pease store, with the legend, "Pease Great Variety Store is the Temple of Fancy." Christmas was already being commercialized!

In the meantime, in Roxbury, Massachusetts, a young immigrant lithographer named Louis Prang introduced his first Christmas card to the people of his adopted country. The Killarney Rose was his first and most favored design.

This daring young craftsman had arrived penniless in New York in 1850, an exile following the unsuccessful German revolution of 1848. Born in Prussian Silesia, May 12, 1824, he was trained in the skills of dyeing and printing calico in his father's factory. In this country he took up wood engraving and leather goods finishing, lived thriftily, and in six years had a bank balance of $300.00, with which he opened a small lithograph shop in Boston. His favorite designs at the time were delicate floral prints, although he had to give up floral designs to produce war maps and generals' portraits during the Civil War. All during this time he busied himself perfecting the new process of color lithography.

Prang made reproductions of oil paintings of such beauty that his fame spread to England. Frequently experts were required to tell Prang's work from the original. Soon he maintained an office in London.

To the secretary he employed goes the credit for suggesting that the words "Merry Christmas" be inserted in the space on a card usually reserved for the signature of the sender. Prang had some misgivings as to the reception that these seasonal greetings might get, and so he tried them out in England first, in the year 1864. Beauty and holiday sentiment combined to make them an outstanding success with the English.

At this time Prang's cards were decorated with many kinds of flowers — roses, daisies, geraniums — but never a single piece of the holly, mistletoe or poinsettia that is so popular today.

A man with Louis Prang's imagination was bound to be an opportunist, and so he began to branch out into themes inspired by the events of the day. One Prang card depicted Alexander Bell's new invention, the telephone. It showed Uncle Sam and John Bull shouting at one another over this new contraption. The card was made in 1877.

Also in 1877, Prang's printing plant burned to the ground, netting him a loss of $100,000. As might be expected of a man of his determination, he borrowed money and rebuilt his plant. Into the new plant he incorporated means of producing new designs for Christmas cards. He added seasonal themes such as children romping in the snow, fir trees, glowing fireplaces and even Santa Claus. When John Q. Public demands, "Give me a real old-fashioned Christmas," he really means let me see more of the scenes created by Louis Prang!

By 1881 Prang was selling five million cards annually. Although obviously a first rate artist, he was also a first rate businessman. He spared neither himself nor those whom he employed. In the fabulous collection of Prang's Christmas cards owned by the late George E. Buzza of the Buzza Cordoza Greeting Card Company, there is one of the notices to all employees that Prang had displayed in his factory. Included in Prang's orders was a prohibition against doing business on the Sabbath, direction on how much money to give to the church, his expressed disapproval of Spanish cigars and dancing, as well as stipluated store hours which ran 15 hours a day. The last item on the notice notified new employees that they were to be given "one evening a week for courting, and two if they go to prayer-meeting."

Soon Christmas cards were his main item. He bought expensive designs directly from the artists who painted them. In order to attract the best he sponsored contests. Prizes ran as high as $2,000, an amount which he actually paid to an artist named Dora Wheeler. To Elihu Vedder, whose design is today in the Congressional Library, he paid $1,000. Designs were judged by a competent panel and put on display at Reichard's Gallery in New York. At a later date, the public was invited to cast votes.

Sometimes 20 different shades and and colors were used to give Prang's life-like gradations of color and tone. This necessitated running a card off as many as 17 times. Beautiful conventional borders in pastels and gold were used, plus a luxurious fringe. Prices ranged from 25 cents to a dollar each.

Louis Prang would not tolerate low priced, poor quality competition, so when cheap greeting cards began to flood the American market in 1890, he abruptly ceased publishing Christmas cards. By 1910 many of today's

PRANG CARD FACTORY

Notice to Employees

Store must be open 6:00 A.M. to 9:00 P.M. the year round. Store must be swept; counters, base shelves, and showcases dusted. Lamps trimmed, filled and chimneys cleaned, pens made, doors and windows opened, a pail of water, also a bucket of coal, brought in before breakfast (if there is time to do so) and attend to customers who call.

Store must not be opened on the Sabbath unless necessary, and then only for a few minutes.

Each Employee who is in the habit of smoking Spanish cigars, being shaved at the barber's, going to dances and other places of amusement will surely give his employer reason to be suspicious of his integrity and honesty.

Each Employee must not pay less than $5.00 per year to the church and must attend Sunday School regularly.

Men Employees are given one evening a week for courting, and two if they go to prayer-meeting.

Presumably he who valued sentiment on a Christmas card could not ignore love entirely!

The meticulous attention to detail evident in Prang's art work was combined with equal attention to every detail of running his factory successfully. He expected that same measure of devotion to work from his employees.

SAN FRANCISCO COUNTY DEPUTIES

The 1964-65 Deputies of San Francisco county celebrated their first anniversary with a cocktail party, hosted by their Supervising Deputy Kathryn Davis. P.G.P. Fern Adams journeyed down from Willows to surprise her San Francisco girls, much to the delight of everyone. The decor of the evening was pink roses and the Zenith star in her honor. It was a compliment to both Kathryn and Fern that all but three deputies were present. Two of them were vacationing and one was ill.

After a most happy two hours, all retired to the Old Colony restaurant for dinner. The chairman of the evening, Katherine Young, carried out the same theme and paper gifts were exchanged amid much laughter. Everyone had so much fun, it was unanimously voted to make the party an annual affair.

LUNCHEON

A luncheon honoring Mrs. Everal Mallette, Grand Marshal, was held at Table Mountain Tavern, Oroville. Eighty-three members of the two local parlors of Native Daughters and Native Sons, also from Chico, Marysville, Yuba City, Redding, Quincy, Paradise, Placerville, Sutter, Live Oak, Wheatland, St. Helena, Willows and Napa attended. Mrs. John D. Sutherland, as toastmistress, introduced the dignitaries present.

Colors of orange and green were featured in the table decorations, with miniature orange trees being used for centerpieces.

JAMES LICK

The November meeting was very short. After the meeting President Anna Ghisilli and her committee, Jaredna Johnson, Ann Shaughnessy, Georgia Robinson and Mable Fisher had a special program prepared. It was the Parlor's 45th anniversary. Mabel McGown Walker, the only active charter member was the evening's hostess. Mabel cut the cake, blew out the candles, one for each five years, and told many stories of things that had happened in the past when James Lick was young. Jaredna read an account from the January, 1922 issue of the Grizzly Bear, when Clarence Hunt was the editor, giving full account of the Parlor's institution and first installation. Jaredna also read minutes of one of the early day meetings of James Lick.

Most of the names on James Lick's charter are members that have long ago passed on to Grand Parlor on High and are no doubt looking down and probably saying to themselves "Well done" and "just keep going for at least five more years." Ella Hillman, the other charter member, was unable to be present on account of illness. PGP Emily E. Ryan gave a very interesting talk on being Native Daughters. The affair was extra well attended.

RICHMOND

A delightful evening with a potluck dinner followed by games was held for members and guests of Richmond No. 147. The chairmen for the event were Gladys Figueriredo and Thelma Andrade. The membership of the Parlor was increased by two new members Georgia Zehrung and Leslie Brentlinger. Georgia is the stepdaughter of Marshal May Zehrung. DGP Ethel Murphy of Cerrito de Oro No. 306 of El Cerrito attended the ceremony. Refreshments were served after the meeting.

Thelma Andrade, Gladys Figueriredo and President Mamie Luiz were chairmen for two very successful rummage sales held this year. These sales help to defray the costs of the delegates to Grand Parlor. Past President Esmeralda Covell and First Vice President Henrietta Frietas presented a California Bear Flag at the dedication cermonies for the John F. Kennedy Plaza in San Pablo. The flag was donated by the Richmond Parlor. Many state dignitaries attended the dedication.

The four parlors of District Four: Berendos No. 23, Camellia No. 41, Lassen View No. 98 and Hiawatha No. 140 held a joint meeting to welcome Grand President, Annette Caiocca, on the occasion of her official visit. The meeting was held at the Native Daughter Hall in Redding and was preceded by a dinner at the Chuck Wagon.

Other dignitaries attending the meeting were GM Hazel Mallette; SDDGP Ella Brownfield and DGPs Viola Lowden, Dorothy Rose, Frances Davenport and Patricia Griffin.

Berendos Parlor with President Dorothy Rose presiding, initiated twelve candidates into the order—six for Camellia Parlor, five for Berendos Parlor and one for Hiawatha Parlor. Other parlors presented parts of the ritualistic work. Mazie Knighten, president of Hiawatha Parlor presided during the opening, the escort and during balloting. Margaret Cross, president of Camellia Parlor presided during Good of the Order and during the closing ceremonies. Grand President, Annette Caiocca presented a 25-year pin to Alice Kirkpatrick, a past president of Hiawatha Parlor.

Baskets of California poppies decorated the meeting hall and arrangements of California poppies were used to decorate the dinner tables and the refreshment table. Clarice Pasley and her committee served refreshments following the meeting. Alice Kirkpatrick, Alice Fealy and Hilda Heryford were in charge of the table decorations and Edith Lowry in charge of hall decorations.

Committee on Young Women's Activities

by
Marie C. Landini, G.I.S.
State Chairman

THE PRESERVATION OF the many accomplishments of our Order and all we hope to achieve in the future, depends in a great measure on our ability to attract young women to join our Order, and of even greater importance, to become active participants in the tasks involved in furthering the interests of the Order of the Native Daughters of the Golden West.

The need for providing activity for the young members of our Order was recognized a long time ago, and in 1940 the first committee was appointed. During the first ten years of the committee's existence, its aims were clear and emphasis was placed on urging Subordinate Parlors to start and maintain a Young Womens Activities Committee. This program enjoyed moderate success, as a considerable number of Parlors reported activities engaged in by their young members. During the next decade and a half, changes occurred in the scope of the program. Parlors reported that their young members were no longer interested in engaging in activities for their own enjoyment, but preferred to be of service in their communities by sponsoring groups outside the Order. Some of the State Committees hoped to stimulate interest by sponsoring an annual event, such as a ski trip. One year a contest was held and prizes offered to the Parlors who developed the best community service project based on need and originality. During this period dissatisfication crept in, as some Parlors felt that to sponsor a Young Womens Activities Committee caused a split within the Parlor. Others were annoyed as they felt the young members were interested only in their own pursuits.

After studying the reports of the past, the State Committee for 1965-1966, felt a re-building program was needed at the Subordinate Parlor level, as a very few Parlors reported activity. We urged the Parlors to appoint a committee and to start some type of activity program, regardless of how modest in scope at the beginning, and regardless of how few young women are on the roster of the Parlor.

This year, we are stressing that the Parlors continue with the program, as the Parlors who seem to be the most successful, are those who have a continuing program. We are also asking the Parlors who have not participated in the past, to accept the challenge and appoint and support an active committee.

In Parlors, where young members are made to feel welcomed and are integrated into the various responsibilities and programs of the group, a special activity may not be necessary. However, when it is essential in order to hold their interest, it will take effort, understanding, patience and the cooperation of the membership of all ages, if we hope to progress and achieve our ultimate goal of preparing future leaders for our Order.

DEPUTIES

The School of Instruction with Chairman of the Grand Trustees Nancy Conens the Instructor was well attended by supervisors, deputies and members from Santa Clara, San Mateo and San Francisco Counties. It was one of the most complete days of instructions held in San Francisco for several years. Nomination and election with installation of officers was held before lunch.

After lunch the correct way to conduct an "Official Visit" was gone through. The correct manner in which to collect the pass word, the ballot and regalia marches were all perfectly done showing the correct manner for the officers to hold their regalia when the ragalia march is held at the close of all meetings.

San Francisco SDDGP Marie Feil and her deputies were the officers installed with the Supervisors and their deputies of Santa Clara and San Mateo Counties acting as Grand and Past Grand Officers for both installation and the official visit.

The annual San Francisco County Deputy reception h o n o r i n g our Grand President Annette Caiocca was well attended. With these two affairs behind them SDDGP Marie Feil and her deputies are looking forward to the term's only play night. This year it will be held on the regular meeting night December 22 in the hall where they meet. Chairman Verna Cummings says it will be a dinner but is keeping it all a deep dark secret. A social hour will be held before dinner and Santa Claus will arrive after dinner to distribute the gifts.

JR. UNIT NEWS

SEQUOIA JUNIORS

Sequoia Unit No. 27 was well represented, at their past year's annual Junior N.D.G.W. Conference held in Redding, California.

The handsome perpetual trophy, awarded for increase in membership, was awarded this Junior Unit. Elected to serve as Junior State Officers for the coming year were Toni Beshore, Sequoia Unit's Junior President, now Junior State Sentinel and Kathy Slater, now Junior State Trustee. The Unit's year book was awarded the first place cash award. The book was dedicated to Mrs. Anthony Rodriquez, who has served as advisor for ten years. The book considered outstanding, was edited and compiled by Janet Gill. Miss Gill, a Junior Past President has completed her year in office as a Junior State Trustee.

Recommendations by Sequoia Junior Unit included that the seeds of California's State Flower, the poppy (Eschscholtzia) be available to the Junior Units for planting all over California. This recommendation is in keeping with Mrs. Lyndon Johnson's "Keep America Beautiful Project". The poppy has been selected as the favorite flower of Grand President Annette Caiocca and for Mrs. Byron Doyle, Chairman Advisor to Sequoia Junior Unit No. 27 for her work in the Golden Gate District, Garden and Beautification Chairman, California Federation of Women's Clubs. Recommendation was also made for certificates to be presented award winners for future place in their year books. Both recommendations received excellent support and were accepted.

Over 168 young girls and advisors attended the Junior Conference. Ann Shaw, retiring Junior N.D.G.W. State Chairman, introduced Mrs. Nancy J. Conens, new Junior N.D.G.W. State Chairman. Mrs. Conens' singing of "When you Wish upon a Star" really touched everyone present.

CHRISTMAS CARDS . . .

greeting card publishers were in business, and that year is regarded as the beginning of the modern era in card design. The exchange of greeting cards grew rapidly right after World War I, to be followed by the introduction some years later of offset printing which made real beauty of design possible at low cost. Now days there are Christmas cards of all qualities, offering an almost limitless appeal to any personal taste. There are cards suitable for almost any human relationship; and sometimes even for non-human relationships. A card can now be purchased that reads, "From our dog to your dog."

So the Christmas card greeting business has developed almost within the lifetimes of some people still living today — from the dreams and craftsmanship of a poor immigrant boy.

It is now conceded that Louis Prang, known as "the father of the Christmas card," made the best greeting cards yet produced. He passed away at the age of 85 after touring the world. A Prang Christmas card is now regarded as an heirloom, to be cherished through the years.

EVELYN WHITE, MATRIARCH OF TAYLOR RANCH

(Part II)

THEIR ANSWER to the syndicate was a firm and decisive no, and they went to the office of District Attorney S. S. Hahn and swore out affidavits for self-protection against being implicated in any way. The red ink in the Guardian's ledger eventually took its toll and forced their paths to part. But each was to make deeper footprints. Evelyn had become a crusader for East Los Angeles, and what could have been more natural than establishing a cultural center?

"Creative people were mountains to me. When you look at a mountain there is an aura of light around it. That is the way creative people appear to me," she says. She found a painting in the window of the office of Lou Osborne, an East Los Angeles businessman. Could this be one of the poppy seeds her grandfather had told her of? Not knowing where the funds would come from, but with the zeal of a visionary she rented a deserted, old two-story building at 4558½ Whittier Blvd., East Los Angeles. It would be a place where people could enjoy good paintings and good music. It would be an open house for all the people to celebrate the finer things. It was called Poppy Trails. Evelyn sat up late many nights thinking of ways to support what was to become the first art association of East Los Angeles. She visited manufacturers and solicited box ads to hang in the Poppy Trails.

"I had seen my first Paul Lauritz painting at Ruth McClintock's home and I thought it was the most beautiful I had ever seen. I had met Paul and his wife, Mary, through Ruth in about 1918." Evelyn called her old friend, Paul Lauritz. She asked him to come out to Poppy Trails and advise her how to get the artists interested. Lauritz, who had been asked to help start an art and cultural center

The Birth of the Christ-child

by Virginia Petty Tidball

IMMORTALIZED, the village lay
Sufficient unto any day.
Bethelhem was born to live
For Micah's hope, a Savior give.

And now another day is cast
To add completeness to the past.
I, Joseph had a part to play
In the fulfillment of this day.

Through the sheepcote gate I went,
Not knowing where to go, but bent
On finding a midwife for Mary.
I moved in haste, I could not tarry.

Down the narrow winding street
Upon the cobblestone, my feet
Tapped the urgency of need
As my worn sandals gained in speed.

. . . and the shepherds in the fields saw His star

A Hebrew woman I must find;
When a voice melodious — kind,
Out of the garment of the night
Spoke to me in my mad flight.

"Joseph, Joseph! Pause and walk
With me and listen while I talk."

Look at the generation of old
And see; did ever anyone trust in
The Lord and was confounded?
Or did any abide in His fear, and Was forsaken? Or whom did He ever Despise that called upon Him?"

"Listen, Joseph to the singing
Of the angels; they are bringing
Peace and joy; for He is come!
My Son at last on earth is come!"

These words I could not understand,
I hid my face with my calloused hand —
I turned — and as I moved to go
Inside I found the cave aglow.
I removed the sandals from my feet.
I could not take a step because my need
Was great for someone who would lead the way.

There were shepherds kneeling — with the bleat
Of lambs the stars shone forth, and Mary — freed
From earth for such a Hallowed Day — O day
Of Days! For Heaven's light knew not defeat, Nor could the light of mortal man exceed
So great a light and like the sun survey
The dawning of a day new-born and meet
Upon the edge of time and supercede
The Old — and bring Good Will and Peace,
And Say,
"This is My beloved Son
In whom I am well pleased . . ."

Mary, gentle, kind,
Cried out, "Abba Father!
I am exalted, bringing Light of Lights from Heaven to earth,
With the Angels singing!"
From the fields the shepherds came Wondering — worshipping His name.

Bethlehem was not too small,
Not to give Him birth.
Wondrous Love has now begun
Down the breadth of earth.
From the chambers of the sky,
Time was in the making.
Darkness now had shed her robe,
Day came with the breaking.

"Sleep, my baby, Love is come!
Sleep, O sleep, my little One,
Sleep, O sleep, my little One."

The oxen held their bite,
The ewe, her lamb.
The doves were asleep on the rafters.
The donkey at ease in his stall.
The shepherds were warming
Their hands at the burning fagots
I had laid by the crude stone wall.

The hay in the manger,
Sweet as summer.
The angels were singing their song;
A light shone forth from the manger,
A light that would never go out.

A robin on the roof-top was singing:
Little Jesus is born —
Little Jesus is born,
Little Jesus is born today!

I, Joseph, with my sandals in my hand
Had stood immobile on the steps of stone.
My face from such immortal light was banned —
Thus veiled from it, I stood apart, alone.
As I drew near to gaze within the stall,
Mary spoke to me, saying,
"Joseph, why did you not come? The skies
Had sent their star to guide — and the heaven sang
Her song. Come Joseph! Witness with your eyes
The 'Babe of Bethlehem' the shepherds' tongue
Has praised . . . His harp is in my hands,
His rest shall not be silent, for out of heaven
His voice is heard — for who is able to suggest
Or who interpret the wonders of His choice,
And I, the receptacle of His desire —
I cannot answer — nor shall I enquire."

" 'As the wings of doves over their nestlings,
So also are the wings of the spirit over my Heart;
My heart is delighted and exults. I believed;
Therefore I am at rest. For faithful is He
In whom I have believed; He has richly blessed me'
For He has spoken to me saying,
'For unto you is born this day in the City of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord'."

where any artist would have the opportunity to show his work, climbed the stairs the first time, saw the box ads for White King Soap and Mrs. Cubberson's Crackers, and burst out in laughter. "But, you know," Evelyn smiles, "Paul became the biggest consumer they ever had."

Visitor talks with Evelyn White about painting.

Evelyn then started a cooking school for the Edison Co. and many persons began coming to Poppy Trails for lunch. No one ever knew if another had been unable to pay for his lunch. They paid if they were able to. Only four artists, Lauritz, Osborne, Cyril Aldrich and Ralph Holmes, exhibited at the first show there. But Evelyn's friends and the friends of Lauritz came, and there were more people and more artists for future shows. There was Carrie Jacobs Bond of "I Love You Truly" fame, introduced to Evelyn by Burr MacIntosh, a newspaperman; there were L. E. Behymer, founder of the Philharmonic Orchestra, and John Steven McGroarty, Poet Laureate: Bebe Daniels, her mother and Minta Durfee of the films; Orpha Klinker, who painted "The Four Freedoms" which hang in the halls of Congress; Arthur Baum, a newspaperman; Howard Loy, Darwin Duncan, Louie Goss, Will Foster, Jimmy Swinnerton, all artists; Judges Swain, Woods and Georgia Bullock; old friends, the Taylors, Gene Biscailuz and Leo Carrillo. They all came, the colorful, the famous and successful, the glamorous.

And Evelyn wasn't going to let it stop there. There had never been a radio station in East Los Angeles. Many had tried and failed. Within twenty-four hours after conceiving the idea, there was a remote station in the Poppy Trails. She had convinced the manufacturers a cultural show would be an ideal way to advertise.

"Yes, but you were the one who knew all those marvelous artists," Evelyn says. "Remember, you said 'Would you like to have Will Foster? I think I can get him.' Will Foster was the best portrait painter in the country at that time. You called Will and told him I was coming over. When I arrived I knocked on the door and one of the biggest men I have ever seen in my life answered. I told him who I was and that you had sent me and, oh, that warm, wonderful smile that lighted his face."

Lauritz' grin widened.

"He was a big man. I supposed he weighed around 245 pounds. That was undoubtedly the finest show Los Angeles had ever had. There were fifteen of the country's top artists at a round table discussion for a radio show. There were Snowden, Foster, Daniel Beecher and Mrs. Beecher, Christian Von Snyder, Thorwell Probs, Margaret Johnson, Penrhen Stanlaus, John Hubbard Rich, Martha Baxter and many others.

"There were about 75 artists altogether. Evelyn had tables pulled out all over the place and before the evening was over they had painted pictures on all the table tops, and Will Foster donated a painting to the Poppy Trails."

Many clubs came there to hold meetings. Evelyn helped organize and is a charter member of the East Los Angeles Business and Professional Women's Club. Her efforts in helping to form the Lions Club resulted in her becoming the only woman Lions Club member in the world, a distinction which required special permission from the national organization. The BPW Club played an important role in bringing the junior college to East Los Angeles. When there was discussion of shifting the site to Monterey Park, members appeared before the Board of Education, arguing that East Los Angeles was better able to support a college at that time. They won their point. When the United Religious Congress was started, Art Baum, Evelyn's friend from the Express days, was made chairman of the committee. The group asked Evelyn to form a women's association of the URC. She did and became chairman. The URC promoted the financing and construction of the building across from the college. The women's association furnished it and now maintains the building and grounds.

Late in the 1940's the crepe paper hanging in the Poppy Trails scarcely concealed the cracks in the plaster and the ceiling was of questionable stability. Evelyn badly needed to find a new location. About that time one of the Taylors asked her to help give a dinner for 500 people. They visited the old Taylor Ranch, sadly grown over with weeds and neglected from disuse. Evelyn told the Taylors to leave the details to her. As many tables and chairs were being moved in, Evelyn awakened to a new opportunity. With much effort the old ranch could be the ideal place to continue her work. She prepared the food and planned the festivities. With her inborn sense of hospitality the dinner was a tremendous success. Afterward she approached the Taylors and presented her idea. They were pleased to have the ranch used in this way and gave their consent.

The First Nowell

The first Nowell the angels did say
Was to certain poor shepherds in fields as they lay;
In fields as they lay keeping their sheep,
On a cold winter's night that was so deep.

Nowell, Nowell, Nowell, Nowell,
Born is the King of Israel.

They looked up and saw a star
Shining in the east beyond them far,
And to the earth it gave great light,
And so it continued both day and night.

Nowell, Nowell, Nowell, Nowell,
Born is the King of Israel.

And by the light of that same star
Three wise men came from country far;
To seek for a king was their intent,
And to follow the star wherever it went.

Nowell, Nowell, Nowell, Nowell,
Born is the King of Israel.

This star drew nigh to the northwest,
O'er Bethlehem it took its rest,
And there it did both stop and stay
Right over the place where Jesus lay.

Nowell, Nowell, Nowell, Nowell,
Born is the King of Israel.

Then entered in those wise men three Full rev'rently upon their knee,
And offered there in his presence
Their gold, and myrrh, and frankincense.

Nowell, Nowell, Nowell, Nowell,
Born is the King of Israel.

Then let us with one accord
Sing praises to our heav'nly Lord;
That hath made heav'n and earth of naught,
And with his blood mankind hath bought.

Nowell, Nowell, Nowell, Nowell,
Born is the King of Israel.

A WAY TO A HAPPY NEW YEAR
by Robert Brewster Beattie

To leave the old with a burst of song,
To recall the right and forgive the wrong;
To forget the thing that binds you fast
To the vain regrets of the year that's past;
To have the strength to let go your hold
Of the not-worth-while of the days grown old;
To dare go forth with a purpose true
To the unknown task of the world that's new;
To help your brother along the road
To do his work and to lift his load;
To add your gift to the world's good cheer,
Is to have and to give a Happy New Year.

A New Year's Resolution

RECIPE FOR MAKING
EVERY DAY HAPPY

When you rise in the morning, form a resolution to make the day a happy one to a fellow-creature. It is easily done; a left-off garment to the man who needs it, a kind word to the sorrowful, an encouraging expression to the striving; trifles in themselves light as air will do it, at least for the twenty-four hours; and, if you are young depend upon it, it will tell when you are old; and, if you are old, rest assured it will send you gently and happily down the stream of human time to eternity. By the most simple arithmetical sum, look

Dedication of El Camino Real Bell at Belmont

Eileen Dismuke, P.G.P.

THE BELMONT Woman's Club, San Mateo County, formally presented an El Camino Real Bell to the City of Belmont. This presentation is the result of an inspiration which came to the club in July, 1965 when James Stacy Mellen, artist presented his conception of the El Camino Real Bell and the hills of Belmont in the drawing of a new masthead for The Belmont Courier, the city's only weekly newspaper. The slogan "Along the Path of the Padres" pointed up the fact that along the El Camino Real running through the City of Belmont there was no El Camino Real Bell in evidence. The suggestion for the placing of the bell was presented by Mrs. Byron Doyle, then President of Bonita Parlor No. 10, Redwood City, to Mrs. Jefferson Montgomery, then President of the Belmont Woman's Club. The project was accepted and Mrs. Boyle, together with Mrs. Bethel Walden, were appointed co-chairmen. Mrs. William Kempenich, President of the Belmont Woman's Club for the current year, carried the project over into her term. Funds for the bell were raised through donations and fund-raising events, and the club received a cash award for their entry in the Amateur Outdoor Gardens Section of the San Mateo County Fair and Floral Fiesta, for which the Garden Section of the club was responsible.

The Belmont Woman's Club is a member of Golden Gate District of the California Federation of Women's Clubs, and it is interesting to note that the El Camino Real project at the turn of the century came into being as a result of the interest of the Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. A. S. C. Forbes, who, as a young woman studying in Europe in the 1880's, became interested in the bells that hung in the famous cathedrals of Italy, France, Spain and Germany, learned of the bells which had found their way to California, to be hung in the historic Missions, became a resident of California soon after the turn of the century, and her interest in El Camino Real became a life-long avocation. Mrs. Forbes, in her book published for the first time in 1903, entitled "California Missions and Landmarks - El Camino Real", says in part: "In the seventeenth century the caminos reales of Spain were the envy of the world. They were beautified with trees, enhanced by picturesque ventas, or inns, and enriched with national and memorial monuments. With the discovery of America, Spain gave to her colony of California the attractive and pictur-

25 YEARS OF FLOATS

BELOW: 1958 float "Dreamers All". Representatives of both Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West work busily toward deadline and parade-time.

TOP: 1962 entry "Preventing Forest Fires Around the World".

MIDDLE: 1963 entry "Raising the Bear Flag at Sonoma". This won First Place in Class C.

BOTTOM: 1964 entry "A Prayer — Freedom from Forest Fires." This float again won First Place in Class C.

Actual smoke came from the camp fire and real water poured from the father's bucket. At the center of the float was the "Family Tree" with animation of a mother bird feeding her family of small birds in the nest and a father squirrel traveling "to work" on a branch of the tree. Nearby were animals of the forest including a deer which was animated. The back of the float depicted the Great Seal of California.

More than half a million blossoms were used on the float, including roses, chrysanthemums, delphinium, orchids, redwood bark from the high Sierras and cedar boughs. The float was 20 feet high, 55 feet long and 17 feet wide.

Margaret Pacheco, of Cien Años No. 303 was NDGW State Chairman and Joseph Phelps, Pasadena Parlor No. 296 was State Chairman for the NSGW.

This year marks the Silver Anniversary for the NSGW-NDGW floats to appear in the Tournament of Roses Parade.

The beginning of a New Year is a time for making resolutions, the first and foremost of which should be to make this a better world for our children. To work for the furtherance of peace through the World.

It has been an honor and a privilege to serve as your Grand President during the past six months, to renew friendships, to hear of the many activities carried on by the Subordinate Parlors. My Official Visits have been heartwarming; cordial hospitality and good fellowship was manifested in every Parlor visited.

From the reports and ritualistic work exemplified at the Official Visits, the Meetings of Instructions were well received. My thanks to those who conducted these Schools and to the officers who attended.

A very happy New Year to each member and may the year 1967 bring health, happiness and prosperity and may you continue to serve and enjoy your membership in the Order of the Native Daughters of the Golden West.

EVELYN WHITE, MATRIARCH OF TAYLOR RANCH

(Part III)

AT THE REQUEST of the Taylors, in 1950 Sheriff Biscailuz presented Evelyn a large golden key giving her custody of the ranch. It was to be used in any was she saw fit to promote and preserve the cultural heritage of the area. While there was no direct access to the ranch, it did not hinder the great number which turned out to witness the ceremony that day. There were 1,150 persons who came to cheer and show their gratitude to the inspiring lady who had given so much to them and to the community. Nixon Stanbridge, Evelyn's beloved husband "Nick," a member of a pioneer Whittier family, died shortly after they moved to the ranch.

Evelyn is founder, charter member and past president of the Poppy Trail Parlor of the Native Daughters of the Golden West. The Native Daughters have placed a plaque on the barn of Taylor Ranch designating it "House of Hospitality" and a historical landmark. The barn, completed in the spring of 1887, was the first redwood barn in the area. The old cider mill at the ranch, over 100 years old, remains operative. The ranch house was the first in this area to have electricity. The oil well on the ranch was the only one in the area for many years. The Fischer piano, built in 1887, is still there, and the original stove at the ranch is still used today. It is over 70 years old and resembles the huge ceramic kilns used to bake pottery.

The ranch is now known as the Southland Art Association. Purpose of the association is to encourage artists and to help create art associations in other communities. The group assisted in the formation of the Pico-Rivera Art Association. Members of the association come from all over California, and many who were in at the beginning have become quite successful. For the newcomer it is difficult to distinguish the great from the aspiring at Taylor Ranch. With humility the successful pioneers will tell you that an artist never ceases to learn.

Evelyn puts baking pan in 70 year old oven which is still used today. It resembles the huge ceramic kilns used for baking pottery.

The spark and the never-flagging enthusiasm behind this achievement still lives in Evelyn White, who is active in her community today perhaps more so than ever. The weekly meetings of the Southland Art Association buzz with activity. Others meeting at the ranch are the BPW Club, Mothers of the Windsor Boys Choir, Montebello Soroptimists (Evelyn is a charter member), and East Los Angeles - Montebello Breakfast Club, and the Montebello Lapidary Society. Wednesdays are set aside for special occasions and open house for artists from all over California. On Saturdays the Barn Colony Artists meet there to paint and Evelyn serves lunch. Charge? A kitty and your conscience.

In the 1900's Evelyn used a large inheritance to found and finance the Newsboys Club on Spring St. in Los Angeles, a sanctuary from the "rat race" of the streets. Some of the boys still visit her. Possibly some owe their success today to her encouragement.

There are few like Evelyn White; people who shun self-acclaim, yet find their reward in helping others reach their goals. Many have drawn upon her well of resources before drinking the waters of success, being one of the poppy seeds. Evelyn White has spent a lifetime nurturing the seeds of talent. It is hoped that as each one rises toward the sun that Evelyn, in her own way is watching poppies bloom again.

Mrs. Buttimer and Mrs. Parnisari each spoke briefly. The lodge room was beautifully decorated with large baskets of chrysanthemums placed in front of the altar and in front of each station. Carolynne Brown and Marie Devita were in charge of decorations in the lodge room.

Following the formal business session members adjourned to the banquet room where delicious refreshments prepared by Jane Ezettie and Beverly Hafeli, co-chairmen, assisted by Billye Brown, Eileen Hanna, Peggy Ankunding, Peggy Tepner, Leland Ankunding, Jennie Harms, and Melanie Hinton, were served on tables decorated in the fall theme. Cardboard turkeys and a horn of plenty noted the coming holiday season with emphasis on Thanksgiving.

SANTA MARIA

The party of the year for Native Daughters "A Night in Portugal" was held in DES Hall on December 6, sponsored by the Soledad Mission Restoration Committee of Santa Maria No. 276. This most successful affair was attended by 150 members and friends. Those attending were greeted at the door by the Mmes. Ida Hawkins, President; Florence Green, Barbara Sumner and Adeline Begg.

The table in the entrance hall was decorated with a bouquet of red bouganvillea in a green container on a white table cover with red and green streamers; the colors of the flag of Portugal; white, red and green. Musical instruments finished off the display. In the main hall, on the platform stood the American, California Bear, and Portuguese flags, arranged by Mrs. Mary Teixeira. In the dining room Mr. and Mrs. Lester Hays had decorated each table with white table cloths, with red and green crepe paper streamers. A wine bottle with white candle adorned the center of each table with grapes at the base of the wine bottle. Travel posters of Portugal hung on the walls in the dining room, entrance, and main hall.

The chicken and linguesa were barbecued by Messrs. Clifford Howard, Elmer and Robert Simas and Melvin Souza. Cecil Freitas and Lester Hays poured coffee. The dinner was served by the Mission Restoration committee, Mmes. Helen and Janet Howard, Rose Souza, Mabel Lopes, Rose Nunes, and Elsie Hayes, assisted by Helen Freitas, Margaret Silva, Laura Simas, Dianne and Debbie Kester and Mary Azevedo. Mrs. Sue Krafft was the cashier.

Before the program started in the main hall, President Ida Hawkins gave a brief resumé of the Mission Soledad Restoration program which has been a major project of the local Parlor for many years. The restored white chapel of Mission Nuestra Señora de la Soledad, "Our Lady of Solitude", was dedicated in 1954. When the rubble was cleared all that could be utilized of the original structure was the front corner of the Chapel. Since then the padres' wing has been rebuilt; Mission Bells dedicated, and Chapel light fixtures installed. Arillaga rose bushes have been planted in the rose garden. Mrs. Audrey Silva esque system of civilization that evolved the chain of twenty-one missions, three pueblos, and four presidios, all linked together by a camino real, or royal road. In place of ventas, missions were built, and the road that joined them was embellished by the unfettered beauties of luxuriant sylva, flora, and wild vegetation, varied with the silver trail of waterfall, and the deep green-blue of billowy sea."

Mrs. Forbes further relates the beginning of the El Camino Real Association of California as a movement to propose a California road to be known as El Camino Real which was formally presented before the Sixth Biennial of the General Federation of Women's Clubs held in Los Angeles in May, 1902, at which time the project was unanimously endorsed. It was presented through the General Art Committee of the club, of which Mrs. Albert H. Brockway was chairman, and Miss Anna B. Pitcher, director of the Pasadena Exhibition Association, who stated that the "California Franciscan Missions as 'Stations' on the Camino Real were the most important art treasures in the possession of the United States." The plan which evolved as a result of the adoption of this project included: Tracing the original road of Spanish California from San Diego to San Francisco Solano and recording the history and traditions of the road; proving adaptibility of portions of the road as a State Highway; petitioning the County Boards of Supervisors to assist the movement; petitioning the State of California to survey the existing portions of the El Camino Real and to place milestones to record its history; and interesting residents and strangers in creating a Memorial Highway.

Mrs. Forbes, of Los Angeles, was then State Chairman of the California History and Landmarks Department of the State Federation of Women's Clubs. She succeeded Miss Pitcher, who due to illness had been forced to resign her chairmanship. However, before submitting her resignation, Miss Pitcher had presented the plan proposed by the Federation of Women's Clubs to the Grand Parlor of the Native Daughters of the Golden West in June, 1902, at the Grand Parlor held that year in San Francisco, and the project was unanimously endorsed by the Grand Parlor.

Mrs. Forbes and Mrs. C. R. Olney of Oakland together outlined a plan for a state organization whose purpose would be the restoration of El Camino Real. A meeting was held on January 3, 1904 in Los Angeles to formulate plans for a Camino Real Association. Chambers of Commerce, Native Sons and Daughters, Board of Supervisors, Historical Societies, Women's Clubs, Automobile Clubs and many commercial organizations were invited to attend, especially Native Sons and Daughters, with the result that the project was formalized and a committee of fifteen was appointed to make arrangements and to draft a call for a convention to organize a permanent State El Camino Real Association. The convention met in Santa Barbara on April 19 and 20, 1904, with representatives present from all areas of the State of California. The Executive Committee, elected at this meeting to carry forward the plans, included: Mrs. Forbes, Senator Joseph R. Knowland, Rt. Rev. Archbishop George Montgomery, and other prominent citizens from various areas of the State. Miss Eliza D. Keith, Past Grand President of the Native Daughters of the Golden West, and Chairman of History and Landmarks for the Grand Parlor, was appointed as a member of a sub-committee.

In 1906 a decision was made to mark the route of the Old Mission Road by a distinctive, emblematic and appropriate guidepost. The design was the result of a contest sponsored by the El Camino Real Association, the names of the contestants not revealed until the winning design had been selected. Mrs. Forbes created the El Camino Real Bell design which was approved by the Association and the design patent and copyright was secured by Mrs. Forbes in that year.

"PRESERVING THE PAST FOR THE FUTURE"

VOLUME XIV FEBRUARY, 1967 NUMBER 6

St. Valentine's Day

Among the delightful legends that hover about the origin of St. Valentine's Day is a belief during the Middle Ages that birds began to mate on February 14.

In his Parliament of Foules, Chaucer wrote:

For this was Seynt Valentyne's Day
When ever foul cometh there to choose his mate.

In the poem, To his Valentine, Drayton wrote:

Each little bird this tide
Doth choose her beloved peer,
Which constantly abide
In wedlock all the year.

The poet, Gay, does not credit birds with actual marriage, but he does show how a maid finds a husband:

Last Valentine, the day when birds of kind
Their paramours with mutual chirpings find,
I early rose, just at the break of day,
Before the sun had chased the stars away.
A-field I Went, amid the morning dew
To milk my kine (for so should housewives do)
Thee first I spied—and the first swain we see,
In spite of fortune shall our true love be.

Actually, the method that Gay suggests for finding a mate seems just as sensible as using the computer methods so highly advertised today.

WASHINGTON

On that name no eulogy is expected. It cannot be.

To add brightness to the sun,—or glory to the name of Washington, is alike impossible. Let no one attempt it.

In solemn awe we pronounce the name, and in its naked, deathless splendor, leave it to shine on.

—Abraham Lincoln

LINCOLN, THE MAN OF THE PEOPLE

Up from log cabin to the Capitol,
One fire was on his spirit, one resolve—
To send the keen ax to the root of wrong,
Clearing a free way for the feet of God,
The eyes of conscience testing every stroke,
To make his deed the measure of a man.
He built the rail-pile as he built the State,
Pouring his splendid strength through every blow:
The grip that swung the ax in Illinois
Was on the pen that set a people free.

—Edwin Markham

MEETING THE CHALLENGE

by Myrtle S. Degan / Historian of the Order

Pioneer Hall at Jackson where Ursula, the first Native Daughter Parlor was organized.

WHEN THAT SMALL group of young women met in Jackson, seventy-seven years ago, to establish the Native Daughters of the Golden West, they could not have realized how the Order would grow until it is represented in every corner of the State of California — nor the challenges which would confront them from that time on. But as the occasions arose and the emergencies occurred, those young women, and the new members who joined them, met those challenges, and the traditions established by them have been carried on with credit to the Order and to the members composing it.

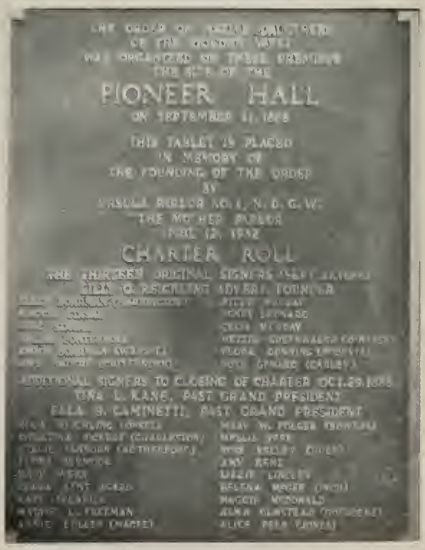

As women became more emancipated and their interests spread beyond the confines of home, school and church, they began to extend their influence into civic and political fields, as well as actively participating in improvement and welfare projects.

Each of you are aware of the challenges that have been met in your own communities — if a list of these were compiled beginning with the date of the institution of your Parlor, you would be amazed and gratified at their scope and magnitude. As we go along from day to day, meeting the little challenges, we do not always realize how — like small deposits in the savings bank — they total up over the years into a record of truly great accomplishment.

Let us reminisce a little. In 1900, when the Order was still a fledgling, the Grand Parlor received a communication requesting assistance for the victims of a fire which had occurred in Portland, Oregon. Although the membership was small, and the financial resources of the Order limited, the Grand Parlor sent a small contribution. This was the first of many responses to such calls for help.

There were times when the suggestions for new activities to be undertaken by the Order met with opposition by more conservative members or those who felt the responsibilities too great an obligation. When

TWENTIETH ANNIVERSARY

CELEBRATING its 20th year as a productive unit of the state-wide Native Daughters of the Golden West, Beverly Hills Parlor No. 289 marked the occasion with a gala birthday party on January 18, 1967. It was on that date back in 1947 that the parlor was instituted, the ceremony taking place in the Beverly Hills Women's Clubhouse. Ever since, the parlor has actively participated in civic affairs of the community and state.

Laura Blosdale, current parlor president, invited all past presidents and charter members of Beverly Hills Parlor to be honored guests at the 20th birthday event. Mrs. Blosdale also is a charter member. Invitations were sent to all Southland NDGW parlors to attend the festive affair. Former NDGW district supervisors and deputies who, during the past 20 years, have acted in advisory capacities to the parlor, also were special guests. June Goldie of San Gabriel Valley Parlor, grand vice-president of the state wide NDGW, headed a host of grand officers residing in the Los Angeles area attending the birthday party.

Mrs. Blosdale and her corps of parlor officers conducted initiation ceremonies for a group of candidates, as part of the evening's program. Assisting in the ceremony were Mrs. Fred Cain of Wilmington Parlor and Mrs. Fred A. Parsons of Toluca Parlor, respectively district supervisor and deputy to Beverly Hills Parlor. The two women were presented gifts by the parlor.

Laura Blosdale

During its 20 years as a busy Westside organization, Beverly Hills Parlor has taken part in many local civic and historical efforts. Several local historic landmarks have been "marked" with bronze plaques by the parlor. One of them is the site where Coldwater and Benedict Canyons join together at the base of the hill back of the Beverly Hills Hotel. This area was part of the historic 4500-acre Rancho Rodeo de las Aguas, now the city of Beverly Hills. Señora Maria Rita Valdez was granted this rancho in the very early 1800's. "Rodeo de las Aguas" means "gathering of the waters." The name was derived from the meeting of streams that, in rainy months, poured down the Coldwater and Benedict Canyons, creating a chain of swamps, spreading widely across the plain.

The original Santa Monica Schoolhouse, a beloved landmark for seventy-three years, also was dedicated by the parlor as a historic building. The little wooden schoolhouse with its ornate bell tower and four slender columns gracing the front porch entrance, still stands at its original location on Entrada Drive and Channel Road in the canyon. Today, of course, it is surrounded by the large, modern Canyon Elementary School complex. But it is still in use by the students as the school library. The school stands on historically important ground, because the land once was part of an original land grant, Rancho Boca de Santa Monica, granted in 1838 to Don Ysidro Reyes and Don Francisco Marquez by Mexican Governor Juan Bautista Alvarado. Don Marquez's great-great grand-daughter, Mrs. Earl (Clarita Marquez) Young, of Culver City, is a member of Beverly Hills Parlor.

Another historic structure marked by Beverly Hills Parlor is the French Hospital at College and North Hill Streets in down-town Los Angeles. This hospital has been in operation continually since the year 1869. A large colony of French people resided in the little pueblo de Los Angeles in the very early days of Los Angeles. In 1860, a group of French businessmen formed the Societe Francaise de Bienfaisance Mutuelle de Los Angeles. In 1869, the Societe purchased four lots on the hospital's present site, and erected the original one-story building. It still stands today, and still is in use, but surrounded by a large, modern, two-story French Hospital, beautifully landscaped.

Other historical landmarks "marked" officially by Beverly Hills Parlor are the Angels Flight in downtown Los Angeles, and the great Veterans' Administration Center, in Sawtelle.

The City of Beverly Hills was presented its first official city flag by Beverly Hills Parlor, a few years ago. Designed and hand-sewn by Miss Orpha Klinker, prominent local artist, it now stands in the Council Chamber at City Hall. Each year for many years, at Memorial Day ceremonies in Roxbury Park, held by the city of Beverly Hills, Beverly Hills Parlor has presented an American Flag and a California Bear Flag as a memorial. Senaida Sullivan, a past president of Beverly Hills Parlor and NDGW state civic participation and Americanism chairman, has always been active in this event. Mrs. Sullivan is a past president of the city of Los Angeles' Cultural Heritage Board which officially determines which historic-cultural monuments are worthy of preservation.

Senaida Sullivan

American flags and California Bear flags have been presented to the new West Los Angeles Library and the Pico-Robertson Library. Also some years ago, Beverly Hills Parlor presented a bronze plaque to Silverwood's store in downtown Los Angeles in memory of F. B. (Daddy) Silverwood, who wrote the lyrics for the melodic "I Love You, California!" Senaida Sullivan spear-headed the campaign of Native Sons and Daughters to declare this song the official State song.

Beverly Hills Parlor recently became a member of the Beverly Hills-Acapulco Sister City committee.

FEBRUARY MESSAGE

Each February we honor the birthdays of the two greatest patriots in our American life: Washington and Lincoln. Washington was the Father of his Country. He brought the United States of America into being; he unfurled a new flag among the nations of the world. Lincoln was the most loyal son of his Country; he made the United States immortal and its flag a mighty power among the nations. Their voices still ring through the centuries and the good they did will last for ever and ever!

I do hope that the Parlors in some way have celebrated the Birthdays of both these great men. This is an opportunity for the Americanism and Civic Participation committees to let others know of the work we do and thereby bring the needed publicity for our Order.

I am anxious for all committees to send their Parlor reports to the State Chairman by April 30th, so they can be included in the Grand Parlor reports. There is still time to get busy and promote these various projects.

To the Officers being installed at this time, my congratulations to you and I sincerely wish that you enjoy a most pleasant and successful term of Office which is so necessary for the welfare of your Parlor.

Dedication of El Camino Real Bell at Belmont

by Eileen Dismuke, P.G.P.

Mrs. Emma W. Lillie Humphrey when she was Grand President from 1909 to 1910.

MRS. FORBES states in her book: "In selecting the Bell as an appropriate marker for the road of the missions the fact was taken into consideration that at all times the paddres first hung a bell that they might call attention to the work at hand, that of erecting and blessing the cross; the Bell guideposts were erected to call attention to the work in hand, that of constructing El Camino Real, the road of the missions. Iron was selected for the material from which to construct the bells for the reason that the entire proposition to reconstruct El Camino Real is one of emblematic sentiment and the iron is intended to represent the iron will of the men who made the first roads in California. The Bell guide-post is of plain severe design to represent the simple, austere life led by these men of God. Brass or tinkling metal was intentionally not used, as the bell is intended as a memorial tribute to the work and lives of the Franciscan friars." The project of marking El Camino Real with the Mission Bell guidepost was placed in the hands of a committee, of which Mrs. Forbes was chairman, and the first bell was erected and dedicated with appropriate ceremonies on August 15, 1906, at the Plaza Church, Los Angeles, as a part of the festival to commemorate the birthday of Los Angeles.

The bells proved an inspiration, and after fifty-four of them had been erected south of Santa Barbara, Mrs. Alice Hare, chairman of California History and Landmarks for the San Francisco District of Women's Clubs, aroused interest among clubwomen of the north, and as a result twenty-five bells were erected. Native Sons and Daughters responded in like manner to the call of the bell, and Mrs. Emma W. Lillie Humphrey, then Grand President of the Native Daughters of the Golden West, and Miss Eliza D. Keith, State Chairman of History and Landmarks for the Native Daughters, were responsible for the placement of an additional twenty-four bells erected during Mrs. Humphrey's term of office in 1909-10.

In 1911 Mrs. Forbes was elected President of the Los Angeles Section of the El Camino Real Association. The name of the association became the El Camino Real Association of California, and a dues structure was set up, with one dollar per member dues. Two hundred and fifty bells were added to the chain under the guidance of Mrs. Forbes, and her husband who succeeded her as President, and at the time of the reprinting of her book, in 1915, there were four hundred bells along El Camino Real. Enumerating the number of bells placed in various counties, Mrs. Forbes reported that San Francisco had ten bells at mile intervals, and that San Mateo and Alameda Counties had almost a bell a mile, stating further that "the old road is well defined in these counties by this memorial tribute to the Spanish pioneers of California."

Quoting again from Mrs. Forbes: "The bells along the highway have two dates and the name El Camino Real cast upon them. The first date, 1769, is the date of the founding of the first mission, and the second, 1906, is the date when the first bell was erected, and therefore marks the time when the reconstruction of the old road began. Each bell weighs over one hundred pounds and is raised eleven feet from the ground, on a substantial standard of iron tub-

DEPUTIES

SDDGP Marie Feil gave each of her Deputies an old fashioned coal oil lamp to help light the way the remainder of the term at the Christmas Party. After a very lovely dinner prepared by Verna Cummings a short business meeting was held. Chairman for the Deputy Breakfast at the Home reported she had everything ready. Althea Demetrak of Orinda Parlor is doing a fine job as the breakfast chairman. DGP Anita Gillick was asked to take charge of the Charter Bus for the Home Coming meeting of Grand President Annette Caiocca the last week-end of May. Any one wanting to go with the Deputies please call Anita at 566-2178. After the meeting Santa Claus arrived. Thanks Jim McCarthy for acting as Santa! Helen McCarthy was Santa's little helper.

DEPUTIES ENTERTAINED

SDDGP Marge Skelly entertained at a luncheon for her 1962-1963 deputies in her home on Judah St., San Francisco. Twenty-three of the twenty-four deputies were present. It was a lovely sunny day and all enjoyed the delicious refreshments of chicken and all the trimmings and the renewal of friendships.

Gifts were exchanged and Mrs. Skelly presented each guest with a Santa Claus, a glassful of goodies, and a lovely tree-shaped bottle of perfume! The committee included Mmes. Warshaw, Soules, Shaw and Sprung. PGP Rhoda Roelling who was unable to attend was greatly missed.

SEQUOIA

With Edna C. Williams, the president of Sequoia No. 272, as hostess, the officers and members of the Parlor enjoyed open house and a cocktail party at her home in El Cerrito. She was assisted by Winifred McKee. Special guests included Dorothy Coates, DDGP from Piedmont and the newest bride of the Parlor, Martha Gold Welsh. Mrs. Welsh is a twenty-five year member of the Parlor and was married in a surprise ceremony on December 3rd. The rooms in the house were decorated with the Christmas theme with a white gaily decorated Christmas tree being the main attraction.

After an hour of visiting, the group sojourned to a new restaurant in San Pablo where a special decorated banquet table was set up, decorated with large red and white poinsettias and red and green ornaments. Clever and original nut cups with tiny Santa Clauses were at each place. Guests seated at the head table included Mrs. Williams, Mrs. Coates, Clara Barton, Mrs. McKee and Jeanette Anderson.

Following brief talks by Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Coates and humorous stories related by several guests, Mrs. Williams distributed the Christmas gifts that were brought to be exchanged, and each one exchanged holiday greetings.

HISTORICAL GROUP

Another certificate of achievement for community improvement was added to the collection of awards won by Los Angeles Metropolitan District of California History and Landmarks Club, CFWC. President, Mrs. Leo Monlon of Ladera Heights accepted the award at the club's January meeting from Mary Starbuck, representing the General Federation of Women's Clubs. Mrs Monlon is a member of Tierra del Rey No. 300, NDGW. Other Native Daughter members serving as officers or chairmen with Mrs. Monlon this year are: Mmes. John E. Barber, Roy E. Steckel, Florence Schoneman, Norma Stretch, Sophia Stewart and A. L. Cubbison.

The program speaker, Gran Parmelee, was introduced by Mrs. Barber, program chairman. Mr. Parmelee gave a comprehensive report of the El Camino Real bells and the founders of the club. He presented many interesting historical facts. Mrs. A. S. C. Forbes was founder and first president of the California History and Landmarks Club. Mr. and Mrs. Forbes, though not natives, devoted their lives to the perpetuation of historical landmarks. It was Mrs. Forbes also who originated the idea of casting flowers to sea to honor the Navy dead. The custom continues to be observed. Installation of the first bell was in the Plaza Church in Los Angeles in 1906. General A. L. Aguilar rang the bell and the padres blessed it. Native Sons and Daughters donated 24 bells, marking the route of the Camino Real from San Diego to Santa Barbara.

As the years went on, the bells disappeared. Interest in the bells is mounting and enthusiastic staunch Californians are seeing that bells are again being placed.

MISSION

The official visit of Grand President Annette Caiocca and her corps of officers to Mission No. 227, James Lick No. 220 and Portola No. 172 was well attended, there being over 100 in attendance. A "picked" team comprised of members from the three parlors presided. Mission Parlor's own president, Frances Greaves, was the "official" president for the evening, when she initiated into membership four members to Mission Parlor: Frances Barberini, Gayle Greaves, Darlene Roldan and Margene Fanucchi. The former two were her own daughters, while the latter two were her nieces. Their mother, also, is a member of Mission.

Twenty-five year pins were presented to Catharine Hanrahan, Lois Sweitzer, Theresa Estelita and Mildred Garcia of Mission No. 227, by Grand President Annette. Distinguished guests attending were GT Irene Bondanza, PGPs Evelyn I. Carlson, Emily Ryan and Jewel McSweeney and SDDGP Marie Feil of San Francisco No. 261.

Constance Warshaw of Mission Parlor was the General Chairman of the evening. Guests were served refreshments after the ceremonies at tables depicting the theme "June in January", with parasols scattered about. Eleven of the San Francisco County Deputies, attired in their "Alice Blue Gowns" formed the escort for Grand President Caiocca of La Junta Parlor.

Members of Mission Parlor and their friends chartered a bus to Reno for the weekend of January 28-29. There were two bus loads this year. Esther Carr of Mission is the general chairman for this project.

IN MEMORIAM

"There is a stream that all must cross,—
The River of Human Years:
Now lying calm in the summer light,
Now splashed with a rain of tears;

Where the noontide sun no shadow throws —
And time — is eternity."

ing set in a concrete base. A small brass plate with the donor's name upon it is attached to the standard. There is also a sign which directs the traveler to the missions, where:

'Those bells of the past, whose long-forgotten music still fills the wide expanse,
Tinging the sober twilight of the Present with the color of Romance.' "

It has been said before, history does indeed repeat itself, and the Federation of Women's Clubs, through its subordinate Belmont Woman's Club, and the Native Daughters of the Golden West, through the interest and participation of Past President Juanita Doyle, of Bonita Parlor No. 10, Redwood City, exemplify this continuing interest in the history of the State of California, and particularly the El Camino Real, so dear to all Californians.

The program on November 19th when the bell was formally presented to the City of Belmont included participation of the Mayor of Belmont, the County Board of Supervisors, and other local dignitaries as well as representatives of the Federation of Women's Clubs and the Native Daughters of the Golden West. The date of November 19 was chosen because of its proximity to the birthday of Padre Junipero Serra, who was born in Petra, on the Island of Mallorca, Spain, on November 24, 1713, and who began his historic journey to California from Mexico for the purpose of establishing California's Mission Chain at the age of fifty-six years — a time when most of the present generation are looking forward to retirement.

Eileen Dismuke

Mrs. Doyle was chairman for the dedication, and Mrs. B. C. (Eileen) Dismuke, of Santa Barbara, Past Grand President of the Native Daughters of the Golden West, organizer and member of the present Committee for El Camino Real, and a member of the State Historical Landmarks Advisory Committee of the State of California, was the speaker, taking as her subject "The Impact of El Camino Real — the Pathway of the Padres". In 1958, when Mrs. Dismuke became Grand President of the Native Daughters of the Golden West, she was instrumental in the formation of the Committee for El Camino Real, held in Santa Barbara in December of that year, for the purpose of seeking legislation for the return of the name El Camino Real to Highway 101, and for return of the El Camino Real Bells to the highway, with significant signs denoting its name. Both were accomplished through legislation passed in the 1959 session of the State Legislation, and since that time Mrs. Dismuke has continued as a member of the committee representing Native Daughters of the Golden West, for the continued placement of El Camino Real Bells at historic sites.

CALIFORNIA'S STATE SONG

THE GIANT REDWOODS, the grizzly bear, the golden poppy are all representative symbols of the Golden State. So, too, is California's State song.

The lyrics of this song were not written by a musician as you might suppose but by a business man. Back in 1913, Frank B. Silverwood, a Los Angeles clothing merchant, went on a buying trip to New York City. It was a dismal, snowy night and as he sat in one of the city's cafes he heard an entertainer sing "Maryland, My Maryland." Silverwood thought of his own home state on the west coast. If east coast states could have their state songs, why not California? A spark of inspiration burned within him and on his way home he wrote the lyrics of "I Love You California." Soon after his arrival in Los Angeles, he contacted A. F. Frankenstein, then music director of the old Orpheum Theatre in Los Angeles. Frankenstein liked the lyrics and forthwith set them to music.

The late Mary Garden, famed opera star introduced the song at a Shrine Convention in 1913. She wrote to Mr. Silverwood, "I am proud indeed to be the first to sing your most beautiful song in public."

The song was long regarded as the state song but did not become such officially so until 1951. It was Senaida Sullivan, then Grand Organist of the Native Daughters of the Golden West, who introduced a resolution in Beverly Hills Parlor No. 289, NDGW urging that "I Love You California" be officially made the State Song. The Grand Parlor, NDGW, added its endorsement on January 23, 1951. State Senator Jack Tenney introduced Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 29, which was adopted on April 26, 1951 and filed with the Secretary of State on the same day. California then had an official State Song.

we recall how small the membership was in those early years, we can understand their reluctance, and must admire and be grateful for the audacity of those enterprising and courageous members who persuaded their contemporaries that it was our privilege and duty to sponsor and complete these activities, and to continue to support them with time, publicity and financial assistance. We can thank those dedicated women for the Native Daughters' Home, the Scholarship Program, Mission Restoration, Veterans Welfare, the Pioneer Roster — we could go on and on.

Can you imagine the obstacles that must have presented themselves when the Native Daughters of the Golden West first aspired to restore the neglected and badly deteriorated California Missions? Do you remember our campaign to "Save the Redwoods"? The "Loyalty Pledge" which financed the Native Daughters' Home?

It is scarcely necessary to mention the accomplishments of the Order in programs with which we are all very familiar, and which all members have enthusiastically supported. But it is rewarding to reflect that in the beginning each endeavor was established to meet a need — a challenge — which often presented great difficulties.

The laying of the cornerstone in Monterey for the monument commemorating the landing of Commodor Sloat, for instance, represented the efforts of many people over a period of several years — to collect the money, to purchase a suitable stone, to plan and participate in the ceremonies. This historical event is honored each year on July 4 and the Native Daughters have always been included in the celebration.

The Native Daughters have been responsible for the placing of many plaques, statues and markers in historical spots. Each of these commemorates a challenge to preserve our unique history.

Sometimes a challenge confronts us with insistence on an immediate solution. Sometimes it is necessary to seek it out from well-hidden or unrecognized hiding places. Early in the existence of the Order, compassionate women realized that many California children were being denied their rightful place in the world because of circumstances which deprived them of the security of a home and the love of parents. The Native Daughters met this challenge by establishing, jointly with the Native Sons of the Golden West, the Homeless Children Committee, which served as an accredited adoption agency in the State of California for many years. Many of us will remember the inspiring reports given at Grand Parlor, and the proud and happy faces of children and foster parents who benefitted from this program. When it was finally no longer possible to continue this activity, and the Native Sons and Native Daughters were satisfied that the function of this Committee could better be accomplished by the State of California, the Native Daughters searched for a new means of providing hope and care of California children in need. The Children's Foundation came into being to meet this need, and every parlor and every member of the Order has had a part in meeting the challenge presented by the problems of children — of every race and creed — who have sought aid from the Native Daughters of the Golden West.

Native Daughters participate in ceremony of laying wreath on monument commemorating the Landing of Commodore John Drake Sloat.

Native Daughters have ever responded to the call for food to feed the hungry, clothing for the needy, assistance for victims of earthquake, fire or flood; the more intimate opportunities to serve that are traditional for women. Thanksgiving and Christmas baskets have been filled and gifts provided for underprivileged children. During World War II, canteens sprang up wherever hungry and lonely servicemen needed a bit of home away from home. Books, food and candy, etc., have been sent overseas. Many of our women have served in the Armed Forces.

Some of the challenges we have responded to have brought a measure of pleasure as well as a chance for service — the Tournament of Roses Parade is an example (of course I do not mean to minimize the tremendous job performed by those who actually decorate the float). What great satisfaction we shall all enjoy when the statue honoring Father Serra is finally erected at the State Capitol! And what great joy and gratification has rebounded to all who have participated in the Junior Native Daughters program!

As our civilization has progressed from the horse and buggy - gaslight - woodstove era to the present jet planes and atomic energy, many new challenges have presented themselves along with the recurring traditional ones. As progressive women, we must be prepared to meet the challenges of the future with the same courage and determination that have characterized the women of the Native Daughters of the Golden West since the estabishment of our Order. There is no reason to doubt that we will continue to do so.

Dear Sirs:

The evening I was installed as Past President of Bonita Parlor No. 10, NDGW, Redwood City, I was presented with a gift from the members of my Parlor. They could have never thought of one I would cherish more. Mrs. Louise Gibsen, Recording Secretary for Bonita Parlor and also California Herald Chairman, knowing of my interest and love of this magazine, and how very much I kept reminding the members they should subscribe to it, presented me with a three-year subscription, as she knew my own would be coming up for renewal. I was so surprised and so delighted! I know they all felt it was a gift I would treasure. Whenever a gift is in order, the California Herald makes a fine gift. Those who do not take it are missing a lot of good reading. I have my copies always at hand and I find it interesting reading at all times. I refer to back issues, often.

I am pleased to state the reaction to receiving their own California Herald by the members of the Sequoia Jr. Unit No. 27, Jr. NDGW at their last meeting, was all I had hoped it would be. The Juniors were all so interested, and the Junior President, Miss Maureen Rummenfield was so delighted and interested that she asked if she could be first one to borrow the issue to take home for her parents to read. Junior NDGW Section was read by the Jr. Secretary at the meeting in January and the Juniors plan to send in articles from time to time on their activities. I hope more subscriptions will be forthcoming from this fine Junior Unit and other Junior Units.

As I look at back issues I realize more and more that I refer to articles of interest to read to many people I come in contact with, who are surprised that so much California history is at their fingertips if they read the California Herald! "Preserving the Past for the Future" certainly is true of every issue of California Herald.

Cordially,

CELEBRATING THE DEATH OF JUDAS

BY DR. LEO J. FRIIS

According to the Bible, after Judas had betrayed his Master, he became conscience-stricken and committed suicide. In former days, his death was appropriately celebrated in Spanish speaking communities of California. Each town had its particular version of the observance, but in the main, the theme was always the same.

Preparation for the event commenced on the evening of Good Friday. In San Juan Capistrano, during the 1880s, boys and young men roamed through the village picking up articles of property and carrying them to the plaza in front of the old mission. The name of the owner of each article was carefully noted.

Max Mendelson, a local merchant, always expected to be a victim of these forays. In fact, "Don Marcos", as he was popularly called, would probably have been offended if he had been overlooked. One year he left two bales of wool in front of his store. Cumbersom and heavy, they presented a formidable challenge to the mischief makers. With much tugging, grunting and sweating, the bales were finally hauled to the plaza where they were given a place of honor at the rear of an old wagon that was to serve as Judas' chariot.

After a satisfactory amount of property had been gathered and tastefully arranged in front of the mission, an effigy of Judas was constructed. To be sure, this Judas did not wear the type of garments used in ancient Judea. Instead, he was provided with an old pair of pants and a ragged shirt stuffed with malva and other weeds. A "head" of straw was covered with a cloth upon which a face had been crudely painted. A disreputable old sombrero was clapped on the "head" and Judas was lifted into his chariot to await Holy Saturday.

When the local townsmen and neighboring rancheros left the mission church after Mass the next day they gathered about Judas to hear the reading of his will. With a long sheaf of papers in his hands, a young man commenced in sepulchural tones to read the important document. Mendelson was not forgotten. "I give and bequeath unto my beloved nephew, Don Marcos Mendelson, two bales of wool."

The reader continued until all articles collected in the plaza had been properly "bequeathed" to their legal owners, granting, of course, such owners the pleasure of hauling their property back home.

Upon completion of the will reading, a wild steer was brought to the plaza and Judas securely tied on his back. The animal was unloosed and amid shouting was driven out of town. This climax to the celebration was somewhat different than that of most communities where "Judas" was usually hanged and burned.

Benedicion de los Animales

By J. J. Friis

Olvera street, just north of the Old Plaza

BELOW: The blessing of the animals on Holy Saturday in the Church patio

THE ANCIENT CEREMONY of the Benedición de los Animales (blessing of the animals) dates back to the days of the Patron Saint of the animal kingdom, San Antonio de Abad, whose death is recorded in the year 356. Year after year now on Sábado de Gloria, the Holy Saturday before Easter, Mexican fathers, mothers and children gather in Olvera Street in Los Angeles to follow the old custom. Grateful recognition is given for the services that the animals have given to mankind.

In the early days of the Pueblo of Los Angeles the people travelled miles to Mission San Gabriel to attend Mass. There were no funds with which to build a church in the new little pueblo so the priest appealed to the rancheros to donate cattle from their herds. The plan was most successful for 500 head of cattle were brought and were auctioned off in the Plaza at $5 a head to provide funds for a place of worship. The building of the church was started in 1814. It is most appropriate therefore that the animals be blessed in the patio of the Old Plaza church.

On the Holy Saturday before Easter the parade forms. Garlands of flowers are placed around the necks of the larger animals, while bright ribbons festoon the bird cages and decorate the smaller animals. A shiny black Holstein cow wearing a blanket of white gardenias and a crown of orchids upon her horns leads the parade as into the patio of the old historic Church of Our Lady Queen of the Angels come the animals to be blessed.

The priest holds the golden receptable of holy water. As the animals pass by, crystal drops of blessing fall on each as the good Father chants the Benediction:

"Almighty Father, we bless these animals for all they have done for us, in supplying our food, in carrying our burdens, providing us with clothing and companionship and rendering a service to the human race since the world began."

Asterisks mark official visits

Historical Marker

By Alma C. Andreazzi

IN MEMORY OF THE pioneers who sleep on the hill a historical marker at the entrance of the old San Juan Bautista District Cemetery was dedicated by the Native Daughters of the Golden West, San Juan Parlor No. 179. The plaque is mounted on a low adobe wall with adobe stepping stones leading to it from the street.

Campo Santo Marker

It was a beautiful day for such an event. The sun was bright and warm and a slight breeze ruffled the leaves of the olive trees. The Girl Scouts presented the colors followed by the Pledge of Allegiance and the invocation by the Rev. John L. Zacher. Introductions were given by Mrs. Hoyt W. Scott. Mrs. Thomas Farney, president of the Parlor gave a history of the cemetery.

More than a century ago the cemetery was new and was dedicated on October 24, 1838 by Father José Antonio Anzas, the last of the Spanish padres to serve in San Juan. This is recorded in his hand writing in the records of the old mission. The land for the cemetery had been given to the city by Don Manuel Larios, who had received his Rancho San Antonio as a grant from the King of Spain. Don Manuel reserved a plot for his family and stipulated that part of the land should be for the use of Catholics of the town and part for non-Catholics. The generous old don was himself buried in the family plot at the southwest corner of the cemetery on December 13, 1865.

After Mrs. Farney concluded the history, Andrea Matulich of Copa de Oro sang "Hymn to California" acompanied by Evaristo Craven. Charter members, Mrs. E. Zanetta and Mrs. Frank Avilla Sr., unveiled the marker which was blessed by Father George McMenamin, pastor of Old Mission, San Juan Bautista. Taps were by Bill Lavagnino, Jr.

Old Adobe built about 1840 and restored in 1935

It was a simple and moving ceremony, after which open house was held at the Old Adobe which the Parlor maintains and uses for its meetings. Refreshments were served by the Parlor. G.T. Betty Read Curilich, State Chairman of History and Landmarks was a guest.

MARYSVILLE

It was a momentous occasion for Marysville No. 162, when six new members were initiated. They included Mmes. Margaret Langdon, Ora Galligan, Ruth Michel, Carolyn Cooper, Donna Sparlin, and Erma Roof. Assisting Mrs. Gertrude Cable, president, at the formal ceremonies were Mmes. Vernon Fortna, Mary Monahan, Ruth Clark, Betty Camper, Bud Marquis, Dan Butler, M. B. Binninger, Mamie Meier, and Harold Johnson. DGP Ruth Metcalf, of Camp Far West, welcomed new members, and read a poem in their honor. She visits the parlor often, and her warmth and friendliness has endeared her to all.

With the installation of officers last July, history was repeated, in that the incoming president had held the same office during the years 1925 and 1931, and a member since 1919. Mrs. Cable is a dedicated woman, who has added much to her community. For thirty-nine years she was involved, first as a teacher, second as principal, and then as District Superintendent, in the Arboga District. She was the first 4H leader in Yuba County and assisted in this project for thirty years. Mrs. Cable has served diligently as president of the Red Cross, Tuberculosis & Health Association, Notre Dame Alumna, Branch of A.A.U.W., Beta Omega Chapter Delta Kappa Gamma, Educational Resources Agency, Marysville Art Club and manager of local Wild Life Tours. Mrs. Cable is an avid scholar on history of our State. Her book, published in 1939, Three Summers With Pop is a story of her family. A second book, Nana Came to California will include material on her mother and great uncle, Hank McCoy, both early residents of Marysville. It is gratifying to have within our Order someone who is truly interested in the preservation of California's past history and vitally concerned about the future of our golden state.

ANNIE K. BIDWELL

Seventy-six members were served a delicious chicken dinner at tables covered with white cloths and centered with arrangements of artificial early spring flowers and smilax. Seated at the head table were President of the Parlor, Muriel Schroeder, Life Members Ethel Estes, Lorena Barnes and Clara Lucas. President Muriel welcomed the members and Mrs. Monte Wade, Chairman of the dinner, thanked all present and said it was "like old home week" to have so many in attendance. She gave due credit to her phone committee, Bertha Cooley and Genevieve Jezler, who were responsible for the fine turn-out. Other dinner committee members were Marguerite Cunha and Madeline Coria. All members were asked to introduce themselves, tell where and when they were born. Surprising how many were Jack Benny's age — 39! Special greeting was given to Miss Judy Henman, youngest member, also several life members, most of them over 80.

At the short business meeting which followed the dinner, the following members were escorted to the Altar and presented with certificates of life membership, Lorena Barnes, Clara Lucas and Matie Opdyke. Edith Brown was presented her 25 year emblem. A resolution of respect in memory of member Rose Ostenberg was read.

Several coming events of the parlor were discussed, a Card Party to be held in March for the benefit of the Childrens' Foundation, also the Official Visit of Grand President Annette Caiocca on April 13. At the official visit several 50 year emblems and life membership certificates will be presented.

After the successful dinner and business meeting many of the membership stayed on for a social hour of visiting and reminiscing. Sherbet, coffee and cookies were served by the committee.

NDGW HOME

The NDGW Home was in a pleasant state of excitement on Thursday evening, February 1st, when Sister Alice Parry was honored and crowned Queen for a Day as a fitting tribute to her 92nd birthday. Preceding a delicious turkey dinner the honoree was toasted in champagne (supplied by our gracious Manager, Frances Harris) and when dinner was concluded Alice cut a very special birthday cake and then opened a few of the many presents she had received this natal day. Altogether we spent almost four hours in the dining room and were reluctant to conclude the party.

Sister Parry is very active in her Parlor, Alta No. 3, serving at present as one of the Trustees, and is always happy to visit other Parlors in the area for Official Visits or other occasions.

Vendome

by Amalia Vella

Introducing Isabel (Muñoz) Ucovich, one of a family of seven children born to Antonio and Monica Muñoz, who has the distinction of being the daughter of one of the first barbers in San Jose back in the 1800's. Muñoz, in partnership with Placido Bernal, opened his barber shop on West St. John St., between First and Market Streets. Through the years, he conducted his business, reared seven children and took care of his beloved wife, Monica.

Later migrating from Dalmatia to the Santa Clara Valley in 1898 were three Ukovich brothers, Mitchel, Nick and Peter. These brothers were three of the eight children of Paul and Mary (Skanse) Ucovich, successful farmers in Dalmatia, Yugoslavia. On their 10,000 acres of land they raised olives and grapes. The children were taught principles of industry and thrift.

In Santa Clara County, the Ucovich brothers became successful restauranteurs. Peter, the youngest, married Isabella Muñoz, "a native of San Jose and a daughter of an early Spanish family", so states the History of Santa Clara County biographical sketches. Isabel and Peter had two children. Mitchel, the eldest, is an honored member of our guardians of our California highways, California Highway Patrol and Dorothy, a devoted "Florence Nightingale", is nursing services co-ordinator for the Health Department, City of San Jose.

These lessons of our pioneer fathers and mothers are cherished memories that should be spoken of repeatedly and kept alive in the memories of not only our children, but by repetition and recounting to all the coming young of our children and our children's children.

To our Isabel we give the love and pride of Vendome Parlor in having a true Californian of such pioneer background as one of our sisters.

"What was the biggest disappointment you ever had, Grandpa", asked four year old Billy.

"Well, Billy, I think it was the day I sneaked under the flap of a tent expecting to see a circus, and found myself in a revival meeting."

MISSION

At Mission Parlor's official visit, there were five 25 year pins presented. The fifth recipient was Parlor President Frances Greaves. On a recent weekend Mission Parlor and their friends, made their third annual bus trek to Reno-Sparks Area, only this year it required two buses to accommodate the crowd. Even though that was a "blizzardly" weekend, the two buses were full. Snow, rain and sleet was really encountered. Chains had to be used to get over Donner Pass. A delightful weekend in Reno and Sparks was enjoyed. Esther Krause and Marie Derby deserve a vote of commendation for the smooth handling of these trips.

DGP Zelma Bucholz, from Mission Parlor, helped serve at the San Francisco Deputies breakfast held at the ND Home, February 12, honoring Grand President Annette Caiocca and her officers. Joseph Tinney, Assessor for San Francisco County and a Native Son of Rincon Parlor, was the speaker.

Zelma installed the officers-elect of Darina No. 114 on the evening of February 20, 1967 at Druid's Hall, San Francisco.

DEPUTIES

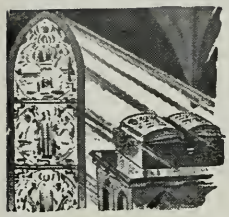

The annual "Home Breakfast" sponsored by SDDGP Marie Feil and the San Francisco deputies was well attended. All San Francisco parlors were represented. Chairman Althea Demetrak chose The Hand of Friendship as her theme. Each guest was presented with a gloved hand as a reminder of the day.

The guest speaker, Assessor Joseph Tinney, member of Rincon Parlor, spoke on the workings of the assessor's office. The honored guest was Grand President Annette Caiocca who was presented with both the usual monetary gift and an added gift of Blue Chip stamps for the refrigerator fund. Several Grand and Past Grand Officers were present. Music was furnished by DGP Hazel Adams. The flag salute was led by DGP Leora Darling and the invocation was given by DGP Dorothy Bayless. In closing SDDGP Marie Feil introduced her deputies and then thanked all for attending and helping to make it a day to be remembered.

A turkey dinner was served preceding the meeting by the members of Lassen View Parlor with Jeanette Hall, chairman. Two new members were added to the association; Mazie Knighton a past president of Hiawatha Parlor and Margaret Cross, a past president of Camellia Parlor. Edna Huelsman was installed as president of the Association with Hilda Heryford, Katie Kueney, and Minnie Mulford as vice-presidents. Virginia Banigan, past State President of the Past Presidents Association was the installing officer. Other State Officers who were in attendance included Ella Brownfield, State Director and Dorothy Rose, State Organist.

VERDUGO

Verdugo No. 240 is embarking on its 41st year, having celebrated our 40th birthday in December with the help of our deputy, Evelyn Henry of Placerita No. 277. For the occasion, a dinner was held at Sterlings' restaurant in Sunland honoring four of our charter members: Hazel Hansen, Doria Phillips, Beulah Hood and Ada Steel. We hope the next forty years will be as fruitful in furthering the cause of NDGW and making new friends with other prospective native daughters of California. Prior to the birthday dinner, Dorothy Obrien and Patricia Vogel were initiated.

Our first half of the term has been a busy one of selling Christmas cards, candy and the so-called country store items. We also had luncheons ending with a beautiful Christmas luncheon at the home of our president Jackie Thomas. To celebrate further the holiday season, we had a Christmas party at our parlor for members who enjoyed games and exchange of gifts. The exciting part of the evening was the fun of receiving unusual door prizes. To the amazement of the lucky winners, the prizes were beautifully created little Christmas trees of decorated egg crates made by some of our members.

Starting out the second half of the year was a luncheon given in January at the home of Past President Marie Franks furthering our project of presenting California Bear Flags to our Glendale city schools. In addition to planning interesting projects for Ways and Means and social activities for the ensuing term, this month is our Foundation Bruncheon and our Official Visit of the Grand President when we expect to initiate some more new members.

PAST PRESIDENTS

More than seven hundred cascarones decorated the tables and manzanita branches at the Christmas party held by Los Angeles County Past Presidents Association 19, NDGW, at Michael's Restaurant in Glendale. The whimsical donkey piñatas and cascarones were made by past presidents Marie Harrington, Carmen Miller and Mildred Kubler of El Camino Real No. 324 and represented many hours of work.

Elsie Mc Cann of Verdugo No. 240, president of Association 19, presided over the business of the evening and conducted the initiation ceremonies. Shirley Dearborn of Los Angeles Parlor was chairman of the evening and was in charge of arrangements. Special guests were Phyllis Hirst and Florence Schoeneman, Past Presidents of the State Past Presidents; Betty Butler of Verdugo, State Director; and June Goldie, Grand Vice President of Native Daughters.

At a later date Carmen Miller and Mildred Kubler, past presidents of El Camino Real, and Ida Grossi, vice president, took the tree and left over cascarones from the affair to the New Horizons Center of Sepulveda for Mentally Retarded Children. Ida Grossi entertained these teenagers with selections on the accordion and accompanied them for group singing. They provided refreshments and assisted with their Christmas party.

Mildred Kubler has sponsored this group of more than twenty boys and girls in the eighteen to twenty-one year age bracket for more than four years. Their mental level is ten to twelve years. It was a very gratifying experience and all of them agreed to take part more often.

PLACERITA

The American and California State Bear flags were presented to the Leonis Adobe in Calabasas by Placerita No. 277 at a special ceremony. Corrinne Brandenburg, president of Placerita made the presentation to Laura B. Gaye who accepted the gift on behalf of the Leonis Adobe Association. The presentation of these much needed flags was under the direction of Lola Atkinson, Americanism and Civic Participation Chairman.

The adobe has been designated by the Cultural Heritage Board of Los Angeles as "Historic Cultural Monument No. 1" and has been officially opened to the public since May, 1966 when restoration on the historic home was completed. The flags will be on display at the entrance to this San Fernando Valley landmark on Wednesdays, Saturdays and Sundays when it is open to the public from 1 to 4 p.m.

GOLD OF OPHIR

February 1st, four new candidates were received into Gold of Ophir No. 190, Oroville. Nine members under the chairmanship of Gertrude Gilbert motored to the Bald Rock School in the mountain country 24 miles from Oroville to present the State Flag to the school. The children from the mountain school sold branches of mistletoe during the holiday season to purchase the flag.

During the ceremonies Mrs. Gilbert explained to them the proper care and respect to be paid to the flag. After the ceremonies refreshments were served by the pupils.

On February 15 members attended the official visit to Olivia Parlor at Corning. A group of Past Presidents motored to Annie K. Bidwell Parlor for the official visit of the State President of the Past Presidents Association, in Native Daughters Hall on February 16.

LA PURISIMA

The first six months of the 1966-67 term have been busy ones for members of La Purisima No. 327. Fran Houston, parlor president, made the arrangements for this year's tea.

Maundy Money Distributed by Queen Victoria

Maundy Money

MAUNDY THURSDAY is observed on the day before Good Friday. It commemorates the evening when Jesus Christ had His last supper with His disciples and gave them a New Commandment to love each other as he had loved them.

The word, Maundy, is derived from the 12th century French which in turn comes from the Latin word, Mandatum, meaning a commandment or mandate. Mandatum Novem means the New Commandment. On this historic evening Jesus washed the feet of His disciples as an act of humility and as a symbol of service to others.

For eight centuries it has been the custom of British monarchs to specially observe this day. Until the reign of King James II, the kings and queens washed the feet of several poor people (after the feet of these favored few had been thoroughly bathed and perfumed.) The recipients of this honor were also presented with gifts including money.

Commencing in 1662, during the reign of King Charles II, undated special Maundy coins of silver were given. They were of four, three, two and one penny denominations. The first dated Maundy coin was a two pence struck in 1668 and the first complete dated set of four was distributed in 1670.

At his first public appearance in 1936, King Edward VIII (who later gave up his throne to marry the "woman he loved") personally distributed Maundy money bearing the portrait of his late father, King George V. Likewise, when Queen Elizabeth II gave her first Maundy money in 1954, the coins bore the picture of her father, King George VI. At that time she distributed alms to 26 men and 26 women.

As Lord Almoner to the Queen, the Bishop of Lichfield decides who shall receive Maundy gifts and in the absence of the monarch, presents the coins. Each woman recipient receives a green purse with her Maundy money and men are given theirs in a white one. In addition each receives a red purse with white thongs containing cash in lieu of clothing once presented. All also are given a white purse with red thongs in which are "as many pence as the Queen is of age."

evening was PGP Eileen Dismuke of Tierra de Oro No. 304, who spoke on the aims and purposes of The Native Daughters of The Golden West.

Halloween was celebrated at a prehalloween party on October 19, following the regular meeting. Ingenuity and imagination were apparent in the costumes depicting witches, goblins, hobos, clowns, and Hawaiian and can-can dancers. Prizes were awarded to Maureen Golob, scariest costume; Pearl Price, funniest; and Ernita Feland, most original. Serving as judges for the contest were Mildred Rande, Cecelia Larsen, and Louise Palmer. Games were enjoyed by all with prizes being awarded to Cecelia Larsen, Gail Benson, Pearl Price and Mildred Rande. Following the evening's entertainment refreshments of pumpkin and apple pie, cider and coffee were served. Credit for the most enjoyable evening goes to Mary Rule, program chairman, and her committee including Bernice Henning and Jessie Ramming.

On November 14, a California Bear Flag was presented by the Parlor to the new Los Padres Elementary School located on Vandenberg Air Force Base. The presentation was made by parlor president, Fran Houston and Janet Begg to the school's principal Mr. Paul Comers. Arrangements for the presentation were made by Americanism and Civic Participation Chairman, Janet Begg.

The Parlor marked Thanksgiving on November 16 with a pot-luck dinner, including turkey and all the traditional trimmings. Following the dinner a program was presented by Mary Rule and her committee. Included were a Thanksgiving Prayer by President Fran Houston; readings by special guest, Mrs. Laura Henderson; audience participation of hymn singing; and several dance numbers by the students of Greenlee Dance Studio. Bingo was played. Contributing much to the evening's success were Chris Hogan, Virginia Dover, Mildred Headrick, Frieda Stanish, Jessie Ramming, Eva Jacobs, Bess Hooker, Bernice Henning.

On the evening of December 21, the Parlor held its annual Christmas party for members and their families, with all children as honored guests.

The evening's program began with the reading by Mary Rule of the Christmas Story from Luke 2. A puppet show of the "Littlest Angel" was enjoyed by young and old alike, as were the dance numbers presented by Greenlee Dance Studio. Phyllis Lechner presented a Swedish version of "'Twas the Night Before Christmas" which brought many smiles and much laughter. Jessie Ramming told the children a Christmas story and also led the group in carol singing. Topping off the evening was the arrival of Santa, played by Don Headrick, who presented gifts to all the children. A gift exchange was also enjoyed by the adults. General chairman for the party was Gloria Beach assisted by Ernita Feland, refreshments, and Arlene Rule, decorations. Raffle of afghan made by Mildred Headrick and hand-tooled leather purse by Gail Benson were won by Anita Luis and Mamie Kortner.

LILLY HITCHCOCK COIT 5

By

Dr. Leo J. Friis

Coit Tower, San Francisco

Coit tower, on Telegraph Hill, perpetuates the memory of one of San Francisco's most remarkable women. Lillie Hitchcock was born on August 23, 1843, at West Point, where her father, Dr. Charles M. Hitchcock, was an army surgeon.

In 1851, the family moved to San Francisco where Dr. Hitchcock remained in military service for two years more when he resigned to enter private practice. Here young Lillie became fascinated with fire-fighting. In those days the fire companies were made up of the leading citizens of the town and membership was considered a great honor.

With the outbreak of the Civil War, Dr. Hitchcock sent his wife and daughter to Paris for a visit. The family had its roots in the South and Lillie's violent partisanship for the secessionist cause alarmed her father. He had visions of her being sent to Alcatraz Island, particularly after she had aided a young man to escape to the Confederacy.

Upon her return from Europe, Lillie became a belle of San Francisco. Her interest in firefighting continued and on October 3, 1863, she was made an honorary member of Knickerbocker Number 5. Her duties were to attend fires that occurred during the daytime and to keep her light burning at night until her company's engine was back in its house. There was great rivalry among the fire companies and Lillie's presence at a fire spurred her fellow firemen to exert all of their strength and effort.

Lillie wore a gold 5 on her dress and always added that numeral to her signature. Upon the creation of the city's paid fire department in 1866, Lillie became a veteran. Whenever possible, she attended the annual birthday party of the company.

On November 18, 1868, Lillie married Benjamin Howard Coit, "caller" of the Stock Board. Their home became the gathering place of important financiers including Ralston and Sharon, all of whom enjoyed playing poker. Often Lillie was the only woman in the game.

She enjoyed a good practical joke. Knowing that some of her friends were on Saturday afternoon engaged in their favorite card game at the Cliff House, she induced her husband to drive her out there. By pre-arrangement, after their arrival, Coit pretended that he saw, far out at sea, a vessel in distress. All of the poker players rushed out on the porch. Being unable to see the ship they procured a telescope. In the meantime Lillie, who had along a plentiful supply of cards similar to those being used substituted "hands" for each of the players. When they returned, each had four aces. The bidding that followed reached astronomical heights. Lillie and her husband left before the joke was discovered.

Lillie Hitchcock Coit 5 passed away in San Francisco on July 22, 1929. Standing guard at the funeral parlor were members of "Number 5." As the cortege approached Grace Cathedral it was joined by a company of firemen who led the procession. Waiting at the steps were Samuel Baker, Captain J. H. McMenomy and Richard Cox, three of the four living members of the old volunteer Knickerbocker Company. At the end of the services each of these veterans paused at the casket of their old friend upon whose dress was pinned the gold numeral "5."

YESTERDAY AT TROPICO

. . . THE GOLDEN YEARS

HARD-ROCK historians Glen and Dorene Settle regard Antelope Valley's Tropico Gold Mine, Mill and Camp near Lancaster, California as far more than a family inheritance. To them, it's a legacy of a broader stripe — the West's gold mining past. Raised on tales of bonanzas and gold fever told by bearded sourdoughs down from the high-desert hills and the lore of hard-rock mining romanced by H. Clifford Burton, Mrs. Settle's father, the couple entered into a lifetime pact with yesterday. They are preserving Tropico as a symbol of the past and heralding its role in the history of the Mojave-Lancaster-Rosamond region.

The Settles found that prehistoric man hunted in the Antelope Valley foothills and plains, leaving his imprint in pictographs and petroglyphs near the red hill. In more modern days, parties of Piute and Mojave Indians stalked antelope near Tropico and camped at nearby Willow Springs.

In 1772 Tropico saw the exploratory passage of Captain Pedro Fages and, four years later, a crossing of the valley by Father Francisco Garces enroute from San Fernando Mission. Tropico's past is dotted with names of mountainman Jedediah Smith and his trapping party . . . scout Kit Carson leading the John C. Fremont group . . . Rogers and Manley on their 300 mile trek to Los Angeles seeking aid for the Jayhawker party stranded in Death Valley . . . and that strangest of sights, the lumbering file of camels driven by Lt. Edward Beale on his desert journey to Ft. Tejon.

GOLD-SPECKED CRUCIBLE, part of gold smelting furnace used to reduce the precious metal into molten pour for ingots, is inspected by Tropico Gold Mine, Mill & Camp owners Glen and Dorene Settle. Custom Mill's furnaces were final stage in the old-time milling process. Visitors on guided tour now can trace the step-by-step conversion of hard-rock, gold-laden ore into bullion.

It was not until the 1870's that the region's hill and isolated peaks of igneous origin drew attention to the possibility of Tropico's underground treasure. In those years, Dr. C. L. Crandall prospected the hill and came upon a deep, red-colored gouge. Samples proved the find suitable for fire clay, then much in demand for soil pipe and red brick in booming Los Angeles. In 1882 the clay pit was purchased by Ezra Hamilton who wanted the supply for his Los Angeles Pottery Company. Always on the prospect for gold, Hamilton came on a major lode near Tropico's ridge in 1894. Assay returns showed $35 per ton ore.

Hamilton built a two stamp mill at Tropico in 1898 and a large five stamp mill in 1902. Asked to show gold ore at the 1904 St. Louis World Exposition, he shipped "jewelry rock" specimen assayed at $90,000 a ton from which gold protruded on all sides. This was from the richest vein ever mined at Tropico. A true bonanza. Succeeding years found the hill divided among a number of owner claims after Hamilton sold his holdings. Names such as The Dry Process Company, Tiger Head Mining Company and Antelope Mining Company came and went. In 1909 Tropico Mining and Milling Company acquired most of the divergent claims and went into business. According to the Settles, Tropico was named after a small community located near Glendale, California near what is now Forest Lawn Memorial Park. A number of the company's stockholders lived in Tropico. H. Clifford Burton, Dorene Settle's father, was first employed by the Tropico interests in 1912. A resident of Antelope Valley, Burton had come to the high-desert country from England with his parents and three brothers 12 years earlier. He was well educated in both practical and theoretical aspects of gold mining. After streamlining mill operations, he was named mine superintendent in 1914. With his brother, Cecil, who had joined him at the mine a year earlier, he put Tropico on a paying basis.

The Burton Brothers went off to war with the 319th Engineers in 1917, returned from France three years later to find another battle on their hands. Inflation was forcing mining operations all over the nation to run at a loss. Tropico's stockholders, assessed to meeting operating expenses, became disenchanted with gold mining and sold their stock to the only ones having faith in the future — the Burtons. Burton converted Tropico to "custom milling" in 1924 when it first milled ore shipped in from other mines. In peak 1939, ore was shipped to Tropico's mill from 400 mines throughout the desert country of the Southwest. This expansion, the government's raising of the price of gold from $20.67 to $35 an ounce, and mining of the largest ore bodies in the mine's history gave Tropico its

Parlor News

NDGW HOME COMMITTEE COMPLETES SUCCESSFUL BLUE-CHIP STAMP DRIVE

Under the capable leadership of Margaret Skelly of Yerba Buena Parlor No. 273, the Native Daughters Home Committee recently sent an appeal to the Parlors for Blue-Chip Stamps in order to obtain a new refrigerator for the Home.

The response was overwhelming and most gratifying. Parlors and individual members were both generous and prompt in sending in stamps in order to complete the project in record time.

Surplus stamps have provided a desk lamp for the Grand Presidents Room, an electric clock for the Family Room and a few warm blankets for future use.

Chairman Hansen and the entire committee are most grateful to Marge and her wonderful idea, and to all those members and Parlors who made it possible.

YERBA BUENA

Yerba Buena No. 273 held its yearly breakfast at the Native Daughters Home on March 12, with 70 in attendance. Julia Bode, chairman, introduced the guests at the speakers' table. PGP Jewel McSweeney gave the blessing.

The theme of the day was "Erin Go Bragh" and the speaker, Val King, spoke of Saint Patrick and Old San Francisco. They were entertained by Marvel Gardner and her accompanist who played the accordion. Closing prayer was given by PGP Orinda Giannini, who is the "Mother" of the Parlor. A check was presented to the Home by Parlor President Honor Lopez.

Irene Bondanza, GT; Loretto Cameron, PGP; Marie Feil, SDDGP of San Francisco County and DGP Eleanore Bianchi were present. Emiliete Conmy represented the chairman of the Home Board.

All who attended received a small Irish flag. Margaret Skelly was in charge of reservations, assisted by Alma and Kittie Mullaney. Marion Pett was co-chairman.

OFFICIAL VISIT

With "March Winds" as the theme and Josephine Lauricella of Argonaut No. 166 as general chairman, six Native Daughter Parlors paid tribute to Annette Caiocca, the Grand President on Wednesday evening, March 1 in the Veterans Memorial Building at Emeryville. There was a very large attendance.

The hall was decorated with various colored kites and on stage were the familiar pictures of the lion and the lamb, depicting the old saying, "March comes in like a lion and goes out like a lamb." In the center of the dais was a large kite welcoming the Grand President. Outlining the footlights was a row of large red poppies and ferns. A picked team was chosen to be Mrs. Caiocca's escort.

Mrs. Lauricella opened the meeting and introduced the president and officers of the first Parlor to enter the hall. The presidents of each Parlor then presented the officers of their Parlors.

The escort team, composed of eight members, carried Chinese glass strips which were jingled as they escorted the guest of honor to the altar. While there, Lynda Henderson sang an appropriate song to Mrs. Caiocca. She was accompanied by Lee Ann Pisciotta who acted as pianist throughout the evening.

During the opening ceremonies, a representative from the Junior Native Daughters was escorted in and gave the Grand President a large white orchid corsage. This was followed by a group of Native Sons who gave her a large bouquet of red roses. She also received books of the Parlors' activities in the shape of kites.

Edna Williams

The acting Grand Marshal for the evening was Nancy Guidiu. PGP Edna Williams presided during the initiatory ritual and throughout the rest of the evening. Marshals from each Parlor took up the pass word.

Past Grand Presidents, deputies of the various Parlors, Grand Officers and representatives of visiting Parlors were introduced. PGP Jewel McSweeney spoke of the Children's Foundation work. All grand officers and past grand presidents were given gifts.

Following the initiatory work, three members of Parlors received their 25-year pins and a member of 50 years was introduced. Mrs. Caiocca presented the pins. At the close of Electric heating keeps the whole house cleaner. Draperies stay clean longer. Walls need less scrubbing.

HIAWATHA

Hiawatha No. 140 observed Arbor Day, March 7, by planting shrubs in one of the city parks. This area has been set aside for the Native Daughters and each year trees and shrubs will be planted there. This is in keeping with a long range beautification planning by the city Parks and Recreation Commission.

A plaque is to be placed in the Native Daughter area designating it as a memorial to sisters of Hiawatha Parlor who have passed away. The planting this year was in memory of Sister Bertha Sublett.

Attending the Arbor Day ceremonies were Regina Swarts, president of Hiawatha Parlor and members Edith Lowry, Beryl Shuffleton, Lola Kable and Miss Maybell Diestelhorst.

Viola Lowden, Arbor Day chairman, made all arrangements for the planting observances, but was unable to be present for the ceremonies.

TROPICO GOLD MINE . . .

and zinc. Tropico was no exception. This was followed by post-war inflation, which dealt a mortal blow to the industry. Skyrocketing production costs versus the outdated $35 an ounce price for gold sounded the death knell.

In the middle of the losing battle, Cecil Burton died in 1947 following a long illness. Clifford, the mainstay of Tropico for 37 years, followed two years later. Responsibility for mine operations fell to his son, Clifford G. Burton, and the Settles. After years of struggle to keep the mine and mill in operation, the end came abruptly. The Settles well remember the day, May 4, 1956. The pumps were pulled, the switches closed in the mill, and operations brought to a halt. Mine water began to flood the underground workings. Today, spring-fed water has risen and stabilized at the 400-foot level of the 900-foot shaft. The 10 miles of tunnels are either flooded or darkened. Only a long stretch of adit (tunnel) and drifts are kept passable for guided tours. The extension mill is silent, its giant ball mills immobile.

Glen and Dorene Settle reopened Tropico Mine and Mill in 1958 as a tourist attraction. The mine and the mill are viewed exactly as they stood when operations stopped in 1956. Goldcamp is a show-case of turn-of-the-century houses and mining memorabilia, a cavalcade of era dimension which the Settles are ever expanding in documenting a past they do not wish to pass forgotten. As collectors, the Settles are bound by the historian's code. Period authenticity is the guideline of all present and future attractions at Tropico. There has been no attempt to gild the lily, to chrome-plate the six-shooter. All is as it was in the everyday life of yesteryear. To the Settles, a number of the old Goldcamp settings and mementos are cherished personal possessions. Glen was born in the living quarters of the 1876 Southern Pacific depot which was moved to Tropico from Palmdale. And Dorene's mother and father owned many of the mining tools and articles of clothing and home-use now on display in the Museum.

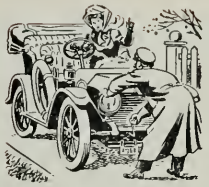

In their dedication to historic authenticity, Glen and Dorene Settle maintain close liaison with a number of historical societies. They are members of The American Museum Association, Western Museums League, California Conference of Historical Societies, Kern County Historical Society, Kern-Antelope Historical Society, the Jedediah Smith Society, American Gold Association, Western Mining Council and California Mining Council. The Settles helped found the Kern-Antelope Historical Society.

Today, the antelope are long gone from their high-desert grazing ranges. The Indians hunt no more. In their place are the contrails, the distant rumble of high-flying jets from nearby Edwards Air Force Base. But Tropico remains untouched by the years, a period piece in a rough-hewn rock setting. A CALIFORNIAN'S LAMENT

by Necia Gaffey

The old adobe sighed beneath the ancient pepper tree,
"Soon they will forget the ones like you and me!"
The broken carreta softly moaned to his friends,
"It is true, the rutted old trail ends."
By the mission the redwood whispered to the flowers,
"There are few who'll weep o'er our last hours."
The tall madrone looking toward the dashing seas,
With its red berries dancing in the California breeze,
Cried for the days of old,
When the Argonauts were seeking gold.
Gone are the gay ranchero
And his colorful, gaudy vaquero
Only the crumbling adobe remains
Soon to vanish with the winter rains,
Under the boughs of the lacy pepper tree;
Forgotten, just as the likes of you and me!

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Pepper trees and old Cota adobe, which were destroyed for the Prado Dam, near her birthplace of Chino, were Mrs. Gaffey's inspiration for the above delightful poem.

Coming of the Yankees

by

Isabel Fages

Casa Alvarado

BUILT IN 1875, the Louis Phillips mansion was the first brick house built in the Pomona Valley. Louis Phillips purchased the lower portion of Rancho San Jose from mortgage holders who had foreclosed on Ricardo Vejar. His deed is dated 1866. Rancho San Jose was granted to Ricardo Vejar and Ygnacio Palomarees in 1836. Phillips and Esther Blake, a pioneer school teacher, were married in the Richardo Vejar adobe, no longer in existence.

Across the road from Phillips' house was the Uncle Billie Rubottom stage coach station. One of the early routes of the prairie schooners came across El Cajon pass, through San Bernardino and Cucamonga. The Yuma route also passed through the area. Often an overflow of passengers were housed by the hospitable Phillips family.

Phillips set aside ten acres for a cemetery and in 1873 contributed a 100 foot right-of-way to the Southern Pacific which brought the iron horse to Spadra and later to Pomona. His land included the site of Pomona and he made provision for the erection of a Catholic church. In 1874-75, Cyrus Burdick, P. C. Tonner and Francisco Palomares obtained joint control of 3,000 acres which was subdivided and subsequently became the City of Pomona.

Rev. Richard Fryer, a Baptist minister who had migrated to California in 1852, with his wife and four children in an oxen drawn wagon train, also settled in Spadra. He was invited to hold his baptisms in the pond supplied by a spring close to the Phillips house. It is believed that this was the first Protestant baptism in the Pomona Valley.

The Pomona Valley Historical Society is now engaged in a drive to purchase the Phillips house and Rancho San Jose Parlor has pledged one month's payment of $400.00 on the $45,000 purchase price. The property including two acres is now in escrow. It is a two-story, ten-room house.

"Coming of the Yankees" will be the theme of this year's pioneer silver tea sponsored by Rancho San Jose No. 307 on Sunday, May 21 in Casa Alvarado, home of Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse B. Fages and Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Hogan, 1459 Old Settlers Lane, Pomona.

This year the tea will benefit the purchase and restoration of the Louis Phillips House.

The author, Isabel López de Fages

Mrs. Fages, history and landmark chairman of the parlor, plans a series of vignettes portraying the coming of Louis Phillips; his part in the growth of the valley and introduction of other Yankees who joined in the early development of the area.

Entertainment will include square dances and the early ballroom dances presented by Gabriel Ruiz and his group. Fred Sharpe, city administrator and president of the Historical Society, will participate. With other members of the Historical Society he will assist in greeting guests. Hours will be from 2:30 to 5:30 p.m. The public is invited. A donation of $1.00 will be requested. Miss Alma Glidewell, president, will head the hostesses for the afternoon.

Rancho San Jose Parlor observed its sixteenth birthday on April 20. The president presented fourteen of the past presidents who participated in a traditional candle lighting ceremony. DGP Leona Carter of Poppy Trail Parlor and SDDGP Joan Frey of Long Beach Parlor were honored guests.

Christine Malaga, exchange student from Peru showed slides of her homeland and music was supplied by Susan and Sallie Snyder, Ganesha High School students. Ethel Eberhart, parlor organist, was program chairman. Eleanor and Jeanne Rogers were in charge of refreshments.

Dedication of Padre Junipero Serra Statue

By Eileen Dismuke, P.G.P.

PROBABLY THE GREATEST tribute ever made, of the many thousands paid to Padre Junipero Serra, founder of California and its chain of missions, was that accorded him on Saturday, April 8, in the state he loved so dearly and for which he gave his life, when the most pretentious of monuments was dedicated to his memory.

The setting for the ceremony was the Camellia Grove in Capitol Park, in the shadow of the State Capitol. The camellias in full bloom, surrounding the statue in a semi-circle, and the beautiful, tall tree immediately to the back of the statue, presented a perfect framework for this magnificent monument.

The day, too, proved to be as perfect a sunny, spring day as one could wish for, after a week of almost continual rain. It appeared that the Good Lord was indeed looking down on this auspicious ceremony.

The program opened with greetings from PGP Peter T. Conmy, Chairman of the Native Sons Serra Statue Committee. The invocation was given by the Rev. Fred W. Gross, Pastor of the Pioneer Congregational United Church of Christ in Sacramento. Presentation of the colors, by the Color Guard of Mather Air Force Base, was followed by the playing of the Star Spangled Banner by the Sacramento Senior High School Band under the direction of Aubrey Penman.

Grand Officers, Past Grand Presidents and distinguished guests of the Native Sons of the Golden West were introduced, following which Grand President, I. Thomas Zaragoza, extended his greetings, and the Grand Officers of the Native Sons performed their impressive dedication ceremony.

Grand Presidents Annette Caiocca and I. Thomas Zaragoza, who participated in the Padre Junipero Serra Statue dedication in Capitol Park, Sacramento.

Following an address by Dr. C. Albert Schumate, Grand Historian of the Native Sons of the Golden West, in which he paid tribute to California's greatest pioneer, the program was turned over to the Acting Chairman, PGP Eileen Dismuke, for the Native Daughters, who was asked to substitute, when the program began, for the absent chairman who had failed to notify the Grand President of her inability to be present. Following greetings extended on behalf of Native Daughters of the Golden West by PGP Dismuke, the Sacramento Union High School Band entertained with the playing of "El Camino Real".

The following Grand Officers, Past Grand Presidents, and members of the Native Daughter Serra Statue Committee were introduced: Grand President Annette Caiocca, who was accompanied by her husband, Julius, and their daughter, Julianne; GVP June T. Goldie, GM Hazel T. Mallette, Chairman of the Board of Grand Trustees, Nancy J. Conens, GT Irene Bondanza, GT Rae L. Rominger, GT Betty Read Curilich who is also State Chairman of History and Landmarks, GIS Marie C. Landini, GOS Lila S. Hummel, Past Grand Presidents Orinda G. Giannini, Clare Lindsey, Doris Treat Daley, Henrietta Toothaker, Jewel McSweeney, Elmarie H. Dyke, Doris M. Gerrish, Audrey D. Brown, Irma M. Caton, Edna C. Williams, Alice D. Shea, Lee Brice, Fern E. Adams, and Acting Chairman Eileen Dismuke. Honorary Grand Secretary Irma S. Murray was also introduced.

Members of the Serra Statue Committee, for the Native Daughters, taking a bow were PGP Lee Brice, who has been a member of the committee since its inception, and who, during her year as Grand President, was responsible for raising over $5,000 toward the $38,000 goal necessary for the statue; Mrs. Genevieve Didion, who assisted in paving the way for then Grand President Maxiene Porter, in 1959-60, in the initial contacts made with the State of California for permission to proceed with the statue project for the Capitol Grounds. Mrs. Didion, again this year, was appointed by Grand President Annette Caiocca to assist with the carrying out of plans for the dedication and luncheon which followed; GT Rae Rominger, of Sacramento to whom went accolades of the entire membership for the magnificent way in which she, and members of Sacramento Parlors who assisted her, performed in presenting the lovely civic luncheon in the Sky

Room of the El Mirador Hotel following the dedication ceremony; PGP Dismuke, who was the first State Chairman of the committee in 1960, and co-chairman in all of the succeeding years and who had made countless trips to San Francisco and Sacramento in order to clear the hurdles that a project of this magnitude required. For her, this day was one of tremendous satisfaction. She paid tribute to Fr. Moholy who had been of inestimable help to the Native Daughter Committee every inch of the way, and who today saw the completion of a dream he had proposed seven years ago.

Following the introduction of honored guests by the Acting Chairman, Grand President Annette Caiocca expressed her happiness in the culmination of this grandiose project of the two Orders, and her great appreciation of the efforts of those who had worked so diligently toward this important day. Mrs. Caiocca said, in part: "Today we see the culmination of our dream, and the long years of working together, including the generosity of the State of California, in joining with us to bring the project to today's impressive conclusion.

"This monument will ever be a reminder to untold generations, yet unborn, of the complete selfessness of the man whom we today commemorate, and about whom Fray Francisco Palou, who knew Padre Serra in the years 1740 and 1748, first as a student of his, and later as a fellow-missionary in Mexico and California, as quoted from a booklet written by the Rev. Maynard Geiger, Archivist-Historian of Old Mission, Santa Barbara, said: " 'His memory shall not fail, because the works he performed when alive shall be impressed in the minds of the dwellers of this new California,' — and indeed they always will."

Following Grand President Annette Caiocca's remarks, the Rev. Noel F. Moholy presented an eloquent and inspiring message on the life of Padre Serra.

The benediction was given by Monsignor Raymond Renwald, Pastor of the Cathedral of the Blessed Sacrament, Sacramento, who blessed the statue in his closing. The Sacramento Senior High School Band played the closing selection, and the participants in the dedication proceeded to the luncheon at the El Mirador Hotel, located across the street from the Capitol.

This nine-foot statue of Padre Junipero Serra was dedicated in Capitol Park by the NDGW-NSGW. At the foot of the monument is a map of California, stretching to ground level, on which are delineated the twenty-one missions of California. Completely surrounding the statue and map is a cement walkway in which, at spaced intervals, are imbedded bronze relief replicas of the nine missions established by Padre Junipero Serra, beginning with San Diego de Alcalá, in 1769, and ending with San Buenaventura, in 1782. The statue stands in Camellia Grove in the shadow of the Capitol dome.

Frank Christy, of Sunset Parlor, and a committee of Native Sons in the Sacramento area carried out many of the details in connection with the planning of the dedication ceremony, and a great vote of thanks is due them for stepping in during the last three weeks of the planning in order to be certain that the customary details would be carried out.

In her opening remarks, PGP Dismuke related the chronology of the inception of the Serra Statue Project. She again reiterated the fact that, during the deliberations in connection with the return of the name of El Camino Real to Highway 101 by the Committee of El Camino Real, that the Rev. Noel Moholy, who represented the Franciscan Order on that committee, had directed the following casual question to her: "Eileen, why do not the Native Sons and the Native Daughters plan a project for the placing of a statue of Fr. Junipero Serra in our State Capitol before some other historical group, such as the D.A.R., do so." This was in April of 1959, during the crucial hearings on legislation for the return of this famous name to the highway, and for placement again of the El Camino Real Bells along the Pathway of the Padres. Shortly thereafter these bills were passed and received the signature of then Governor Edmund G. Brown. Mrs. Dismuke's reply to Fr. Noel was enthusiastic, and she indicated that the idea would be relayed to the incoming Grand Presidents for consideration. The suggestion was again made by Fr. Noel at the dedication of the first El Camino Real Bell to be placed in conformance with the newly passed legislation, in July of 1959, when Mrs. Dismuke, who was to be a participant in the program, invited the then Grand President, Maxiene Porter, to accompany her to San Diego for the bell dedication. At the luncheon following the bell dedication the subject was further discussed, and Fr. Noel volunteered to assist in any way possible.

Thus, at the Grand Parlors of both Orders, the Native Sons in Bakersfield, and the Native Daughters in Long Beach, in 1960, this project was adopted as a joint venture, dur-

ANNETTE CAIOCCA

Today I had the pleasure of participating in the dedication of the Statue of Fr. Junipero Serra in Camellia Grove, at the State Capitol, Sacramento. The occasion which we celebrated today as Californians by birth or by adoption, is one of which the Order of the Native Daughters of the Golden West can truly be proud. Proud - because, in the spring of 1959 a spark was lit - a seed was planted, which foretold today's commemorative event.

Today we see the culmination of our dreams and the long years of working together, including the generosity of the State of California in joining with us to bring the project to today's impressive conclusion. This monument will ever be a reminder to untold generations, yet unborn, of the complete selflessness of the man whom we today commemorate and about whom Fr. Francisco Palou, who knew Padre Serra between the years 1740 and 1784, as a student of his in Majorca, and as a fellow missionary in Mexico and California said, "His memory shall not fail, because the works he performed when alive shall be impressed in the minds of the dwellers of this new California". And indeed they always will, through this living monument.

May I take this opportunity to express to all members of the Native Daughters of the Golden West Junipero Statue Committee, since its inception in 1960 through all these years, my heartfelt thanks and appreciation on behalf of myself and the thousands of members of our Order throughout the State of California. You have indeed performed a service to our State of which we can be justly proud.

Verdugo Parlor

by Dorothy Griffing

Now that the Motion Picture Academy Oscars have been awarded, it is time to pass out some Native Daughter Oscars. Our Nellie Miller, Chairman of the Children's Foundation Buncheon Committee, and her committees did a magnificent piece of work in making the buncheon the success that it was. We were honored to again have our Past Grand President, Hazel B. Hansen, receiving the Parlor gifts for the Children's Foundation. She also introduced the guest speaker, Dr. Louise Wood Seyler, Deputy Superintendent of Los Angeles City Schools. Hazel Hansen later gave a brief resumé of the Foundation's past year of successful operations.

We are quite proud to have a California Bear Flag, in Verdugo Parlor's name, flying over a batallion tent in Vietnam. This was accomplished by the request of our member Olive Parker's grandson along with other California boys of his Company wishing to have our great flag waving in their encampment. This gift produced many inquiries as to the significance of the flag and statements of praise for the state it represented.

Other past Parlor activities included a recently held, well attended, Ways and Means evening card party in the home of our president, Jackie Thomas. Everyone had a good time, which is a good sign to have many more of the same. Our "Courtesy Night" honored our Deputy Grand President Evelyn Henry and SDDGP Joanne Frey. Instead of the usual formals being worn, the required apparel called for Mod fashions to complicent a Mod fashion show put on by Maud Molen's granddaughter, Sandra Molen. Sandra should be an expert on Mod fashions as she just recently returned from an extended visit to London, England.

Yet to come are an open dinner and evening of games May 2 and a theater party May 24. The next business at hand will be election of officers and plans for Grand Parlor.

Santa Cruz No. 26

by Ruby M. Bowen

Santa Cruz No. 26 celebrated its 79th birthday by moving to a new home, the Business and Professional Women's Club at Plymouth and Button Streets. The building committee of the B.P.W.C. served a ham dinner to our 50 members of No. 26. There were four life members present, all Past Presidents, Elsie Sayre, Callista Dalie, Vivian Rice and Alta Macauley.

The annual roll call which was held during the business meeting which followed was answered by 44 present, 44 absent, 16 by card and 26 by proxy.

After the meeting those present enjoyed a birthday cake, which was a gift from Santa Cruz No. 90, NSGW, and punch from the B.P.W. Club.

VALLEJO

Past Presidents of Vallejo No. 195 were honored on the occasion of the Parlor's 55th birthday anniversary. The Parlor was instituted February 21, 1912 with the assistance of Ella Ingram and members of Eschol No. 16. Mrs. Jennie Ostello and Mrs. Verna Berry were organizers.

President Frances Bickford conducted the business session and introduced the past presidents: Mmes. McAllister, Bliss, Barskey, Woodard, Collins, Mac Farland, E. Smith, M. Smith, Heath, Gracy, Houston, Morrison, and Miss Ellen O'Brien. Also introduced were Frances Peters, past president of Benicia, SDDGP Florence Buttimer and Verona Mason, past president of George C. Yount Parlor.

The hall and refreshment tables were beautifully decorated and a decorated birthday cake was served. Mrs. Woodard, chairman of the evening presented each past president with a token gift.

Electric heating keeps the whole house cleaner. Draperies stay clean longer. Walls need less scrubbing. Gold Medallion Homes and Apartments come in all price ranges and work all day for surprisingly little.

JAMES LICK

The March meeting of James Lick Parlor was well attended. Every one was in a happy mood, the rummage sale for the delegate fund was a huge success. Every one had worked hard, but it was worth it. After meeting, refreshments in keeping with the two special days of March, St. Patrick and Easter, were served. For a prize the annual egg coloring contest was held. This always creates much fun and laughs. Georgia Robinson and Ann Shaughnessy were in charge.

Members of James Lick are very glad to know Julia Owen, Hazel Griffith and Adeline Cunes are well on the way to full recovery. Eleanor Costa feels very lonely since her granddaughter, Barbara Moran, a member of James Lick now lives in Italy. Her husband is with the U.S. Navy Weather Service.

ANNIE K. BIDWELL

"April Showers" theme dominated the official visit of Grand President Annette Caiocca to Annie K. Bidwell No. 168, Chico, on April 13. Prior to the meeting a ham dinner was served in the dining room of Native Daughter Hall. Tables were covered with white cloths with lace paper doilies placed along the middle. On the head table, where the Grand President and other dignitaries sat, was a bowl of pink camellias, also bowls of pansies. In fact, the tables resembled a garden in bloom. Small bouquets of many kinds of spring flowers in white vases decorated each table. The piano held an arrangement of callas, iris and yellow daisies, and on the buffet stood a large bouquet of pink roses, camellias, purple iris, lilacs and bridalwreath. At each place was a small green silk sachet in the form of an umbrella, carrying out the evening theme of "April Showers".

In the meeting hall, at the stations, were placed vases of iris and mustard blooms, carrying out the blue and gold colors of California. The piano held a large arrangement of iris and other spring flowers featuring the California Poppy. Mrs. Ralph Girdler, general chairman of the evening, also served as opening chairman of the meeting at which President Muriel Schroeder presided.

Escorted to the altar and introduced were Grand President Caiocca, GM Hazel Mallette, GT Rae Rominger, PGPs Florence Boyle, and Fern Adams, SDDGP Elaine Barceloux and DGP Idelle Markham. As each officer was escorted she was presented with a dainty ceramic sachet.

The Charter was draped for Minnie Frailey and members stood for a silent prayer in her memory. Initiation ceremony was held for Esther Doolittle Kidwell. Mrs. William Heberlie was presented with her 50-year emblem and a certificate of life membership by the Grand President. She was congratulated for her long years of loyalty and service.

The drill team of fourteen members, dressed in white and pink formals, carried pink net parasols to perform in honor of Grand President Annette. Pinned to their formals were pink and green net corsages. They greeted the visiting President with appropriate words in her honor to the tunes of "A Bicycle Built for Two" and "Sweet Rosy O'Grady". At the close of the drill Mrs. Schroeder passed through the archway of parasols and presented the Grand President with a sterling silver nut spoon to match her silver service.

After the usual complimentary exchanges President Caiocca urged members to contact their representatives at Sacramento to ask their support in matters important to the Native Daughters of Golden West, such as, retention of Admission Day as a state holiday; no division of the State into north and south; that the song "I love you California" be retained as the state song and to protest the proposed substitution "California Here I Come". She reported on the dedication of the Father Serra statue in Camellia Grove at the State Capitol and noted that this had been a long-term project of the NDGW and NSGW. The Grand President also urged members to subscribe for the California Herald for the coming year.

An invitation was read from La Junta Parlor for the official homecoming of Grand President Caiocca, which is to be held in St. Helena on May 27. Invitations were also received from Columbia No. 70 to its 75th Aniversary on June 10 at 12:00 noon, as well as from Auburn No. 233, Placer No. 138; also Marysville No. 162 and Camp Far West No. 218 for official visits of the Gnard President.

Grand President Caiocca closed the meeting with thanks for all the courtesies and pleasures of the visit at which members attended from Redding, Red Bluff, Corning, Willows, Sacramento, St. Helena, Paradise, Oroville and Chico.

Dolores

by Evelyn I. Carlson, P.G.P.

Dolores Parlor is planning with Las Lomas and Genevieve Parlors for the official visit of Grand President Annette Caiocca, on May 24 at Native Daughters Home. All Native Daughters are cordially invited. Two candidates for Dolores will be initiated.

The Veterans at Letterman Hospital were remembered with gifts at Easter from the Parlor. This tradition of remembering our service men on all holidays has been carried on by the Parlor since World War One.

Mae Jackson is the Parlor's Chairman. Dolores has had periodical "Bingos" for the benefit of the Historical Room for the past two years in deference to the State Chairman, PGP Evelyn I. Carlson. The evening of March 22 was a delightful one for an unexpected and informal visit was made by Grand President Annette Caiocca, her daughter and several ladies living in the Home. Prizes were awarded the winners and our Grand President and her daughter were two of the several recipients.

A bridal surprise party was given honoring two of the newer members, Melissa Canrinus and Leora Wilson, both present officers. The traditional bridal motif was carried out and lovely glasss and silver-mounted gifts were given to the honorees.

PADRE SERRA STATUE . .

ing the Grand Presidencies of John Schmolle and Maxiene Porter respectively. The Speaker on the subject of the statue at both Grand Parlors was Fr. Noel, who also attended the first meeting of the joint Serra Statue Committees in Long Beach that year, on which one of the members of the Native Daughters was the late PGP Grace S. Stoermer, who, in 1939 was largely responsible for the placement of the statue of Fr. Serra in Staturary Hall in our Nation's capitol.

Fr. Noel, many years before, had been invited to join Santa Barbara Parlor No. 116, by the late Francis Price, prominent Santa Barbara attorney, Past El Presidente of Santa Barbara's Fiesta, and a student of Latin-American History. He had not joined because there was no follow-through on the invitation. However, the impetus of the impending project was a perfect vehicle for his initiation into the Native Sons, and Santa Barbara Parlor was proud to welcome him as one of their most distinguished members. Fr. Noel has worked diligently since then on behalf of the project, and in 1961, single-handedly, was responsible for securing the cooperation of the State Legislature and the Governor in providing funds on a matching basis with those of Native Sons and Daughters in order to bring the project to a conclusion sooner than would have been possible on the basis of current fund raising. Another Native Son who lent his untiring efforts to the completion of this project was the late Hon. Joseph R. Knowland, who volunteered a generous donation to the project, and who supported Fr. Noel in his endeavor.

The Joint Serra Statue Committees had the further responsibility, following the adoption of the legislation, for appearing before the Capitol Grounds Committee in order to secure approval of the statue, created by Maurice Lorieaux, of the Studios of Church Art in Santa Fe, New Mexico, and for a decision as to the placement of the monument in Capitol Park. The plan first proposed by the committee was to place the statue at the main entrance to the State Capitol Building. However, objections were made by the Grounds Committee to this suggestion because of projected plans for an extensive new mall, which would exclude all statuary. The decision to place the statue in the Camelia Grove was an excellent substitute, for there it is surrounded with the beautiful blossoms which were dedicated by the Native Daughters and Native Sons of the Golden West many years ago, and in which Mrs. Genevieve Dideon, of La Bandera Parlor No. 110, Sacramento, was a guiding light.

An earlier concept of the statue.

Chairman for the civic luncheon was GT Rae Rominger, who introduced the Madrigal Singers of Sacramento High School who entertained with several selections. Speaker at the luncheon was Raymond Momboisse, Assistant Attorney General, whose appealing story of Padre Serra touched each and everyone present at the luncheon. Attending the dedication and the luncheon was the Consul General of Spain from San Francisco, who was impressed with the program and who is relaying details for reproduction in Spain, the birthplace of Padre Junipero Serra.

The only disappointing note in the day's activities at the dedication was the absence of any officially designated representative of our State. A letter from Governor Ronald Reagan, read at the dedication, implied that the lateness of the invitation made it impossible for him to be present, and the absence of a representative made it aparent that one had not been requested. All in attendance were at a loss to understand the lack of State representation at this event, and the resultant lack of public relations coverage in the newspapers and T.V. With the State Chairman of Native Daughters three thousand miles away and non-communicative, and the local committee not allowed to share in any part of the final arrangements, the committee for Native Daughters must be held blameless in this omission.

CHILDREN'S FOUNDATION BRUNCHEON

California-born women from 45 southern California Native Daughters of the Golden West parlors assembled March 5 in the International Ballroom of the Beverly Hilton Hotel in Beverly Hills for the 10th annual NDGW Southern Counties Children's Foundation Bruncheon.

Mrs. Vance Miller, of Verdugo Parlor and Mrs. Stella Bentley of Placerita Parlor, were co-chairmen of the colorful event. Mrs. Miller said approximately 800 persons attended the bruncheon. These included members from as far north as Fresno and San Luis Obispo to the southern city of San Diego, members of their families and friends.

Others attending were interested individuals who are not members of the order but who are sympathetic with the efforts of the NDGW Children's Foundation in assisting ailing children back to health.

"Circus Days" was the decoration theme with gaily attired toy clowns astride pink plastic horses gracing each table. Mrs. Dorothy Campbell, of Rio Hondo Parlor, designed and hand-made the delightful toy clowns.

Dr. Louise Wood Seyler, deputy superintendent of the Los Angeles City Schools, was the featured speaker. Title of her talk was "Three Enemies of Success — Boredom, Indifference and Frustration." Dr. Sey-ler received a standing ovation for her extremely entertaining presentation.

She was introduced by PGP Hazel Hansen of Verdugo Parlor, a member of the executive committee of the Children's Foundation.

Entertainment was provided by the Westchester Lariats, a group of gifted young dancers, directed by Dr. J. Tillman Hall, director of the physical education department at University of Southern California.

"Purpose of the once-a-year buncheons, which are held both in northern and southern California", explained Mrs. Hansen, "is to keep NDGW members and the public in general informed of the accomplishments of the Children's Foundation committee during each past year." She said that eleven hundred children have been assisted in their health needs by the Children's Foundation during its 15 years of existence. The Native Daughters of the Golden West Children's Foundation was formed for the purpose of assisting in a financial way any boy or girl, whose ages range from infancy to the eighteenth year, regardless of race or creed, who is in need of health care, including surgery.

The services of the Children's Foundation is available to average income families who find themselves unable to finance for their ailing boy or girl urgently needed surgery, eye treatments, speech therapy, hearing aid, psychiatric attention, artificial limbs, and other health problems.

Often a child must have costly medicines, hospitalization, corrective glasses or shoes, and countless other health needs. If an average income family finds itself in a serious financial dilemna and its child is urgently in need of medical attention, surgery or other form of health aid, it can contact any parlor of the Native Daughters of the Golden West. The parent or guardian must file an application to qualify for assistance. It then is sent to the executive committee of the Native Daughters of the Golden West Children's Foundation to be processed.

The NDGW Children's Foundation is financially supported by every one of the 202 parlors of the statewide, eighty-one year-old patriotic and humanitarian organization, comprised entirely of California-born women.

Miss Jewel McSweeney, PGP of San Francisco, is state chairman of the NDGW Children's Foundation.

Members of Santa Maria No. 276, were models for a Parody Fashion Show at DES Hall before a very enthusiastic audience. Past President Helen Howard wore a "Roaring 20" dress; Rowene Spears, a gingham dress of 1908; Blanche Hobbs, a bathing suit, a style of early in the century; Ida Romero, a muslin night gown with crocheted yoke; to accent the style of today, Marguerite Bassi wore today's nylon gown. Bethol McCallister and Olivia Tonascia, wore beaded dresses of the early days, weighing heavily, and from Paris; to accent the modern style, Janet Howard wore a mini skirt and boots. Ynez Lukeman wore an early model full skirt and blouse with a feathered hat and fur piece. There surely was a lot of merriment!

Ursula Botiller wore a "Tea Dress" with trim of tea bags and a cup and saucer on her head, a teapot in her hand. Mary Ann Weaverling wore the newest style out, a dress made of comic papers. Blanche Powell wore a "Slip Over", a slip over a dress. Why cover up a pretty slip? Alta Donati with a dress with a long train, pulled a child's toy train behind her and Grand Trustee Charity Righetti closed the show as a "Can-Can" girl, her dress was trimmed with rows of empty cans. A good time was had by all, audience and models alike. Meta Mehlschau and Rowene Spears were chairmen for the very enjoyable affair. The show was preceded by a luncheon, chairmaned by President Ida Hawkins, and attended by 75. Card games arranged by Past President Mamie Kortner followed, with prizes going to the winner of each table.

EL CARMELO — SAN BRUNO

El Carmelo No. 181 and San Bruno No. 246 extended a warm greeting to Grand President Annette Caiocca on her official visit at San Bruno. The theme was the Great Seal of California and was carried out very effectively throughout the evening.

In front of the President's station was a life-size miner with a pick, shovel and a real gold pan; a huge gold nugget was in front of the altar with the word "Eureka" and the zenith star; a lovely sailing vessel with several "white wings" made from white carnation petals; bunches of grapes, and sheaves of wheat were in evidence at the other stations. The gift of the evening was a piece of redwood on which was printed the poem Just for Today" with a small Grizzly bear standing guard.

President Florence Loveless and officers of San Bruno Parlor entered first, followed by President Beatrice Galvin and officers of El Carmelo Parlor. Eight El Carmelo members, wearing long formals, gold crowns and carrying scepters, formed the Minerva Escort Team. Grand President Annette was presented with an orchid, escorted to the altar and introduced. Anne Oldham of El Carmelo sang "Getting to Know You."

Others escorted and introduced were G.M. Hazel T. Mallette, Gold of Ophir No. 190; Grand Secretary Mary C. Mahoney, Golden Gate No. 158; GTs Nancy Conens, Piedmont No. 87, and Irene Bondanza, San Francisco No. 261; PGP Evelyn I. Carlson, Dolores No. 169; SDDGP Gertrude Bettencourt, Vista del Mar No. 155; DGPs Elma Crouch, San Bruno No. 246 and Nancy Cains, Menlo Park No. 211; and charter members: Matilda Heeringa, El Carmelo No. 181, and Stella Zanetti, San Bruno No. 246.

The officers of El Carmelo conducted the opening and closing ceremonies and their charter was draped in memory of one of their past presidents and treasurer for many years, Julia Romer. The San Bruno officers gave an excellent rendition of the initiatory ceremony with Miss Sheila Mackintosh of El Carmelo as candidate "Miss California".

Each Parlor presented the report of their activities to the Grand President, along with gifts for the Children's Foundation, Leslye A. Hicks Home Health Fund, and the Native Daughters Home. On the cover of San Bruno's report was the Great Seal of California sketched by their President. The cover of El Carmelo's report had pictures of the Great Seal of California, the American and the California Bear Flags; their personal gift to the Grand President was a small stuffed burro with a monetary saddle. San Bruno presented the Grand President with an attractive picture of the Great Seal of California encircled by a monetary green ruffle.

Grand President Annette complimented the officers of both Parlors and expressed her thanks and appreciation for the gifts and the efforts put forth in making the evening so memorable. Her message was very interesting and was enjoyed by everyone.

San Bruno presented a monetary gift to PGP Evelyn I. Carlson for the NDGW Historical Room in memory of their "Mother", PGP May Himes Noonan.

Fifty-year emblems were presented to Violet Barsi, El Carmelo and Elma Crouch, San Bruno, by the Grand President with very appropriate remarks to each. She also presented twenty-five year emblems to Thelma Ferretti and Margie Baker, El Carmelo, and Irene Lemons, San Bruno.

Following the meeting, refreshments of chicken a la king on puff shells, angel cakes, coffee and tea were served in the banquet hall which looked very festive. The head table was covered with net over a silver cloth, tall silver candelabra, bunches of grapes, sheaves of wheat and a large champagne bottle and glass which created an elegant appearance. The remaining tables had several wine glasses partially filled, small imitation bottles of wine with corks which popped, and many yards of curled ribbon in various colors.

The chairman for the lovely evening, Helena Lewerenz, of El Carmelo, assisted by her daughter Jane Cuneo, very graciously accepted the compliments from the visitors and in turn expressed her thanks to those members of both El Carmelo and San Bruno who worked so faithfully to make the evening an enjoyable one for our Grand President.

A California First

The first white man to set foot on California was Hernando de Alarcon, who on May 9, 1540, left Acapulco, Mexico, with two ships to cooperate with the search of Coronado for the fabulous cities of Cibola. He sailed up the Gulf of California and reached the mouth of the Colorado River about August 17. About a week later he and some of his party made their way up the river to its junction with the Gila River. There he anchored on the western side of the Colorado River and thus stood on California soil.

Junior Quilt Awarded at Official Visit

by Marge Woodward

The Junior Units' hand-made quilt was finally awarded at the time of the Official Visit of Grand Trustee Nancy Conens, State Chairman of Junior Native Daughters, to Las Amiguitas Jr. Unit No. 33. The lucky winner was none other than Jr. Secretary Sherri Borges of Unit No. 33, sister to Jr. State Treasurer Jody Borges. Mrs. Conens announced approximately $150.00 was realized from the sale of tickets and the proceeds will be credited to the Jr. State Treasury.

The history of the quilt is unique. The idea was submitted almost three years ago at the San Francisco Conference with the idea of starting a Jr. State Treasury from the proceeds. Each Unit was sent a square with the figure of an old-fashioned girl to embroider on a white back-ground. The embroidery was to be done to each Unit's taste and a suitable name given to the "girl" which could be identified with the Unit. Finally, all squares were collected and very tastefully put together on a back-ground of yellow nylon material and those of us who saw it can attest to the beauty of the finished product. Sherri is delighted with it and realizes she was a very lucky young lady.

Mrs. Conen's official visit to Las Amiguitas Jr. Unit was a very memorable occasion. Unit No. 33 was instituted on March 2, 1956 and celebrated their 11th birthday a few days later when they could have Mrs. Conens as their very special guest. Naturally, it was a party theme, with multi-colored balloons at the stations, and the stage decorations consisted of decorated "gift boxes" of every size from huge six feet ones to smaller sizes.

Jr. President Pat Powlesland, who is also Jr. State Organist, very ably presided over the meeting. Special guests of honor escorted and introduced besides Mrs. Conens were PGP Irma Caton, Argonaut Parlor, Oakland; and Mrs. Eileen Powlesland, President of Las Amigas Parlor of Walnut Creek. Jr. State Officers present and escorted included Jr. State President Cheri Patterson and Jr. State Treasurer Jody Borges, both of Unit No. 33 and Jr. State Trustee Marilyn Baker of Fruitvale Jr. Unit No. 22. Visiting Jr. Members and their Advisors were announced from Argonaut Unit No. 3 and Fruitvale Unit No. 22 of Oakland, and Escholita No. 26 of Napa. Many parents as well as Senior Parlor members from Piedmont, Fruitvale, Argonaut, Eschol and Las Amigas Parlors were also in attendance.

Five new members were initiated during the meeting. The Unit's "Activities Report" was read by Carol Furman and presented to State Chairman Mrs. Conens, together with the Unit's contribution to the Childrens' Foundation and the Sue J. Irwin Scholarship Fund. Mrs. Conens spoke on various future plans for Junior Units and after remarks given by other honored guests and Jr. State Officers, the meeting was adjourned to be followed by a social hour.

The program of entertainment which followed depicted a little girl's (Wendy Spurgeon) birthday party with costumed "dolls" popping out from behind the gift boxes on the stage and each performing a song or dance number. Jr. State President Cheri Patterson, who is head Flag Girl at Las Lomas High School, costumed as a clown "doll", gave a beautiful exhibition of flag twirling, while others performing included Karen Vincent, Gael Ruggles, Maria Mohr, Joan Welch and Kathy Trottier. Carol Furman acted as Mistress of Ceremonies.

Following the entertainment, everyone gathered around the buffet table where State Chairman Mrs. Conens and Jr. President Pat blew out the birthday candles on the two birthday cakes and made wishes. Refreshments of cake, ice-cream, punch and coffee were served to conclude the meeting.

The California Missions in Miniature

By Rev. Francis J. Weber

Misión San Luis Rey

As an accepted part of western culture, pictorial postcards are a normal outgrowth of an accelerated society. Now in their second century of service, these colorful message-bearers seem just as relevant to the inter-planetary age as leisurely letters were to stagecoach days. Since postcards reflect the tastes, interests and sentiments of the areas where they originate, it is easy to see why California mission scenes have been among the favorite postcard adornments of westerners for well over half a century. Probably no other medium has so vividly portrayed the provincial era. One authority claims that picture postcards are especially valuable as a record of local history, bearing as they do "a somewhat similar relation to the place represented as does its local newspaper." [1]

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Father Weber is Archivist of The Archdiocese of Los Angeles and author of "California's Reluctant Prelate," "Documents of California Catholic History," "A Select Guide to California Catholic History" and other works.

The earliest known postcards date from 1861, when John P. Charlton of Philadelphia obtained a copyright for his privately issued "postal cards." These cards, decorated with a slight border pattern and labelled "Lipman's postal card, patent applied for," were on sale for about a dozen years. The origin of the "open postsheet" is generally attributed to Heinrich von Stephen, one-time Postmaster General of the Imperial German Empire, who, in 1865, advocated the introduction of the offenes postblatt with "the dimensions of ordinary envelopes of the larger size." [2] Von Stephan suggested that on the

SONOMA COUNTY

BY JANE FRIS

SONOMA IS ONE of the original twenty-seven counties of California. The name is of Indian origin and is said to have been the name of an Indian chief who was baptized "Sonoma" by the Mission fathers in 1824. The word is derived from Patwin Sono, meaning "nose." It was applied to the chief of the tribe; hence land or tribe of "Chief Nose." The interpretation, Valley of the Moon, is more poetic, but less authentic.

Luther Burbank (right) at dedication of Sebastopol's Chamber of Commerce building in August, 1922

On October 3, 1775, Juan Francisco de la Bodega, Spanish explorer, discovered the bay that bears his name. His voyage was part of Spain's plan concerning California. In 1811, the Russian, Kuskoff, made a settlement at Fort Ross which became a center of activities for rich fur harvest on land and sea and also an agricultural community.

In 1823 Governor Argüello became anxious to check the Russian advance into the interior north of San Francisco and advised Father José Altimira to transfer the missions of San Francisco de Asís and San Rafael Arcángel to Sonoma without delay. This was the last and most northerly of the 21 California Missions.

Governor Figueroa in 1833 proceeded to occupy and settle Marin and Sonoma Counties. The primary object was to force the Russians out of California. Spanish settlements were attempted at Petaluma, Santa Rosa and Fulton, but the hostility of Indians caused abandonment. The Sonoma Valley was then chosen and in 1835 the Pueblo de Sonoma was founded by General Vallejo at Misión San Francisco Solano.

In the Spring of 1846 many American settlers in the Valley believed that there was danger of their being driven from the country by General José Castro. Since the action of the insurgents did not represent the United States Government, the Stars and Stripes could not be raised in place of the Mexican flag. A new flag was created called The Bear Flag of "The California Republic." The Bear Flag monument, a bronze statue representing a young pioneer clutching the staff of the Bear Flag, which floats above him, was placed in the old Sonoma Plaza, June 14, 1915.

The outstanding native Californian of his day, in this area, was Mariano G. Vallejo. His position came to him because of his ability and experience. A rancho of 66,000 acres was granted to him October 22, 1843. In the foothills of the Sonoma Mountains, on this rancho, which was called Petaluma, he built a large adobe, the Casa Grande, which is still standing. His home in the City of Sonoma is now a State Historical Monument.

Sonoma County is full of interesting places. On a wooded hillside overlooking the Valley of the Moon, is Glen Ellen, for many years the romantic home of Jack London, author of Call of the Wild, and other tales of adventure. It was he who gave the romantic name of "Valley of the Moon" to the valley of his choice.

Petrified Forest is located 12 miles northeast of Santa Rosa. Surrounded by groves of living oak, fir and redwood, the famous petrified forest comprises a group of trees mainly redwood, silicified and opalized. The trees were buried millions of years ago by lava from the great crater five miles to the north. The forest was discovered in the 1850s, but excavation was not begun until 1871 when prospector Charlie Evans, "Petrified Charlie", homesteaded the land.

Near the town of Geyserville, "The Gateway of the Geysers", world famous geysers gush forth from the hillsides as they have done for centuries past. Geyserville was founded in 1851 by Elisha Ely and was so named to advertise the geysers.

Guerneville was settled in 1860 and was named for George E. Guerne who had a saw and planing mill there. It is one of the Russian River country's vacation spots. Monte Rio is also an interesting Russian River town.

The grant of the land on which Cotati stands was spelled Cotate and is dated July 6, 1844. It is now the site of Sonoma State College.

Healdsburg was named for Harmon G. Heald who had a trading post there beginning in 1846, and had built the town's first store in 1852.

Petaluma was founded in 1851 by G. W. Keller on land preëmpted in 1850 from Petaluma Rancho lands. It kept the name, Petaluma, which is of Miwok Indian origin. Peta means "flat" and luma, "back."

Sebastopol was founded in 1853 by H. P. Morris. It was first named Pine Grove and according to tradition the name was changed to Sebastopol during the Crimean War.

Cloverdale, Sonoma County's northern-most city, was established August 15, 1857. The settlement was first known as Markleville for R. B. Markle, former owner of the land.

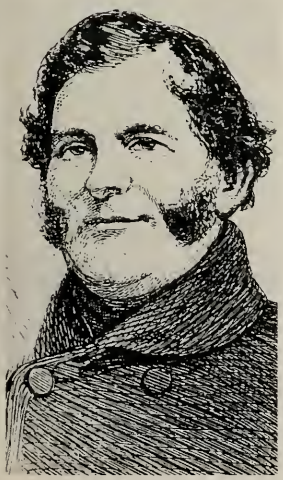

Luther Burbank was a student of nature from his earliest years. Desiring a mild climate wherein he could pursue his chosen life work, he purchased four acres of land in the edge of the town of Santa Rosa in 1878. On this tract he grew specimens from all parts of the world and developed marvelous changes in plants.

As time went on, more space was needed and on December 5. 1885, he purchased 18 acres just outside the city limits of Sebastopol where he established the Burbank Experimental Farm. He became known world-wide as the "plant wizard." He lies buried beneath the shade of a Cedar of Lebanon in his Santa Rosa garden.

Santa Rosa, the largest city of Sonoma County, was chosen for Grand Parlor sessions which will convene this year, June 19.

A year has passed since I assumed the office of Grand President of the Native Daughters of the Golden West. It has been a wonderful year, one filled with new friendships and many old friendships renewed. It is not possible for one person to carry an organization through a year's work and I know that the accomplishments of the year are due in most part to the work of each member throughout the State.

The 81st Annual Session of the Grand Parlor will convene in Santa Rosa on June 19. I am looking forward to greeting many of you at this time. The Grand Parlor Committee has planned much for our enjoyment and are anxious to share it with all of us.

Anaheim as a H

by Dr. Lec

BY THE LATE Seventies, Anaheim had acquired something of a reputation as a health resort, particularly for persons suffering from pulmonary tuberculosis, at that time commonly called "consumption." Interestingly enough, its fame as a haven for health seekers originated with Charles Nordhoff, a man who never lived there, but paid the town a fleeting visit. In his widely read book, California: For Health, Pleasure, and Residence, first published in 1873, Nordhoff devoted an entire chapter to Anaheim and in addition appended a long testimonial letter from Francis S. Miles, a consumptive, who had visited all of the renowned spas of Europe in search for relief which he ultimately found in Anaheim. [1]

Another non-resident, Ben C. Truman, stirred up additional interest by noting in his popular Semi-Tropical California that, "The Anaheimers claim great virtue for their climate as a resort for invalids," and cited Miles as authority for the opinion that "nowhere else in the world can be found atmospheric and climatic conditions so favorable to those suffering from pulmonary affections." [2]

Ludwig Salvator, Archduke of Austria, visited southern California in 1876 and like several other tourists he wrote a book on his experiences. His comments on the climate along the coast were very complimentary and he reported the Los Angeles area to be "especially balmy." Anaheim resident Edwin S. Saxton furnished him "thermometrical observations" which he included in his book together with a meteorological report obtained from Miles. [3]

Books like these inspired a spirit of extravagant boosterism in the town which reached white heat in a pamphlet titled Anaheim, The Garden Spot of Southern California (price ten cents), wherein Anaheim Gazette publisher Richard Melrose wrote with unbounded enthusiasm, "The advantages offered by Anaheim to immigrants are greater than can be found in any other section of the country. The first and most important is health. Most places in Southern California are healthy, but all are not so perfectly adapted to the majority of invalids. In some the climate is too dry and stimulating; in others, it is too damp and sedative; in others, the sea-breeze is too fresh and raw. But at Anaheim it is damp enough and not too damp, dry enough and not too dry, fresh enough and not too fresh; in fact the climate of Anaheim is a medium climate, combining more of the desirable qualities and fewer of the undesirable qualities than any other place in Southern California." [4]

To accommodate invalids requiring nursing care, Dr. James Ellis erected a two-story brick sanatorium at the southwest corner of Lemon and Chestnut Streets. It was provided with colored windows, which were assumed to have some therapeutic value, and was furnished "with 41 tons of furniture from England." Dr. Ellis had come to Anaheim in 1873 and after a two year residence announced that he intended to reside there permanently. With his usual positiveness he declared that from personal experience he had found the climate of Anahei Egypt and the famous resorts of t asthma and catarrhal and inflamma which he built in 1876, offered to home "in a dry, sunny climate with the same cost as is charged in a g Ellis made a substantial medical though he was considered somet trustees to whom he wrote numerou of how things were done better in

Dr. Ellis sold his sanatorium Fergusson, a young English physi academic degrees as "M.D., M. Ch L.M., L.R.C.S., Edinburgh; L.S.A Glasgow." Unfortunately he did enough for its citizens to adequat dazzling education." [6]

Anaheim had two neighborin Springs and Fulton's Wells. The fo Canyon, about twelve miles above and was very primitive. Accordin "There are no accommodations an two hundred to two hundred and f provide themselves with tents or bu for drinking and bathing. There a scoops out a hole in the soft mud f up roughly, and thus improvises were said to have curative power visitors drank more potent liquids. an item in a local Anaheim ne Athearn, editor of the Gazette, go Hot Springs at San Juan Capistra having a good time there. An advertisement in the Los 24, 1878, urged its readers to "G They are a sovereign remedy for kidney disorders." Fulton's Wells Springs. Dr. J. E. Fulton purchas three water wells, and in 1878 erec acres into "villa lots." In a brochure

Health Problems

Like every pioneer community, Anaheim had many health problems besides consumption. Diphtheria was greatly dreaded and took the lives of many childen. Babies died of an illness described as "fever", which may have been dysentery or meningitis, the latter probably being of the epidemic variety.

Nursing bottles of the period were not conducive to infant health. They were narrow necked and provided with a rubber tube to which a nipple was attached. "The Peerless Nurser" (trade mark registered March 21, 1878) was hailed by its manufacturer as a great improvement by reason of a "valve" fastened to the end of the tube inserted into the bottle. A catalog illustrating this nurser carries this instruction: "To clean the above bottle, use tepid water and the brush enclosed in the box with the Nurser; to clean the [rubber] tube, remove it from the bottle and insert the valved end into the tepid water, compressing the Nipple until the Tube is thoroughly cleaned." [9]

Most families owned one or more horses and the manure pile at the rear of the home not only provided an ideal breeding place for flies, but also constituted a constant threat of tetanus or lockjaw to anyone sustaining a cut near the barn. There was an ever present danger of typhoid fever from polluted drinking water.

Official Visit

by Jeanne Fredrick

Grand President Annette Caiocca made her official visit to Reina del Mar No. 126 and Tierra de Oro No. 304 in the Eagles Hall, Santa Barbara. Members and guests met in the Sky Restaurant at the Santa Barbara Inn for dinner preceding the formal meeting. Dinner guests of the hostess Parlors including Grand President Annette, were SDDGP Jeanne Fredrick, District No. 31 and Past President of Tierra de Oro and DGPs Edith Webster and Thelma Hodgkins.

A special guest was Pearl Chase who is listed on the Roll of Honor of the Native Daughters of the Golden West. Miss Chase was introduced to the Grand President and members of the Order by State Chairman of Conservation and Safety, Amelia Acres. Miss Chase has been commended for her service and conservation of California wild flowers; for encouraging better homes and social welfare and for preserving and marking historic shrines of California. Miss Chase complimented the State organization of their continued efforts to preserve the history of the State of California. She commented on the theme of the evening "The commemoration of the 185th anniversary of the founding of the Royal Presidio Santa Barbara" and expressed her great desire to see the preservation of this historical site completed. Our Grand President thanked her for her remarks and expressed her pleasure in having the opportunity to meet and know one of the ladies listed on the Native Daughters of the Golden West Roll of Honor, a privilege rarely experienced by members of the Order.

The hall was decorated in keeping with the theme, under the chairmanship of Mary Louise Days, First Vice President of Reina del Mar Parlor. Spring flowers and drawings of the Royal Presidio decorated the stations. A replica of the El Cuartel adobe, the oldest building in Santa Barbara and now a historical landmark, was displayed on the refreshment table. Corsages of hand-crafted hibiscus blossoms were worn by officers and honored guests. The hibiscus has just been selected as the official flower of the City of Santa Barbara.

During the evening, Grand President Annette Caiocca presented a 50-year membership pin to Edna Cannon, past president of Reina del Mar and a 25-year membership pin to Jeanne Romero, past president of Tierra de Oro. New members initiated were Mary Weatherbee, Lua Safwenberg, Frances Romero, Beatrice Anderson, Jayne Gonzales and Patricia Jiminez of Tierra de Oro and Janelle Bell of Reina del Mar. Marianna Schmitter, President of Reina del Mar conducted the initiation ceremony. Gertrude Reed, President of Tierra de Oro introduced the honored guests including PGP Eileen Dismuke. Visitors included Anita Land from Eschol No. 16, Freida Sesma, from El Aliso No. 314, Mary Rule,

CAMELLIA'S YEAR

The year of 1967 is proving to be a busy year for the members of Camellia No. 41 of Anderson. Gertrude Treat was installed as this year's president. The hall was decorated in pink and silver for the occasion. Angels, a favorite collection item of the new president, were the theme. Camellia Parlor's Junior Unit No. 15 did the escort work for the evening. They rolled a red carpet out for Gertrude to walk to her station upon and ended the meeting with a candlelight Bible escort. Edna Heulsman of Lassen View No. 98 was the installing officer. Betty Toms sang a song written for Gertrude by Rosemary McCabe.

Pat Griffen and Marilyn Ostergard hosted a birthday party for Mabel Wright at the home of Mrs. Ostergard. The party was a surprise to the 84 year-old Mabel. Mabel is still active in the organization, and often does us the honor of reciting the Flag Charge at initiations. She does it so well that it gives us all the true meaning of that charge.

On Arbor Day, Gertrude Treat and other members planted a Camellia bush at the Cottonwood Grammar School, the third grade class took part in the ceremonies. Peggy Buck and Julie McCormick were appointed as Camellia Parlor's representatives to the new Scholarship Association at Anderson High School. A check from the Parlor was given the organization. Members of Camellia Parlor also took part in the March of Dimes, Heart Fund, and Cancer Society fund drives.

El Camino Real Bells

PGP Eileen Dismuke

Past Grand President Eileen Dismuke, Tierra de Oro Parlor No. 304, Santa Barbara, has been invited to be guest speaker at El Camino Real Bell dedications to be held in the next two months period.

Placerita Parlor No. 277, Native Daughters of the Golden West, dedicated a bell at the Leonis Adobe, historical landmark of the San Fernando Valley, on Saturday May 20, at 1:00 p.m. The bell was dedicated in memory of a devoted member of their Parlor, now deceased, Grace Williamson. Mrs. Dismuke told the story of the bell, especially as it pertained to the San Fernando Valley area in the early bell program, sponsored by the original El Camino Real Association.

The second dedication will take place in North Burlingame, when a bell will be dedicated by the North Burlingame Woman's Club, of which Mrs. George N. Frykberg is President. The Federation of Women's Club sparked the El Camino Real Bell program at the turn of the century, when Mrs. A. S. C. Forbes served as History and Landmarks Chairman for the state-wide organization, and members of the Federation have continued their interest with the rebirth of the program in 1958 for replacement of El Camino Real Bells. Mrs. Dismuke will fly to San Francisco to be the houseguest of Mr. and Mrs. Byron Doyle, of Belmont, who will accompany her to the dedication, at which she will be the principal speaker. Mrs. Doyle is a past president of Bonita Parlor No. 10, Redwood City.

face of the card there might appear, at the top, the name of the district and perhaps a small devise (the arms of the country, etc). On the left hand would be space for the date-stamp of the receiving office, offset on the other side by a previously cancelled postage imprint. There would be additional room for the address and any other necessary printed notices. The reverse side of the card was to be reserved for the actual communication.

It was another four years, however, before the world's first authorized postcard came into existence. On October 1, 1869, the Austrian Postal Administration issued a group of thin, buff-colored cards imprinted with a yellow 2 Kreuzer stamp.[3] The popularity of the new medium was quickly acknowledged and within a few months, several million of the "midget letters" had been sold.

The Original Arches of San Juan Capistrano Mission

THE United States Government made its first "Post Card" available in May of 1873, but the innovation was not immediately welcomed. One writer complained that "my grudge against the postal card is that it is gradually developing an affection of the eye — in others as well as myself — which I may call heteropsis, that is, the tendency to read against your own will postal cards not addressed to yourself."[4]

Although common throughout less puritanical Europe in the 1890's, "the first picture postcards published in the United States of America — apart from some earlier advertising cards— were placed on sale at the World Columbian Exhibition at Chicago in May 1893."[5] Congress officially sanctioned "Private Mailing Cards" five years later by extending the same message privileges and rates already prevalent on the government-issued cards. New postal regulations in 1901 spelled out a broader policy for "Post Cards" which remained legally d i s t i n c t from the official "Postal cards." After 1907, further stipulations allowed messages on the reverse side of pictorial postcards, provided some provision was made for a verticle dividing line to set off the actual communication from the section reserved for the address.

Postcards have been regarded by some as a medium of popular art and there is some justification for the theory that the pictorial version originated as a means of promoting taste and the appreciation of art. The producers of postcards, whether they were artists, photographers or printers, shared in this unique form of folk-art. Their best examples resulted from the mingling of drawing and photography or from the one being superimposed on the other. Since the basic color-tone could be modified considerably, a wide variety of depictions was possible and intervening issues effectively portray the changing public tastes in brightness of coloring and degree of glossiness. The character of the early postcards was limited by their shape, size and thickness — all of which was carefully determined by the Universal Postal Union when a thin piece of 5½ by 3½ inch cardboard was adopted as the official type.

History of Grace Parlor

Compiled by Matilda Enfield and Presented at 40th Anniversary by Doris Jacobsen

MEMBERS AND GUESTS — Did you know that Native Daughters of the Golden West was born in Jackson, Amador County? Yes it was and the date was September 11, 1886. The originator was Lily O. Reichling, a native of the Mother Lode Country. The first group chose the name Ursula. As there were no suitable meeting halls for the ladies, they met in the parlors at each others homes. Thus we began with Parlor No. 1. Three other Parlors were immediately formed in San Francisco, and so, on down through the years till June 2, 1927, when Grace Parlor No. 242 came into being.

And did you know that at Grand Parlor Convention in 1891, a resolution by Alta Parlor No. 3, San Francisco was presented "Asking all Sub-ordinate Parlors to create a patriotic sentiment in their section of the State for the introduction of patriotic observances into public schools including a daily salute to the American Flag?" Now, do you not feel proud that your Order led the way?

The Golden West Magazine was the official paper and the Bear was adopted as emblematic of our Order. In 1895 the colors of the Order were adopted. Scarlet for Courage—Gold, symbolic of our State and White, symbolic of Purity. The wording is a little different now but the meaning is the same.

Lilly O. Reichling, founder of the NDGW Order

In 1899 the Native Daughter Home began in a private residence on O'Farrell St. in San Francisco. The New Home was built at 555 Baker St. shortly after Grand Parlor Session in 1927. The cost was $80,000. It's all paid for and now has a new addition. The Emma J. Foley Historical Museum and many additions and improvements in the Home itself. All were made possible by donations from each subordinate Parlor, the sale of property willed to the Order and several other large sums willed to the Order by deceased members.

Preservation of the Redwoods started in 1900 when Native Daughters sent resolutions to Washington "to save the Big Trees of Calaveras Grove from destruction." Now 67 years later we know how successful were the efforts of our predecessors and how grateful we should be to them for their thoughtful and earnest efforts. Grace Parlor donated toward the purchase of the Native Daughter Grove on the Redwood Highway.

In 1900, Dr. Marianna Bertola spoke in favor of scholarships for Native Daughters. Mills College in Berkeley was chosen for the first Scholarship. There are now six awards made annually: two to Mills College, two to any campus of the University of California and two for business courses. Grace Parlor has had two scholarship awards, both to the University of California. Grace Parlor is now starting a scholarship fund for the purchase of books for some deserving local student.

Grace Parlor No. 242 was instituted in Fullerton, June 2, 1927, and named for PGP Grace S. Stoermer. A dinner preceding the meeting was served at McFarland's Cafe on North Spadra and the meeting was at Ebell Club house on Chapman. Bertha Hitt of Santa Ana was the organizer. Grand President Pearl Lamb and Miss Stoermer conducted the institution ceremonies. Twenty - three members were then initiated. Of the 23, two are still members of the Parlor: Matilda Enfield and her sister-in-law Dorinda Marzo. Before the charter was closed December, 1927, forty-six more members were initiated among them Recording Secretary Kate Hill.

Mary Rothaermel was charter past president and Nellie Cline was first president. Among the other officers were Lydia Oswald, trustee and Matilda Enfield, inside sentinel. Nellie M. Cline, the Charter President was the first delegate to Grand Parlor in Modesto, June, 1927. Mrs. Cline for many years was City Clerk in Placentia. For the Seal, the Yorba Mansion House was adopted by the Parlor. On September 26 the first joint meeting was held with Santa Ana No. 235 for the Grand President's visit held in Santa Ana. Mae Himes Noonan was Grand President then. September 30 was the first Parlor card party. The Placentia Round Table Club House was rented and $43.00 was cleared. In October a pledge for $100 was made towards the building of the Native Daughter Home on Baker Street, San Francisco. It was paid off in a short time. On Armistice Day a float was entered in the parade in Fullerton. It was awarded 1st Prize — a beautiful "loving cup". A huge stuffed bear was rented from a Hollywood studio for $5. Members made huge poppies and several children of members rode on the float. A card party and cooked

CALIFORNIANA'S 39th BIRTHDAY
by Margaret Ann Kerr

Members and friends convened at luncheon June 13 at the Assistance League in Hollywood. President Blanch C. Oechsel presided. Decorations honored Flag Day.

All were saddened by the sudden passing on June 2 of the greatly beloved former Grand Trustee Florence Dodson Schoneman, under whose inspiration and guidance Californiana No. 247 was founded 39 years ago, and who has been a special guest on festive occasions. Her absence was keenly missed at this Parlor birthday luncheon. Affectionate tributes were given by President Oechsel, and PSP Phyllis Hirst who succeeded Mrs. Schoneman as State President of the NDGW State Past Presidents' Association and who travelled together over the State during their terms of office.

Mrs. Schoneman was the descendant of one of California's first families. Her great-grandfather was granted a large tract of land by the King of Spain, which is now part of Palos Verdes Estates. Her grandfather, Don Diego Sepulveda, built and resided in what is now registered as San Bernardino County's oldest house, with his bride, Maria (Elisalde) Sepulveda, 1839-1851. This historic adobe is situated at 14th and Kentucky Streets in Yucaipa and is open to the public at a State Park, where numerous family relics are on display. The San Bernardino rancho was sold to the Mormons in 1851 for 25¢ an acre, with many cattle "thrown in".

Parlor News

Her parents, James Hilsey Dodson, Sr., and Rudecinda (Sepulveda) Dodson, resided in San Pedro where she was born May 16, 1882. Mr. Dodson was the early developer of San Pedro for whom streets and several landmarks are also named in the Port area, and who served as Postmaster for many years. Her mother founded Rudecinda Parlor No. 230, San Pedro, and the California History and Landmarks Club of the General Federation of Women's Clubs in Los Angeles, of which Mrs. Schoneman served as President. She was President of the San Bernardino County Federated Clubs in 1914, the first president of the San Pedro Woman's Club, 1915-16, and attended their national conventions. She founded Lugonia Parlor No. 241 in San Bernardino, and the California group in the Friday Morning Club in Los Angeles, of which she had been a member since 1915 and a Vice President. Mrs. Schoneman served with distinction as State Chairman of History and Landmarks and Mission Restoration in the NDGW and the Federated Clubs for many terms, and lectured through the State. The Cross at the entrance to Olvera Street, of which she was Madrina, has been daily decked with flowers in her memory. Ávila House, Los Angeles' oldest house and a State Landmark open to the public, contains many family furnishings and was the scene of countless historical events in which her forebearers participated. School tours are conducted there regularly. The Plaza restoration drew heavily on her records and knowledge. Mrs. Schoneman and her mother were devoted members of the American Legion Auxiliary and visited the Veterans' Hospitals frequently. Her good works are too widespread to recite.

Survivors include Mr. Carl ("Don Carlos") Dodson and family of San Bernardino; a granddaughter, Mrs. L. R. Combs of Orange; a grandson, Lance Varney who has completed his tour of duty in the U.S. Marine Corps; a great-grandson, Christopher Combs; a sister-in-law, Mrs. Ruth Butterworth, and other fond relatives.

Native Daughters officiated, with PGP Hazel Hanson in charge. Private internment followed in the family mausoleum, in historic Harbor View Cemetery, San Pedro. Representing Californiana No. 247 at the Memorial Services in San Pedro, June 7 were PGP Mary B. Barden, President Oechsel, VP Inez Hobbs, Trustee Lela Capra and Miss Margaret Ann Kerr.

In her final instructions, Mrs. Schoneman personally requested that in lieu of flowers, contributions may be made to the Native Daughters of the Golden West Historical Room, c/o The Grand Secretary, 614 Central Tower, Building, San Francisco 94103.

FRACTURES were rather common and most pioneer doctors proved quite competent in setting broken bones without the present day aid of an X-ray. Splints were usually made from "shingles or boards fashioned with a jack-knife" by the attending physician. There were no hospitals in Anaheim and surgical operations were usually performed in the home on the kitchen table. Chloroform was the favored anesthetic.[10]

"Cupping" was the popular method of drawing blood to or from the surface of the body. Carbolic acid was the approved antiseptic and castor oil the common purgative. Mustard plasters and flaxseed poultices were frequently used together with many so-called "home remedies."

Patent medicines were widely advertised and used. Nostrums such as Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters were claimed to possess "remarkable qualities . . . of healing the sick of every disease" including "Inflamation of the Liver and Visceral Organs . . . Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers . . . Scrofula or King's Evil . . . Inflammatory or Chronic Rheumatism . . . Pin, Tape and other Worms . . . Female Complaints." [11]

Sending for a doctor meant exactly that. There were no telephones. Pioneer physicians made their rounds on horseback, carrying their instruments and medicines in saddlebags. Later they used one-horse buggies. Riding about Anaheim on a dark night, with the ever present possibility of suddenly finding oneself in the bottom of an irrigation ditch, was difficult enough, but trying to find one's way over sketchy country roads in the absence of the moon was a formidable venture.

Except in the early years when Mrs. Herman Werder served the colony as its midwife, physicians usually presided at births in Anaheim and they did a remarkably fine job. Most of the village homes were fairly comfortable for mother and babe, but out in the country conditions were often primitive. "The pioneer farm houses," said Dr. C. D. Ball, "were little more than shacks often entirely destitute of comforts, where the doctor would shiver with the cold through the long night awaiting the advent of the stork." Women of extreme modesty were covered with a sheet during childbirth, a custom known as "delivery under the veil." [12]

Anaheim's Physicians

Anaheim was fortunate to have several doctors who had had a fine academic training according to the standards of that day. Of course their equipment was limited. Clinical thermometers were not in general use, probably because they were not very accurate and because many physicians regarded them as curiosities. The sphygmomanometer for measuring blood pressure had not yet been invented. Fevers and blood pressure were studied through the quality of the patient's pulse. Stethoscopes were in use although doctors frequently preferred pres... patients. [13]

Dr. John H. Yocum practiced his profession at Ashland, Pennsylvania, until 1873 when he came to Anaheim for his health. He was interested in civic affairs and active in the Presbyterian Church, but was not physically able to carry on a large practice. [17]

Dr. George H. Bailey was another Southern physician who came west. Upon receiving his M.D. degree from Tulane University in 1861 he had immediately joined the Confederate Army as a medical officer. For heroism in battle he was personally decorated by General J. B. Magruder. Searching for relief from asthma, in 1872 he moved with his family to Julian, California, then a bustling mining camp. He came to Anaheim three years later and died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Henry Kuchel, in 1909. [18]

Dr. Alice Boyle Higgins came to Aanheim in 1869 with her husband, Dr. Willliam M. Higgins. At the age of forty and the mother of five children, she decided to become a doctor. She was the first woman to enroll at The Medical College of the Pacific in San Francisco, matriculating in 1876 and receiving her M.D. degree one year later. After four years of active practice in Anaheim, Dr. Higgins took a course in the Women's Medical School of Philadelphia and upon her return enjoyed a busy professional career until 1886 when she suffered a paralytic stroke. [19]

Anaheim's First Drug Store

Dr. William M. Higgins established Anaheim's first drug store at the northeast corner of Lemon Street and Lincoln Avenue. He had come to California in 1850 as ship's doctor on the William Brandt and obtained employment as a pharmacist and bookkeeper at the San Francisco City Hospital. After some mining experience he moved with his family to Anaheim in 1869.

CALIFORNIANA'S BIRTHDAY...

FLAG DAY

Following the luncheon, Miss Kerr presented recommendation that Californiana No. 247 approve Bill under consideration by the House Judiciary Committee (Congressman Emanual Cellers, Chm.), sponsored by Congressman James H. Quillen of Kingsport, Tenn., which would make it a felony to desecrate, defile, trample upon or otherwise mutilate the American Flag or any representation thereof; that copies be sent to the foregoing, to California Congressmen and to the press. This was unanimously approved, and referred to Grand Parlor delegates President Blanch Oechsel and PGP Mary B. Barden for follow-up.

ASSOCIATION OF PAST PRESIDENTS

At the General Assembly of Past Presidents Association No. 21, Chico was honored by having its member, Mrs. Lloyd LaBreacht, elected to the office of State Director.

Four delegates and several visitors from Chico traveled to San Mateo's Villa Hotel, where the State Assembly was held. Delegates were Mmes. Lloyd La Breacht, Walter Bammann, Frank Cooley and Charles Spangler. Also attending in her capacity as a Past State President was Mrs. Ralph Girdler. Traveling with Mrs. Girdler was her husband and Mmes Elsie Bearse, Florence Handley, Monte Wade and Frank Dickey.

On Friday evening a reception was held in honor of State President Irene Hatch and other State Officers. Entertainment was provided by the excellent College Chorale of the College of San Mateo.

On Saturday morning the business meeting was presided over by President Hatch. She and her corps of officers were escorted into the Hall by an escort team dressed in white formals and carrying wands tipped with red net rosettes and a small white muffs on which perched a white dove. The State President's colors of red and white were carried out in the meeting hall.

Thirteen Past State Presidents formed a semi-circle at the Altar and were introduced. Among them, from this area, were Mrs. Girdler of Association 21, and Virginia Bannigan of Association 14.

PGP Evelyn Carlson was honored as a 50 year member of the Past Presidents Association. Also introduced were GM Hazel Mallette and PGPs Hazel B. Hansen and Norma Hodson.

Impressive memorial services were held honoring departed members. At the front of the hall stood a large white cross, topped with a dove and having a beautiful bouquet of white gladioli at the base. The drill team, dressed in white formals, filed slowly into the room and as each one passed the cross she placed a red carnation thereon in memory of each deceased member during the year. A soloist sang "The Old Rugged Cross" and "Ave Maria".

During the formal installation, Mrs. Blanche Perret of Association No. 4, Sacramento, took office as State President. An escort team comprised of members of Califia Parlor No. 22, escorted the officers and also performed an intricate beautifully executed drill. They wore Irish-green formals and held net heart-shaped carrying pieces with two-toned pink flowers and ribbon streamers. The incoming officers carried similar carrying pieces. Soloist for the ceremony was GT Nancy Conens. State officers installed, from our area, were State Director Katherine LaBreacht, Dorothy Rose and State Director Ella Brownfield.

The State Assembly was concluded on Sunday morning with a breakfast at the beautiful Cabana Hotel in Palo Alto, followed by a tour of the Stanford University Campus. At the breakfast drawing for door prizes, newly installed Sister Katherine LaBreacht won an over-night stay at The Cabana, a fitting climax for her trip to the State Assembly.

Members of Woodland No. 90 entertained the pioneer mothers of the community at their annual Mother's Night dinner. Mothers and mothers-in-law of the members were also honored. Decorations featured topiary trees in pastel shades of net and decorated with glitter. Gay floral place cards and favors were used. Each pioneer mother was presented with a corsage.

Entertainment consisted of an "Old and New" fashion show. A model in an 1890 night gown complete with night cap and carrying a candle contrasted with a model wearing a baby-doll gown. A bathing suit that had been worn at Santa Cruz in 1902 was modeled with a modern bikini. A woman going to market properly attired in hat and gloves and carrying a shopping basket was shown opposite a modern woman with her hair in curlers, wearing thong sandals and a muu-muu. There were many other examples, all interesting and funny. The members and guests agreed that it was "one of the best" Mother's Night programs that had been presented for a number of years.

Columbia's Diamond Anniversary

On Saturday, June 10, 1967, Columbia Parlor No. 70, located at French Corral, Nevada County, celebrated its seventy-fifth aniversary. A luncheon was served buffet style at noon in the old schoolhouse, where tables had been set for 80 persons. There was plenty of food, but space was at a premium, for the guest book contained 175 names! Eleven of Columbia Parlor's seventeen members attended the affair, and members of Laurel No. 6, Nevada City and Manzanita No. 29, Grass Valley, helped with the serving and other work.

GP Annette Caiocca made her official visit to the Parlor. Other Grand officers attending were: GVP June T. Goldie, GM Hazel Mallette, Grand Trustees: Nancy Conens, Virgilia McCombs, Rae Rominger and Betty Read Curilich; GIS Marie Landini and GOS Lila Hummel.

Past Grand Presidents in attendance were: Ethel C. Enos, Henrietta Toothaker, Jewel McSweeney, Norma Hodson, Irma Caton, Edna C. Williams, Alice D. Shea, Lee Brice and Fern Adams.

PGP Jewel McSweeney was the featured speaker and explained some of the services of the Children's Foundation, one of the important projects of the Native Daughters of the Golden West. Adele Browning, a member of Columbia Parlor No. 70, gave a brief history of the origin of French Corral and a partial list of the charter members as compiled in 1912 by then secretary, Kate Sullivan.

Columbia Parlor was the happy recipient of a number of congratulatory cards; a lovely money tree from Manzanita No. 29, a bear flag from Laurel No. 6; a small figurine

FRACTURES were rather common and most pioneer doctors proved quite competent in setting broken bones without the present day aid of an X-ray. Splints were usually made from "shingles or boards fashioned with a jack-knife" by the attending physician. There were no hospitals in Anaheim and surgical operations were usually performed in the home on the kitchen table. Chloroform was the favored anesthetic.[10]

"Cupping" was the popular method of drawing blood to or from the surface of the body. Carbolic acid was the approved antiseptic and castor oil the common purgative. Mustard plasters and flaxseed poultices were frequently used together with many so-called "home remedies."

Patent medicines were widely advertised and used. Nostrums such as Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters were claimed to possess "remarkable qualities . . . of healing the sick of every disease" including "Inflamation of the Liver and Visceral Organs . . . Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers . . . Scrofula or King's Evil . . . Inflammatory or Chronic Rheumatism . . . Pin, Tape and other Worms . . . Female Complaints." [11]

Sending for a doctor meant exactly that. There were no telephones. Pioneer physicians made their rounds on horseback, carrying their instruments and medicines in saddlebags. Later they used one-horse buggies. Riding about Anaheim on a dark night, with the ever present possibility of suddenly finding oneself in the bottom of an irrigation ditch, was difficult enough, but trying to find one's way over sketchy country roads in the absence of the moon was a formidable venture.

Except in the early years when Mrs. Herman Werder served the colony as its midwife, physicians usually presided at births in Anaheim and they did a remarkably fine job. Most of the village homes were fairly comfortable for mother and babe, but out in the country conditions were often primitive. "The pioneer farm houses," said Dr. C. D. Ball, "were little more than shacks often entirely destitute of comforts, where the doctor would shiver with the cold through the long night awaiting the advent of the stork." Women of extreme modesty were covered with a sheet during childbirth, a custom known as "delivery under the veil." [12]

Anaheim's Physicians

Anaheim was fortunate to have several doctors who had had a fine academic training according to the standards of that day. Of course their equipment was limited. Clinical thermometers were not in general use, probably because they were not very accurate and because many physicians regarded them as curiosities. The sphygmomanometer for measuring blood pressure had not yet been invented. Fevers and blood pressure were studied through the quality of the patient's pulse. Stethoscopes were in use although doctors frequently preferred pressing patients. [13]

The most colorful of the pioneer N. Hardin who arrived in Anaheim made justice of the peace. He had l a remarkable man, hawk-nosed a natural ability, a descendant of a addition to practicing medicine Dr. horticulture. He commenced his citr two barrels of decayed Tahitian oran the seeds. Dr. John H. Yocum practiced his profession at Ashland, Pennsylvania, until 1873 when he came to Anaheim for his health. He was interested in civic affairs and active in the Presbyterian Church, but was not physically able to carry on a large practice. [17]

Dr. George H. Bailey was another Southern physician who came west. Upon receiving his M.D. degree from Tulane University in 1861 he had immediately joined the Confederate Army as a medical officer. For heroism in battle he was personally decorated by General J. B. Magruder. Searching for relief from asthma, in 1872 he moved with his family to Julian, California, then a bustling mining camp. He came to Anaheim three years later and died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Henry Kuchel, in 1909. [18]

Dr. Alice Boyle Higgins came to Aanheim in 1869 with her husband, Dr. Willliam M. Higgins. At the age of forty and the mother of five children, she decided to become a doctor. She was the first woman to enroll at The Medical College of the Pacific in San Francisco, matriculating in 1876 and receiving her M.D. degree one year later. After four years of active practice in Anaheim, Dr. Higgins took a course in the Women's Medical School of Philadelphia and upon her return enjoyed a busy professional career until 1886 when she suffered a paralytic stroke. [19]

Dr. William M. Higgins established Anaheim's first drug store at the northeast corner of Lemon Street and Lincoln Avenue. He had come to California in 1850 as ship's doctor on the William Brandt and obtained employment as a pharmacist and bookkeeper at the San Francisco City Hospital. GP Annette Caiocca made her official visit to the Parlor. Other Grand officers attending were: GVP June T. Goldie, GM Hazel Mallette, Grand Trustees: Nancy Conens, Virgilia McCombs, Rae Rominger and Betty Read Curilich; GIS Marie Landini and GOS Lila Hummel.

Past Grand Presidents in attendance were: Ethel C. Enos, Henrietta Toothaker, Jewel McSweeney, Norma Hodson, Irma Caton, Edna C. Williams, Alice D. Shea, Lee Brice and Fern Adams.

PGP Jewel McSweeney was the featured speaker and explained some of the services of the Children's Foundation, one of the important projects of the Native Daughters of the Golden West. Adele Browning, a member of Columbia Parlor No. 70, gave a brief history of the origin of French Corral and a partial list of the charter members as compiled in 1912 by then secretary, Kate Sullivan.

Columbia Parlor was the happy recipient of a number of congratulatory cards; a lovely money tree from Manzanita No. 29, a bear flag from Laurel No. 6; a small figurine of a grizzly bear with a "diamond" necklace, from Ursula No. 1; and checks from Ursula Parlor and from Hydraulic Parlor No. 56, Native Sons of the Golden West, Nevada City.

Heartfelt thanks go to Ruth Skoverski, chairman for the event; to Sue Hillman of Clear Lake No. 135, now living in our area and working right along with us; to Fred H. Butz, Hydraulic Parlor No. 56, NSGW, who lent his equipment and made and served the coffee; to the members of Laurel No. 6 and Manzanita No. 29 who so generously gave of their time and talents to make the affair a success; to Frances Baker and Louise Dudley, daughters of our secretary, Fannie Moulton, who did so much of the preliminary and clean-up work, although neither is a member of Columbia Parlor; to Verda Kempster and her friend from George C. Yount No. 322, for arranging flowers and other services rendered; and to all who assisted is making this a memorable occasion.

WOODLAND

A dozen members of Woodland No. 90 drove the 180 mile round trip to Fout Springs Boys' Ranch to present a Bear Flag to the ranch. The ranch is situated in the Coast Range mountains near Stonyford in Colusa County. It is operated jointly by Yolo, Colusa and Solano counties. Johanne Lewis, wife of the Ranch superintendent, Harvey Lewis, is a member of Woodland Parlor, although, needless to say, since moving to the ranch three years ago, she doesn't get to parlor meetings much any more. Before the presentation, members had lunch with the boys, and afterwards had a tour of the buildings. Woodland Parlor had presented a Bear Flag to the ranch about two years ago, which has since worn out. The members found many improvements had taken place since their earlier visit. On the way to the ranch, the beautiful wild flowers in Bear Valley were seen and enjoyed. There were acres and acres of wild flowers of dozens of different varieties in all different colors and shades. It was a sight to remember.

LAUREL

The 80th birthday of Laurel Parlor No. 6 was celebrated with a dinner and program followed by a short business meeting. Ethel Brady, president with DGP Phyllis Butz, and SDDGP Gladys Blanchard, were seated at the head table.

Lenore Coughlin, Vera Steger and Ann Trewhella formed the committee that gave the group one of the warmest and happiest evenings of the year. The table was decorated with red and pink camellias placed in compotes which were gifts of Native Daughters of years ago — Nellie Clarke, Josie Muscardini and Alison Watt. The beautifully dressed old-fashioned dolls from Lenore Coughlin's collection were conversation pieces, some being dolls of Native Daughters whom we all remembered.

An article was read from The Morning Union of Thursday, April 22, 1909 that told of the 22nd anniversary of Laurel Parlor. Miss Frieda Hieronimus (Ronchi) was president at the time. Another article from the Transcript, dated July 16th, 1904, told of the installation of officers by Ollie Gaylord. Many memories were renewed of happy times at Laurel Parlor since its institution, April 13, 1887.

During the business meeting Gwen Anderson and Gladys Blanchard were nominated as delegates to Grand Parlor in June. Mae Norton and Eleaor Bolton were chosen as the alternates.

ANNIVERSARY

June 1 Grace Parlor No. 242 celebrated its 40th anniversary with an open meeting attended by a large number of visitors including DGP Edrene Garner of Verdugo No. 240 and SDDGP Betty Summerhays of Poppy Trail No. 266.

Kate Hill, chairman of the evening introduced a group of 7th grade girls who sang a group of songs. Doris Jacobsen presented a short history of the Order and the high-lights of the Parlor's 40 years with interludes of singing by President Patricia Wilkes and friend.

Six 25 year pins were presented this year. The three members present to receive them were Jessie D. Anderson, Sylvia Meyers and Alice Martindale. Those unable to be present were Jeanne Barks, Viola Richards and Lillie Lopera. Matilda Enfield, charter member and only remaining active member of the 26 candidates initiated the night of June 2, 1927, presented the pins.

Kate Hill, charter member who was initiated December 1, 1927, before the Charter was closed, decorated the refreshment tables with lovely home-grown bouquets of flowers. Birthday cake, and chips and dips were served.

A short business meeting was held after the party during which time officers for 1967-1968 term were elected.

FLORENCE DODSON SCHONEMAN

Members of the Native Daughters of the Golden West and friends paid final tribute to Florence Dodson Schoneman, on June 2, 1967, at Halverson's Mortuary in San Pedro. The NDGW service was conducted by PGP Hazel B. Hansen, assisted by GVP June Goldie; Alice Parker, Rudecinda; Margaret Heath, Wilmington; Margaret Harris, La Tijera and Leola Temby, Long Beach. Interment was in the family mausoleum, San Pedro Harbor Cemetery beside her daughter Georgia and parents.

At request of the family, in lieu of flowers, donations may be made to the NDGW Historical Room, care of Grand Secretary, 614 Central Tower Building, San Francisco.

PGP Hazel B. Hansen

Commendations were given in the message delivered by Hazel B. Hansen:

"I fully realize how difficult it is to speak of Florence Dodson Schoneman rightly; how impossible it is to do it worthily; but I shall speak as a friend to those of you who loved her and whose respect and affection we shared.

Florence Dodson Schoneman was born in the Diego Sepulveda Ranch House, as was her mother before her, on the Rancho Palos Verdes, May 16, 1882. She was the daughter of Rudecinda Sepulveda de Dodson and James Hillsey Dodson, one of San Pedro's earliest settlers. Except for the few years of her married life in New York, she spent her entire life in Los Angeles and vicinity.

Her association with the Native Daughters and her interest in, and love for our Order occupied a greater portion of her life. It began as a young woman when she was a member of La Esperanza Parlor, now known as Los Angeles No. 124. With her enthusiasm for the growth of the NDGW she participated in the organization of many Parlors in this area. In 1925 she joined the newly instituted Rudecinda Parlor, named in honor of her mother, and was its honorary Past President. She assisted Marvel Thomas in the organization of Verdugo Parlor, Grace Stoermer, with Californiana; Mary Noerenberg Barden, Wilmington; Maxiene Porter, La Tijera, Hazel B. Hansen, Ontario and Compton. She was the organizer and "Mother" of Lugonia Parlor.

Florence Dodson Schoneman served our Order as Grand Trustee, Chairman of History and Landmarks, Member of the NDGW Home Board and on many other state committees. She was instrumental in organizing the NDGW Juniors. She was a State Past President of the NDGW Past Presidents Association. She was proud of her heritage and her greatest interest was preserving the history and traditions of her beloved State, and for all this, she perhaps was better known and had a larger circle of friends and acquaintances in the historical and civic groups of our State, than any other member of our organization.

Florence was a life member of the Friday Morning Club; the first president of the Woman's Club of San Pedro; member of the California Historical Society, and was known as the Madrina of Olvera Street. These are but a few of her many memberships and activities in other worthy organizations.

She possessed a remarkable memory and a well-balanced mind, the equilibrium and faculties well and evenly ordered; the luminous insight of a calm judgment; gifts which are rarely found in any one human being; but these high qualities were found in Florence, combined with honesty of purpose, kindness of heart and loyalty.

Always a true Native Daughter of the Golden West, she typified in her daily life, the lofty principles and ideals upon which our Order is founded. Her life was happy and satisfying which she lived to the fullest, filled with good works and crowned with sincerity, patience and devotion to family and friends. Those who possessed her friendship were enriched by it.

But she is no more — no more you ask? May I say boldly, she lives — lives in the hearts of all of us; lives in the pages of our history.

Florence Dodson Schoneman passed away in her sleep June 2, 1967, and is survived by a devoted family. Her pride and joy during her life were her two grandchildren,

SEQUOIA

With Mrs. Lloyd Bredehoft as general chairman and Mildred Mainieri as co-chairman, Sequoia No. 272 observed its 28th anniversary at the Sinaloa Mexican Cantina in San Francisco. A chartered bus carried the many members and their guests to the cafe and return. Special tables were reserved for the occasion. Prior to the dinner hour, cocktails were enjoyed.

During the evening a fiesta of folk songs and dances was enjoyed. Two guitarists visited each table, singing and playing request numbers. A photographer took pictures of those at each table and presented individual book of matches with the buyer's picture.

Corsages were presented to PGP Edna Williams, organizer and current Parlor president and Mrs. Benjamin Coats, DGP. Special guests who were seated at the head table included, Mr. and Mrs. Coats, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Bredehoft, Mr. and Mrs. John Bredehoft, Mrs. Williams and PGP Alice Shea. Each table seating six had bouquets of Spring flowers in unique Mexican pottery bowls. All waitresses were dressed in Mexican costumes.

Dancing was enjoyed with the accompaniment of a Mexican orchestra between the fiesta shows presented.

A Tribute to Aunt Tenny

by Joy Grenz

Mamasita,
Mother mine
His and yours and theirs and thine;
Live a life so full of bliss
Sadness, joy and forgiveness.
Darling Mama, we will miss
The time you had the time to kiss
When we were small and you were grown
And your sweet face meant warmth and all
The things a mama means,—
Good food, good friends, God's grace and dreams
And we will think of you each day
Our heritage is here to stay.
You laid the good foundation stone
And now that we feel all alone
We're not because you did your part
And thank you Mama from our heart.

This was written in memory of Tenny Padilla by a good friend of Santa Ana Parlor No. 235, Native Daughters of the Golden West.

HISTORY . . .

food sale made up the expense of $50 for the float.

In January, 1928, the first pot-luck dinner was served 68 members. Also in March donations of materials for long table clothes were made by Nellie Cline, Mattie Edwards, Rosetta Sparks, Tillie Enfield and the two Lenas. We had become quite an intimate group by this time and felt free to use our given names. April 19 was the start of the Native Daughter "Merry - go - round". The group of members went to Long Beach Parlor for their Hawaiian Party. On May 28 we celebrated the first anniversary with a pot-luck picnic at Orange County Park and nearly every year thereafter till 1939 when we picnicked at Anaheim City Park. July 5, Clara Schumacher presented the Parlor the little basket which is still in use for the penny march. Clara made the basket while vacationing at Big Bear. The little basket is 39 years old. It must be a very happy basket, for every penny it ever held was used to make somebody a little more happy.

The Sewing Club was organized in August, 1928, by Helen Anderson. The meetings were held the second Tuesdays. The first meeting was a picnic at Anaheim Landing on September 11. I wonder how much sewing was accomplished and where is Anaheim Landing today?

On the first Homeless Childrens Committee was Nellie Cline, Matilda Enfield and Cally Sparks. The Homeless Childrens' Adoption Agency of Native Daughters of the Golden West and Native Sons of the Golden West, was then one of only two adoption agencies in the State of California.

In 1930, began a new method in raising money for the Agency. Each Parlor was given the privilege of "adopting" a baby by paying $37.50. This sum was paid for six weeks of a new born baby's care. The Parlor could could choose its own name for the baby. Our girls were named for the Native Daughter presidents and honored members; the boys for our boys in service.

Grace Parlor adopted its first baby March 16, 1933, and named her Grace Florence for our beloved Grace S. Stoermer and Florence Schoneman. In July, 1944, we had our 18th baby. We led all other Parlors in the State and kept that position till the end of the Agency in February, 1948, with 37 babies to our credit. Not only were babies adopted and paid for, we also made dozens and dozens of complete laycttes. One dollar a member was paid in 1935, also in 1937 and generous cash gifts were given to the Agency at Christmas time. Isn't it wonderful to have the feeling of a job well done?

HYDRAULIC MINING

BY
J. J. FRIIS

Hydraulic mining at French Corral in the early days

GOLD WAS FIRST FOUND in California in the channels of flowing streams. Throughout the centuries particles of the precious metal had been carried from their source by the swift moving currents and deposited in the gravels of rivers. Industrious miners stood in icy waters and panned this gold from its resting place.

Prospectors soon discovered that gold was present in gravels where there was no water. Geologists explained that these "dry diggings" lay in the beds of extinct rivers whose swirling waters, in the dim distant past, had also carried gold from Mother Nature's treasure chest.

In working these ancient river beds miners resorted to a practice called "ground sluicing" wherein they brought water to their claims. In April, 1852, "Frenchy" A. Chabot used a 35 foot length of canvas hose in sluicing off dirt which had been loosened by a pick. The hose had no nozzle and Chabot probably never thought of using it to break up the earth.

It remained for an ingenious Yankee to take the next step. In the following year E. E. Mattison, who was working a claim on American Hill, attached a nozzle to a hose and directed a stream of water against a gravel bank. Results were magical. Here was a method by which labor costs could be substantially reduced! However, Mattison was to experience much trouble. His canvas hose persisted in bursting. Reinforcements of netting and rope proved unsatisfactory. A plan to cover the hose with stove pipe met with little success. Wooden nozzles warped and split. Finally Mattison hit upon the use of wrought iron pipe with tapered ends.

Writing about 30 years later, in their history of Nevada County, Thompson and West stated, "Great improvements have been made in the method of hydraulic mining. The first hose used had but a half-inch nozzle and was made of canvas. This was gradually increased to a two-inch model, still using canvas hose. Pipes of boiler iron, generally 18 inches in diameter, are now used to conduct the water into the claims sometimes from a height of 400 feet above the point of delivery, giving a terrific pressure where the stream is turned upon the bank. These iron pipes are ribbed and made of great strength to resist the enormous strain upon them by the outward pressure of the water."

With the improvement in methods came the monitor which replaced the nozzle. This iron machine was so constructed as to permit it to be easily moved in any direction like the turret gun of a battleship. The orifice from which the water was discharged ranged from four to nine inches in diameter.

Without question some enthusiastic writer for Thompson and West saw these monitors in action for he wrote, "The torrent of water rushes from the pipe with an angry roar and hurls itself in an unbroken mass 200 feet. The bank crumbles before its might and the dirt and rocks are washed swiftly away to the mouth of the tunnel through which they are carried by the muddy stream. A large stone of 50 pounds weight, tossed upon the stream as it issues from the mouth of the pipes, will be carried with the speed of an arrow a distance of a hundred feet before it recovers from its astonishment enough to roll off.

"A discharge of 1,000 inches of water in a single stream is not unusual. Such a stream would deliver 1,570 cubic feet per minute, or in a ten hours' run the enormous total of 942,000 cubic feet equal to 7,085,000 gallons of water. The amount of earth that can be washed away by this volume of water is enormous."

The results of this profligate use of water and power tolled the death knell for hydraulic mining. As Charles G. Yale said, "The immense detritus . . . commonly called 'debris', resulting from the work, was allowed to go where it might, and, while much was deposited in canyons or gulches, vast quantities entered the navigable streams, injuring and shoaling them, and doing damage to the farming and horticultural lands along the banks.

The California Missions in Miniature

The Mission Postcards

In 1910, George Watson Cole reported, "The most familiar form in which the old missions are presented to the eye at the present time is perhaps the post card." Even a cursory glance at the volume of productions from the various publishing houses lends credence to that assertion.

The largest western publisher of postcards was Edward H. Mitchell of San Francisco. His firm issued about 4,000 different scenes between 1898 and 1915, including thirty-two postcards depicting fourteen missions. In addition to an alternate series of scenes published on yellow or canary colored paper, Mitchell printed many cards distributed by other Californiana specialty houses.

Mission Santa Cruz

San Gabriel Mission

The Detroit Publishing Company, originally known as the Photochrome Company, issued postcards from 1898 until 1919. Experts generally agree that the output of this firm was by far the most important in the American postcard field.[7] It is estimated that approximately 15,000 different cards were published in their "photostint" process, 700 of which fell into the category of art and humor. An unspecified number of their twenty-nine views of twelve missions were printed in Switzerland.

Twelve views of five missions and one asistencia were published by the Cardinell-Vincent Company of Oakland. This firm was an outgrowth of Britton and Rey, early San Francisco lithographers. M. Rieder of Los Angeles disseminated the greatest variety of specimens on the missions, representing all but San José. Among his 181 depictions are the only known views of Santa Ysabel and San Pascual. Published in several places, mostly in Germany, then the center of the postcard industry, the Rieder line was purchased by George O. Restall about 1909.

There were 132 postcards distributed by the Oscar Newman Company of Los Angeles and San Francisco. The depictions of eighteen missions and two capillas were made in Germany prior to World War I and later in the United States. Adam Clark Vroman of Pasadena circulated thirty-six replica colored prints of the missions. In addition to scenes of eighteen different missions and one capilla, was one outstanding postcard-map of El Camino Real, reproduced from the original used in the census of 1890.

Twenty different mission scenes were among the forty-four postcards published by the Paul C. Koeber Company of New York City. Included among the four scenes of asistencias is a rare view of Santa Margarita. The L. R. Severn firm of Los Angeles issued twenty-two views of six missions and two capillas on postcards printed in Germany. In later years the business was merged with Woods Publishers of Los Angeles and Leipzig.

The Pacific Novelty Company of San Francisco distributed fourteen views of seven missions and one capilla. Another Bay Area firm, Richard Behrendt, circulated mission post-

An El Camino Real bell has been installed at the old Miguel Leonis Adobe by Placerita No. 277. The presentation at the 125 year-old Valley landmark was made by Corinne Brandenburg, president of Placerita. Accepting the bell were Ray Phillips, president of Leonis Adobe Association and Mrs. Charles Brown, president of the Friends of Leonis Adobe.

The adobe is a historical reminder of one pioneer's vast domain in the San Fernando Valley in the latter half of the 19th century. The house and grounds have been restored by the Association and the public is welcome on Wednesday, Saturday, and Sunday afternoons. It offers a historically accurate picture of early California living.

The bell, a replica of the guideposts which at one time marked El Camino Real throughout California, is dedicated to the memory of Grace Halsey Williamson, charter past president of Placerita Parlor. A bronze plaque was mounted beneath the bell as a monument to her interest and devotion to her state's history and landmarks. Many contributions from her friends and relatives have made this marking possible.

The story of Grace's life is also filled with California history. She was the first white girl to be born in Needles, and was ushered into this world by a railroad doctor who had never handled anything before but broken legs and arms. As children, Grace and her sister Ruth tramped the desert picking wild flowers and playing with Indian children. Most of the first social events of Needles were held around their mother's organ, by candlelight.

Grace's sister (now Ruth Halsey Jackman, a member of Topanga No. 269) reminisces further on their early life . . . "because of our mother's desire to remove two small girls from a town beset with saloons, railroad men and Indians, and because of the oppresive heat, we moved to Los Angeles in 1904. We were raised at Pico and Normandie in old Pico Heights, one-half block from where the fabulous Sophia Orthodox Church now stands. Two little brothers came to join us here, Jim and Ted. We all attended the old Berendo Street School and then the original Los Angeles High School, the old red brick building on the hill where the Music Center now stands. She graduated from there with high honors and was one of the speakers at the graduation exercises held from the stage of the old Philharmonic Theater. The very first classes of the present UCLA were held at the old L.A. High, so Grace took her first two years of college work there, thus, being a pioneer in the formation of the powerful present UCLA.

During these years the family traveled by surrey and by camp wagon, seeing much of this unpopulated and fascinating part of Southern California. Grace was with her family when we drove out to the bleak and barren grand opening of the city of Van Nuys.

She then attended the University of California at Berkeley, having won a scholarship. She spent her summers at Yosemite and hiked every trail there. After graduating with honors and becoming a full-fledged teacher, our dear father exclaimed, 'Imagine, a mite of girl like that making $250.00 a month!' Her first teaching experience was at Goffs, with 21 pupils in a one-room school. She later taught at Maxwell and Vacaville, where untrained, but undaunted, she taught German, Spanish, Greek and gym.

During this time she purchased her first car and became one of the first 'women drivers'. She was, as far as records go, the first woman to climb Half Dome in Yosemite and this, the hard way although it was 'pegged' for easy climbing. She was also one of the first women to climb Mt. Whitney, taking the long way from Sequoia. Her love of California, its beauty and its history, became an obsession. With 'good grace' indeed she lived and filled with beauty the lives of those who knew her as she grew. To me, it was wonderful to 'grow up' with Grace."

SAN FRANCISCO DEPUTIES

HOME COMING

The San Francisco Deputies and their SDDGP Marie Feil, wearing their deputy dresses, attended the home coming in St. Helena, of their First Lady, Annette Caiocca. A special bus carrying a full load of passengers and many private cars enjoyed, not only the evening, but the beautiful ride to St. Helena. All stopped in Rutherford for dinner before going on to the meeting. Several of those who had the time stayed over night and on Sunday visited many places of interest in and around St. Helena. Anita Gillick is to complimented on doing such a wonderful job as chairman.

DEPUTY LUNCHEON

"Love of Country" was the theme of the luncheon held in the lovely dining room, over looking the bay, of Sabella's Restaurant on the wharf, honoring Grand President Annette Caiocca. It will be a day long to be remembered by the 272 members and friends present. Opening remarks were made by Chairman DGP Gladys Knight of Golden Gate Parlor. The invocation was given by DGP Genevieve Landfried of Golden Gate and the salute to the flag of our country was led by DGP Jaredna Johnson. of James Lick, followed by the singing of the Star Spangled Banner led by GT Nancy Conens with PGO Frances Simas at the piano. Chairman Gladys Knight then presented SDDGP Marie Feil, who extended a welcome to all, and then presented the Present and Past Grand Officers of both Native Daughters and Native Sons of the Golden West and her own Deputies. The recitation "The Birth of the Bear Flag" by Sharon Douglas, President of Junior Unit No. 22 was outstanding. The guest speaker, Val King, Administrator Assistant to the Assessor of San Francisco County, gave a very inspiring address on our heritage and why we must preserve it. SDDGP Marie Feil presented our Grand President with a gift in keeping with the theme. Grand President Caiocca responded in her very gracious manner. She too said our theme was very timely and that we must never forget our heritage. The newly installed Grand President of the NSGW Joe B. Perez gave a fine message on our theme "Love of Country". During the afternoon several selections were given by GT Nancy Conens accompanied by PGO Frances Simas which were enjoyed by all. The afternoon

Par

NO CHURCH WAS ESTABLISHED in Anaheim until a decade after its settlement. This fact has given rise to a persistent myth that the original colonists were "freethinkers" whose leaders had passed a law prohibiting churches. Nothing could be further from the truth.

Most of the early vineyardists had been reared in the Lutheran faith. While the men of the community could speak English with varying degrees of proficiency, they still thought in the German language. Indeed, all of the minutes of the Anaheim Water Company were written in German until 1871. The local housewives, who had little contact with the outside world, found it easier to speak in the tongue of the Fatherland.

Not only was there no German speaking Lutheran minister available to serve the community, but Protestant ministers of any denomination were very scarce in southern California in the Fifties and Sixties. In 1857 there was not a single Protestant clergyman in Los Angeles and when Sheriff James R. Barton and three of his posse were slain near what is now Irvine, Jacob Elias, master of Los Angeles Lodge No. 42, Free and Accepted Masons, conducted a Masonic funeral for Barton and one of his deputies and adjusted the ritual to give a burial service for those slain who were not Masons.[1]

In addition to the unavailability of Protestant ministers, no doubt there was an indifference to church attendance even before the colonists came to Anaheim. Some of them had been sympathetic to the German Revolution of 1848 and it is probable that they had ceased attending religious services in Germany where the Lutheran Church was state controlled. Others had gotten out of the habit of regularly going to church after they came to California, a not unusual circumstance even today. It should be pointed out that a non-church goer is not necessarily an atheist nor an agnostic.

St. Boniface Church

A thorough search of the minutes of the local city council fails to show that any ordinance was ever passed, or even proposed, prohibiting houses of worship in Anaheim. Such an ordinance would be, of course, unconstitutional. The real attitude of the colonists toward churches was demonstrated on April 17, 1868, when the Anaheim Water Company agreed to donate Town Lot 15 to Bishop Thaddeus Amat for a Roman Catholic church. Approval of the gift was given at a general meeting of the shareholders of the company at which four-fifths of the members were present. Legally, such a transfer was beyond the scope of powers of either the board of trustees or the membership and had there been a single dissent to the proposed gift, it would not have been made.

The lot deeded to Bishop Amat was situated on the north side of Cypress Street between Anaheim Boulevard and Lemon Street. It was given upon condition that within six months a church should be built upon it of a value of not less than $250. There was some delay in meeting the deadline, due no doubt, to a scarcity of money. However, when the water company trustees refused to grant an extension of time, a chur

The Anaheim church saw hard times. On September 11, 1879, the clerk, E. A. Saxton, wrote, "failure of crops for three successive seasons had so impoverished the farmers . . . that we found ourselves unable to continue the pastor's salary another year." Yet the church persisted and is today one of the largest in Anaheim.

Mr. and Mrs. John Y. Anderson, natives of Virginia, were the first settlers of Westminster. Anderson was a Confederate veteran who had served under Thomas J. "Stonewall" Jackson. He was with Lee at Appomatox and instead of signing a pledge not to bear arms, he threw down his gun and went home. He was an ardent "States Rights" man, a devoted member of his church and a fine citizen.[4]

St. Michael's Episcopal Church

St. Michael's Episcopal Church was founded through the efforts of Susan M. Lafaucherie, an energetic little churchwoman who came to Anaheim in 1873 with her sister, Elizabeth, to be with their brother, Frank, who had come to California for his health. Upon their arrival the girls attended the local Presbyterian Church where they startled other members of the congregation by kneeling during prayer.

The sisters started an Episcopal Sunday School and in answer to a plea from Susan, Bishop W. Ingraham Kip directed the Rev. Charles F. Loop of San Gabriel to place Anaheim upon his circuit. Rev. Loop conducted the first Episcopal service in Anaheim on August 24, 1873, in Enterprise Hall. As usual, thoughtful "Pete" Richards banned pool playing in his saloon during worship. In October, Dr. Ezra B. Kellogg, a retired Episcopal clergyman from Ohio, arrived in Anaheim for the winter and consented to take charge of the infant congregation. With Susan's gentle prodding, an organ was purchased. It arrived in June, 1874, and according to a local newspaper it was "an elegant looking instrument."

LUNCHEON AT GRAND PARLOR

The annual luncheon at Grand Parlor, sponsored by the San Francisco Deputies was well attended. We had three candidates this year: Grand Secretary Mary Mahoney of Golden Gate, Grand Trustee Irene Bondanza of San Francisco, both seeking re-election and Helen C. Mc Carthy of Utopia. This was Helen's first time to seek a Grand Parlor office, that of Grand Inside Sentinel. We are happy to add all three were elected. DGP Lucile Ashbaugh was chairman of this most successful affair. Having three Grand Officers to be installed, all from San Francisco, many members and friends journeyed to Santa Rosa.

LAST BUSINESS MEETING

The last business meeting of the term, to make full report of all the activities of the term, was held on July 5 in the Grizzly Bear Club Room in the Native Son's Building. The third Thursday was set for the end of term dinner with Lucille Kimbark the chairman.

After meeting, our baby Deputy Sue Sprung of Twin Peaks Parlor was given a bridal shower. Table decorations and refreshments carried out the bridal theme. Sue received a blanket from the deputies and many other gifts. She even won the box of candy which she shared with all. Her mother, Irene Sprung was among those present. Thus another very wonderful year has been completed.

Lugonia Activities

by Martha Jean Johnson

The year began with a joint installation of officers of Lugonia No. 241, NDGW and Arrowhead No. 110, NSGW at the Elks Club in San Bernardino. The installation was followed by a buffet dinner at the Holiday Inn. Miss Doris Jacobsen of Grace Parlor was Installing Officer for Miss Tomasa Paz, President of Lugonia Parlor and her corps of officers. It became known then that the new Deputy Grand President was Mrs. Lucille Gilbreath, and that the new Supervising District Deputy Grand President was Mrs. Mahalia Lieb, both of Jurupa Parlor.

Now a busy time began for all members Lugonia Parlor worked very hard to help the children in Juvenile Hall, many of whom are dependent children, without any other home. The help began at Christmas, but has continued throughout the year.

A most enjoyed event every year, is the Children's Foundation Buncheon. Pictured is Mrs. Manuel Cisneros presenting the Parlor's gift to PGP Hazel Hansen.

Special events of the year included Courtesy Night, Grand President's visit, the Parlor's 40th birthday and pot-luck dinners. A highlight of one of the family pot-luck dinners was the presentation of three 25 year pins to Mmes. May Cochran, Josie Long, and Ralph Carr. All were initiated when Rena Churchill was president and she was on hand to see them receive their pins. At this dinner, an Easter Bonnet contest was held. The winners were: Most Original — 1st place, Mrs. Martha Jean Johnson, whose hat was a large peak-a-boo easter egg, with honorable mention to Mrs. Everett Kerr with a bird-bath hat; Most Practical — 1st place, Mrs. Maude E. Ringwald, with her hat decorated with a roll of floral toilet tissue, honorable mention, Mrs. Lloyd Burcham, whose hat was decorated with baby bottles and rattles; and Most Beautiful — 1st place, Mrs. Thomas Painter, with a bonnet covered with flowers and easter eggs of pastel colors, and honorable mention went to Mrs. Frank Paz upon whose head rested flowers and a small branch with a spider and its web. The judges were: Donald E. Van Luven, Mr. and Mrs. Mel Hocker, and Mr. Lloyd Burcham, all of Arrowhead Parlor. A program of slides taken by Miss Eva Bemis on her trip to Scandinavian countries was enjoyed by all. Lugonia is very proud that two of its members have been appointed to serve on the 1968 Grand Parlor Sessions Committee — Ruby Meadows and Ivy Carr.

The Parlor also entertained the Native Sons Arrowhead Parlor at a pot-luck dinner, as is done each year. California Bear Flags were presented to the Paul Rogers Elementary School in Colton, to the Bemis Elementary School in Rialto, and to the Bloomington Fire District.

On behalf of Lugonia Parlor, Ruby Meadows presented 48 small California Bear Flags to newly naturalized citizens. It has since been voted by the Parlor to do this at every naturalization ceremony. The Parlor again presented three scholarships to each of the three high schools in San Bernardino.

All were greatly saddened by the loss of the Mother of our Parlor, Florence Dodson Schoneman. She will be missed at all our gatherings.

Our year ended busily too — our Grand Parlor delegates were Mmes. George Riley and Manuel Cisneros. Mmes. James Meadows, Luther Fair, Martha Jean Johnson, President Tomasa Paz, and Miss Hilda Garcia also were able to attend Grand Parlor. The books closed on another Parlor year on June 29, 1967.

Tomasa Paz has one more activity before installation of the new officers . . . it is a dinner for the members of Lugonia Parlor. Social chairman, Ivy Carr has worked hard all year to help make each meeting more enjoyable for all, this dinner is the final duty for the year. Thanks to you, Ivy, from all of us.

At the last meeting in June, President Tommie introduced our new SDDGP Ruby Meadows. Congratulations from your Parlor, Ruby. A final note to our President, "You have worked hard with your officers and members to make this a nice year for all of us. We appreciate all you have done."

PGP Edna C. Williams represents the Native Daughters as co-chairman of the Alameda County Admission Day celebration committee this year.

SANTA MARIA

June 6 in DES Hall, was "Honor Night" for Santa Maria No. 276 when the members celebrated their 26th anniversary by cutting a large decorated cake at the pot-luck dinner which preceded the regular meeting. The Charter Past President Essie Turnage performed the honor of cutting the birthday cake while everyone sang "Happy Birthday to Me". The Parlor was instituted on June 3, 1941 by PGP Hazel Hansen.

DGP Mary Rule and SDDGP Jeanne Fredrick were introduced and escorted to their respective stations. Each was presented with a gift and corsage from the Parlor in appreciation of their help during the last term. Mmes. Elsie Hayes and Mamie Kortner were chairmen for this part of the affair.

A surprised president Ida Hawkins was crowned "Native Daughter of the Year" and presented with a corsage and a gift. This created much merriment as she had repeatedly warned the selection committee" to make it nice." Miss Meta Mehlschau was in charge of the selection. To celebrate Flag Day, Clara Stearns presented a Flag Day program with Senior Citizens, Messrs. Johnson, Followell, Medley and Wright playing old-time tunes on their harmonicas, suitable to the various eras of our flag, and ending up with "Star Spangled Banner." Mrs. Stearns read the story of the flag and Mrs. Minnie Brees accompanied the harmonica players on the piano.

ANNIE K. BIDWELL

The members and guests of Annie K. Bidwell Parlor No. 168 of Chico, arrived at Native Daughter Hall in gay colored Hawaiian garb on the evening of July 13, when the following officers were installed for the ensuing term: President Muriel Schroeder and her corps of officers which included, Mmes. Gladys Cross, George Cunha, Betty Matulich, Claude Stearns, Thomas Beers, Olive Pearl, Walter Bammann, Charles Spangler, Frank Cooley, Bessie Shults, Charles Martin, Ilene Gottman, and Marilyn Logan.

The acting Grand Officers who comprised the installing team came from Olivia No. 309, Corning, with Idelle Markham presiding as Deputy Grand President.

Escorted to the altar for introduction were GVP Hazel Mallette of Gold of Ophir No. 190, PGPs Florence Boyle also of Oroville and Fern Adams of Berryessa No. 192, Willows, and SDDGP LaBreacht of Annie K. Bidwell No. 168. All of these special officers were later called upon to bring their messages to those assembled.

Hazel T. Mallette

The general chairman of the evening was Mrs. Thomas B. Beers, who also is captain of the drill team. The latter performed an enjoyable drill which included the dancing of the hula and singing "We're going to a Hukilau". They also sang a song to President Muriel with appropriate words to the tune of "Aloha". The drill team members were dressed in identical long blue-flowered muu muus, all made by their captain. They wore gardenias in their hair, also varicolored leis.

President Muriel was presented with a gift from the Parlor, a memory book and an artistically arranged money tree made by Myrtle Hesse, in behalf of Parlor members.

The Hawaiian theme was followed throughout in the decor of the meeting and dining halls. At the president's station stood a palm tree and pineapple arrangement and at other stations were large Hawaiian baskets. Gay paper fish mobiles hung from the ceiling lights. On the wall was a large Hawaiian bamboo mat with the wording "Fun through Membership" which is the President's theme for the year. A similar wall hanging was at the head of the stairs. On the piano stood an antique candelabra with yellow tapers.

The dining room decor was under the chairmanship of Mrs. Frank Cooley. Tables were gay with centerpieces of fresh pineapples, halved coconuts and slices of watermelon placed on flower beds. The candle holders represented "tiki" lights and were made of various shaped bottles collected and decorated by Mrs. Cooley and her committee. The buffet was decorated with Hawaiian Hula dolls, sea shells, fruits and flowers. The table favors were miniature canoes. Home-made cakes, coffee, Hawaiian punch and ice cream were served.

Members were present from Willows, Paradise, Oroville, Redding, Corning and Chico.

Invitations were received to attend the installation ceremonies of Gold of Ophir No. 190, Centennial No. 295, and Berryessa No. 192.

On July 26, Olivia No. 309, Corning, will be hostesses at a potluck picnic to be held at Tehama County River Park. This will honor outgoing SDDGP Elaine Barceloux of Willows, as well as DGP Louise Moller of Chico.

Among the coming events in the program of Annie K. Bidwell Parlor, will be the potluck family picnic to be held in Bidwell Park on August 24.

President Muriel Schroeder closed the meeting by thanking installing DGP Idelle Markham and her corps of officers. She also expressed her great pleasure at the good attendance and thanked all for making it a good "fun" night.

PGP CARLSON HONORED

One hundred seventy-five Native Daughters attended the 42nd annual luncheon honoring PGP Evelyn I. Carlson. The delightful occasion was chairmaned by Dolores Parlor's Grand Parlor delegates, Emma O'Meara and Lucille Ashbough at the Tropicano Motel in Santa Rosa.

Evelyn I. Carlson when she was Grand President

The first luncheon was held in Placerville in June, 1925, when Mrs. Carlson was elected Grand Outside Sentinel. At that time six guests attended. Over the years the attendance has increased at each Grand Parlor session, until this 42nd one attracted 125 members. Complimenting Mrs. Carlson were eleven Past Grand Presidents, three Grand Officers and Past Grand Secretary, Irma Murray.

PGP Jewel McSweeney gave the invocation. The honoree expressed her sincere appreciation for the wonderful attendance and briefly covered the 42 years during which time the attendance has increased.

NDGW PAST GRAND PRESIDENTS' DINNER

The annual Past Grand Presidents' formal dinner was held at the Rancho Tropicano in Santa Rosa. Twenty-six PGPs enjoyed a social hour previous to the dinner. Hostesses were PGP Claire Lindsey and Orinda Giannini.

The dinner table was most attractive with Vanda orchids and orchid corsages for each guest. The corsages were made by PGP Ethel C. Enos, chairman for the occasion. Preceding the dinner PGP Fern Adams presented the traditional bib and rattle to Jr. PGP Katie Jewett who was being accepted into the PGPs Association.

This 81st Grand Parlor recognized PGP Clarice Knowland as this was the observance of her 25th year as Grand President. The PGPs presented the guest of honor with a sterling silver charm bracelet. PGP Evelyn I. Carlson made the presentation and recalled the long years of friendship and their mutual affection for their beloved friend, the late PGP May C. Boldemann. PGP Knowland responded graciously and told of many experiences she had during her Grand Presidency, 1941-1942.

PGP May C. Boldemann

The regular business meeting was held following the conclusion of the delicious dinner. The minutes of June, 1966, were read and approved and a motion was made to send letters regretting their absence to PGPs Irma Laird, Gladys Noce, Eileen Dismuke, Estelle Evans and Maxiene Porter. Chairman PGP Ethel Enos expressed her thanks to the committee for their assistance. Retiring President PGP Florence Boyle likewise expressed her appreciation for the honor bestowed upon her.

The elected officers for the years 1967-1968 are: President PGP Ethel I. Begley, Vice President Orinda G. Giannini, Secretary Evelyn I. Carlson.

PGPs Fern Adams and Katie Jewett

June 1968 will be the 25th year as Grand President for PGP Claire Lindsey and PGP Orinda Giannini will be chairman assisted by the San Francisco PGPs.

PGP Doris Gerrish extended an invitation to the PGPs to attend the 50th anniversary of Liberty Parlor, May, 1968. PGP Elmarie Dyke also invited the PGPs to the Commander John Drake Sloat Commemoration July 4 at Colton Hall, Monterey.

A "fine" program followed the business meeting and if under the chairmanship of PGP Jewel McSweeney, the association can be assured of something different — so it was — but all we can say, "It was a show long to be remembered."

Participants were PGP Alice Shea, Edna Williams and Henrietta Toothaker.

cards between 1905 and 1909. N. H. Reed of Santa Barbara had a variety of 800 different California scenes. Among his photographic postcards were about 200 views of the missions, mostly of the one at Santa Barbara. The Adolph Seilige Publishing Company of Saint Louis offered nineteen views of four missions, while the Benham Indian Trading Company of Los Angeles made available fourteen views of four missions. Ghirardellis Milk Chocolate Company furnished a set of fifteen missions which were never sold commercially.

Anaheim as a Health Resort

by Dr. Leo J. Friis

Part 3

Compounding a prescription in 1878 was an ardous task. The usual method of dispensing non-liquid medicines was in the form of a powder which, after being prepared, was divided into as many doses as the doctor prescribed, each dose being wrapped in a small piece of paper. (Gelatin capsules were not yet available.) The druggist probably acquired his nickname of "pill roller" from the fact that he actually rolled out pills on a square, porcelain tile, and placed them in small, round cardbard boxes. Infusions were made by steeping or boiling herbs and other ingredients in water. Tinctures were prepared by using alcohol as a solvent. Obviously, medicines so made, could not be consistent in quality or strength.

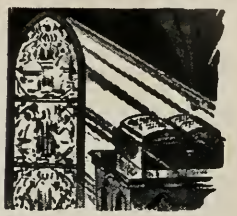

The town's first soda fountain was installed by Dr. Higgins in 1872 and according to the Gazette, it dispensed a "drink, flavored with nice syrups," which was pronounced "delightful." It does not appear that these early soda drinks were of the type usually called ice cream sodas, although ice cream was served in local restaurants at the time.

Dr. Higgins was appointed postmaster in 1870 and operated the local postoffice in a corner of his store for the next thirteen years. W. H. Marquis, who carried the mail between Anaheim and Westminster, described Higgins as "an eccentric character," recalling that, "If he was in a good humor when I came in and threw the mail sack on the counter, he would empty it and make up the return mail, chatting all the time in the most friendly manner. Perhaps the next time he would not speak or pay any attention to me; if so, I would go around behind the counter, unlock the bag, take out its contents, make up the return mail, lock the bag and walk out." The late Mrs. Chester E. Holcomb, a daughter of John P. Zeyn, remembered Dr. Higgins as an inveterate chewer of tobacco who was "continually spitting." (Cuspidors were standard furnishings in stores, offices and in many homes in those days.)

In 1877 Dr. Higgins commenced issuing postal money orders and two years later he installed sixty-six glass call boxes which patrons could rent for twenty-five cents a quarter. A call box was one step above the general delivery system as the renter's mail would be placed in his box. The renter could peer through the glass and see if he had received any mail, but he could not open the box because it had no door. Instead, he would request the postmaster to hand him his mail. [20]

ADMISSION DAY

by J. J. Friis

The ship "Oregon" entered the Golden Gate and brought the good news that "California is a State". The news was signalled from Telegraph Hill to the people of San Francisco.

DARK CLOUDS OF civil war were hanging ominously low when California knocked at the door of Congress seeking admission to the Union. The nation was then composed of thirty states, one-half of which permitted slavery, the other half being free.

California's newly adopted constitution provided that "Neither slavery nor involuntary servitude . . . shall ever be tolerated in this State." To admit California to statehood meant the disturbance of a delicate balance.

Congressional action on the question of California's admission to the Union was initiated by Henry Clay in one of a series of resolutions which declared that "California, with suitable boundaries, ought, upon her application, to be admitted as one of the States of this Union, without the imposition by Congress of any restrictions in respect to the exclusion or introduction of slavery within its boundaries."

Jefferson Davis replied that he would not be satisfied unless the 36° 30′ parallel of the Compromise of 1820 be extended to the Pacific coast. This would have meant that slavery would have been permissible in California below the present city of Fresno.

Early in 1850 California's senators, William M. Gwin and John C. Fremont, and its representatives, George W. Wright and Edward Gilbert, arrived in Washington, delivering their credentials to President Taylor and presenting copies of California's constitution to a number of Congressmen, Senators and other officials. Calling upon Senator John C. Calhoun of South Carolina, leader of the South, they were informed that he was too ill to receive them as a group. However, he invited Gwin to visit him. Gwin had formerly served in the House of Representatives from Mississippi and Calhoun remembered him from those days.

Gwin was entirely sympathetic with the slave states and upon the outbreak of the Civil War joined the cause of the Confederacy. However, as a delegate to the California Constitutional Convention he had voted for the anti-slavery provision of the state constitution, feeling, no doubt, like many other Southerners, that California was not economically suited to slavery.

The meeting between him and Calhoun was a dramatic one. In later years the California senator recalled, "Mr. Calhoun was then dying, and he soon after passed away. In words which proved to be prophetic, he depicted what would be the result of the admission of California as a state. He said it would destroy the equilibrium between the North and the South in the Senate, the only safeguard the South had against the numerical superiority of the North, and that the equilibrum once destroyed, the agitation of the slave question would become more intense and inevitably result in civil war and the destruction of the South."

Senator John Bell of Tennessee introduced a series of resolutions in which he contended (1) that the the boundaries of California were too large, (2) that the manner in which the constitution was adopted was irregular, (3) many residents of California were not United States citizens and (4) that the President excercised too much influence in the adoption of the constitution. All of the California delegation fought vigorously in denying these charges.

On March 4 Calhoun appeared to fight California's request for admission. Feeble in body his prepared speech was delivered by his friend, Senator James Mason of Virginia. His address was an elaborate outline of the fears he had expressed to Gwin. He warned of impending secession, stating, "If you are unwilling we should part in peace, tell us so, and we shall know what to do, when you reduce the question to submission or resistance. If you remain silent, you will compel us to infer by your acts what you intend. In that case, California will become the test question."

Daniel Webster responded with his long remembered speech. He opened his remarks with a reference to Calhoun, stating, "An honorable member, whose health does not allow him to be here today—" A voice broke in, "He is here." Webster continued. "I am very happy to hear that he is — may he long be in health and enjoyment of it to serve his country."

He continued, "I wish to speak today, not as a Massachusetts man,

In June, 1929, our first flag and standard presentation was made to Mother Colony House in Anaheim. It had just been opened to the public. In 1950 a bronze plaque was placed on Mother Colony House, marking the first home built by the first settlers of Anaheim.

On February 29, 1932, the Founder of the Order, Lily O. Reichling Dyer, was a visitor. She contrasted the traveling days during the founding of the Order to the present time of 1932. May 27, the first reception honoring the pioneer men and women in North Orange County was held in the Ebell Club House, Fullerton. A lovely noon luncheon was served and Carrie McFadden Ford was the honored speaker. Receptions honoring the pioneers were held several times in the ensuing years. In 1932 the first effort of our History and Landmarks committee was the placing of a marker on the site where the Don Gaspar de Portolá Expedition camped on its trek north. The marker is at the west entrance to Brea Canyon on the east side of the road shaded by pepper trees.

In 1937 followed the marking of Casa de las Rosas, at San Juan Capistrano, home of Marco Forster. Many Grand Officers were present at this event. The children of La Jolla School, Placentia, presented a program of Spanish songs and dances. After the dedication a barbeque dinner was served.

In January, 1934, Grandma Lemke invited the Sewing Club to her home on Valencia Avenue, Placentia. It was a glorious all-day session with a pot-luck dinner at noon. From then on many happy sewing days were spent in this home and at the beach cottage.

February, 1934, Erna Marie Watts (Hansen) was the youngest candidate to become a member of the Order. Grand President Irma Laird gave consent.

At the Santa Cruz Convention in 1934, Nellie Cline, our Charter President was elected to the office of Grand Trustee and re-elected at Sacramento in 1935. However, due to ill health, Nellie was prevented from continuing to advance as a Grand Officer.

In March, 1936, Native Daughters presented a beautiful bronze plaque to the battleship California. It was a gala day for the Natives. A large group from Grace Parlor attended the ceremonies and the tea on board ship. All the crew were Native Sons of California. Then just a few years, and the glorious battleship was no more! On July 14, 1936, three historical documents were presented the Parlor, one by Lena Aspden (Lawson) concerning a judgeship in Solano County. Mr. H. C. Head of Santa Ana presented a history of the Cajon Ditch. He also told of the observance held eight miles east of Anaheim upon the completion of the ditch, now know as Anaheim Union Water Company. The third document is a report of School Trustees of Placentia's first school on Placentia Avenue and Chapman. These documents are now in the Historical room at San Francisco. On September 20, 1936, attired in pioneer costumes, members rode the Historical Butterfield Stage Coach, in the pageant at Los Angeles County Fair in Pomona.

September 9, 1937, Grace Parlor shared in an Orange County Float in the Admission Day Parade in Santa Monica. On Armistice Day, the Parlor won 1st prize for a decorated car completly covered with real chrysanthemums grown by Agnes and Lloyd Cookson. July, 1937, Ahoy! Ahoy! We are off for our first trip to Lido Isle. Can we ever forget the grand times we had at Erna's Lido Isle home and the wonderful rolls that Grandma Sorensen always made for us?

March, 1938 — Members were doing all in their power to care for the homeless and the sick during the disastrous flood, especially in the Atwood area. Some worked in the kitchen to help prepare food for the hundreds who were housed in the American Legion Hall in Placentia. Others gathered clothing and helped with the children. Grace Parlor prepared 70 sewing kits which were later distributed in the La Jolla and Atwood area. On May 27, 1938, through Mary Rothaermel, Grace Parlor was invited to attend the Placement Breakfast at Whittier State School. This is the time when a large group of young boys had finished their stay at the school and were ready to return to their natural homes again. Johanna Lemke and Betty Palmer presented a program. In 1939 a Bear Flag was presented to the school.

The war years were upon us at this time and Grand Officers approved a decision that when necessary Parlors might change time and place of meeting without change in by-laws; also meetings could be held on Sundays. In 1941, three of Grace Parlors members held responsible positions with Red Cross in Placentia: Lucanna McFadden, community chairman; Esther Kraemer, armed forces; and Matilda Enfield, production department, sewing, knitting, making dressings and bandages and many miscellaneous jobs that had to be done. Workers met in an unused building on the Placentia School grounds and worked each Tuesday for nearly three years. This group out-did all units of Fullerton Red Cross Chapters. The chairman received a certificate of award from the National Red Cross. Work was also done at U.S.O. headquarters in Fullerton and the Parlor donated cash for the purchase of necessities. In November, 1941, two war veterans were "adopted", one at Sawtelle and one at San Fernando Hospital. They were each sent generous boxes of cookies, candy and suitable gifts at Christmas. In December, in spite of the sadness of having our country at war and of the possibility of a blackout, the Christmas party was held, especially for the enjoyment of our children. Two war veterans were again "adopted" and provided with Christmas gifts.

In January, 1942, there being no quorum present, no meeting was held. There were times now because of the war. In December, 1942, the first War Bond was purchased which was paid for with the birthday money.

June, 1943 — Letter from Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce asking for the endorsement of plans to control Juvenile Delinquency! Way back in '43.

At the 1944 Grand Parlor Convention a station wagon was given to the Red Cross to be used as a bloodmobile. Grace Parlor donated $50 towards its purchase. In December, 1944, 40 Christmas boxes were prepared for our boys overseas and at home bases.

In May, 1945, our first donation was made to Mission Soledad, $5. Since then we pledged and paid $100 and also a voluntary gift of $1 per member which was paid for by the sale of choppers.

Also in December, 1945, boxes of gifts including playing cards and dried fruits were sent to Veteran's Hospital in Norco.

In July, 1947, $40 was contributed to Fullerton Community War Memorial.

In September, 1947, at Admission Day at Long Beach, Grace and Mother Colony Parlors won first prize. The theme, "A Covered Wagon" was used.

On February 3, 1948, a great feeling of sadness came to Grace Parlor when word was received that NDGD Adoption Agency now belonged to the State Welfare Department. We finished with 37 babies to our credit. On February 6, fifteen new members were initiated at the official visit of Grand President Doris Treat in the Elks Club, Anaheim.

On July 4th, the Parlor entered Huntington Beach Parade. Judge Thompson drove an antique car, with Jeanne Barks, Mary Kraemer and Matilda Enfield as passengers. They were dressed in the fashions of 1900 — Ooo-la-la!

On September 9, 1948, Eva Rice started dish cloth sales and believe it or not they are still selling. If anyone would like a wonderful dish cloth we have them to sell.

On January 20, 1949, our first "25 year pin" was presented.

On March 17, a letter was written to Sacramento asking that the proposed State College be located in North Orange County and now 18 years later we have it!

St. Michael's Episcopal Church in 1876

THE REV. W. S. NEALES relieved the aged Dr. Kellogg and on April 20, 1875, Bishop Kip visited Anaheim and gave his consent to organize the congregation into a mission to be called St. Michael's, the name of the Lafaucherie sisters' church in Trenton, New Jersey. Susan was elected treasurer of the new mission.

In July, Richard Heimann and Oscar George deeded two lots to the Episcopal Church Association, donating one and selling the other for $200. These lots are situated on the northeast corner of Adele and Emily Streets. In the following year, plans for a church edifice were approved and a contract to build it was let to P. C. McKinnie. During the pastorate of the Rev. G. M. Hubbard, who succeeded Father Neales, the little, white English style church was built on the lots. (Originally it faced west.) The first services in the new sanctuary took place on September 3, 1876. In the meantime, Susan M. Lafaucherie had left Anaheim to carry on the work of her Master in other states.

Upon it was erected the town's first Masonic temple. It was built by Christopher Stappenbeck under the supervision of Theodore Reiser. Observing a custom of northern Europe, when the framework of the structure was completed, a large evergreen wreath, or Richtkranz, was hoisted to the highest point of the building. In December, 1872, the lodge was host to Anaheim's first big Christmas party to which all of the townspeople were invited.

Odd Fellows

Oddfellowship was very strong in Anaheim in 1878, being represented by two subordinate lodges and an encampment. On the afternoon of January 23, 1872, Anaheim Lodge No. 199, I.O.O.F., was instituted by Grand Master William H. Hill at the local Masonic hall, after which the officers were publicly installed in Kuchel's Hall. John Fischer was the first noble grand. In the following year a building association was incorporated and a fine, two-story brick building was erected on the northeast corner of North Anaheim Boulevard and Chartres Street at a cost of $7,000. It was dedicated on December fourth with attorney Frank Ganahl of Los Angeles delivering an oration on the growth of Oddfellowship in the United States.[7]

Orpheus Lodge No. 237, I.O.O.F., was instituted November 5, 1875, with John P. Zeyn as its first noble grand. This lodge conducted its business and performed its initiatory work in the German language, which was not a novelty to a number of the original vineyardists, who had been members of Harmony Lodge No. 13 of San Francisco which also exemplified the Odd Fellow ritual in German. Orion Encampment No. 54, which conferred advanced Odd Fellow degrees, was instituted January 3, 1876, with W. L. Tyler installed as chief patriarch. Tyler was the first Southern Pacific Railroad agent in Anaheim.[8]

On the Fourth of July we had the honor of presenting a wreath at Commodore Sloat's Statue followed by a twenty-one gun salute, concert, and reception in the City of Monterey. We were most fortunate to be present at the City of Sacramento's distinguished parade and birthday party held in Sutter's Fort. For several days we attended the colorful annual Santa Barbara Fiesta. The Los Angeles Breakfast Club had us as guests at the celebration of Los Angeles' birthday and honoring the Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West. During this time six official visits have been made, each one most outstanding and interesting with many tours of the local areas.

California, Our Golden State

by Alice Newland

CALIFORNIA! Golden State,
Mirroring the Sun's God's rays—
From the olive slopes and vineyards;
Fertile valleys, silvery bays.
California; name enshrining—
All thy golden span of life—
All thy early Spanish romance—
Full of laughter, warmth and light.

California! Oh the rapture
Of thy name to foreign lands;
Westward turn their eyes, with longing
To behold the golden strands.
For thy name spells food and plenty,
Affluence to those in need—
Who are toiling, heartache, weary—
Bound to old World's time-worn greed.

California! sweetly tolling
Sounds anew those Mission chimes,
Relics of thy faithful toilers;
Legacies they've left behind.
Indian forms have ceased to wander—
Through thy forests as of yore—
Gone the "Warriors" and their Padres,
From the valleys and the shore.

Other States have charm and beauties;
Other countries, wonders, too;
But beside these, CALIFORNIA
Beauties fade and charms are few.
Thou are bathed in radiant splendor—
From the Ocean at thy feet,
Mighty Waters that are bringing—
All the World in homage sweet.

REINA DEL MAR

Reina del Mar No. 126 held its installation of officers with impressive ceremonies conducted by DGP Edith Webster and her corps of officers from Tierra de Oro No. 304.

Mary Louise Days

Mary Louise Days assumed the presidency with the following corps of officers: Mariana Schmitter, Bernice Hogg, Sara Diaz, Virginia Days (proud mother of the president), Mamie Miller, Beverly Burdict, Lynne Heaton, Ambert Phillips, Elizabeth Miller, Lorraine Aceves, Nancy Fluker, and Karen Stupak.

Upon taking office, president Days thanked the Parlor for electing her as president, announced her theme for the year to be directed towards Restoration of Landmarks, and named her committee chairmen. Marianna Schmitter was presented with Reina del Mar's Special design Past President's Pin by Past President Thelma Hodgkins, in recognition of her splendid service to the Parlor as president. SDDGP Charity Righetti of Santa Maria No. 276 was introduced and escorted to her seat of honor. In attendance, in addition to Tierra de Oro were representatives from District 35 Parlors, Santa Maria 276, El Aliso 314, Poinsettia 318 and La Purisima 327.

Traditionally, the first major event of this Parlor is the annual pre-Fiesta tea, which was held July 23, at Rockwood, the beautiful Santa Barbara Woman's Club in Mission Canyon, to honor the directors of Old Spanish Days, and the descendants of early California and Santa Barbara families.

"California Memories" were discussed by Paul G. Sweetser, an attorney, a past Fiesta el presidente, an Old Spanish Days Director, and a past president of Santa Barbara Native Sons No. 116, a speaker as traditional to Fiesta as Spanish costumes and customs. He said that Fiesta tells us that the Spanish came here, and when the American gringos came the Spaniards welcomed them and said, "This is your house," and the gringos "took them at their word and took the house and all the furniture in it." In conclusion, Mr. Sweetser reminded Native Daughters and Native Sons to be ever alert and prevent the loss of our traditions.

Karen Stupak, recently elected outside sentinel, was presented at the tea and appeared in the robes and crown of the city's patron saint, St. Barbara. She was featured in El Desfile Historico and during Fiesta activities, August 16-19. The ship of Sebastian Viscaíno, an explorer, is said to have been delivered from a storm off the California coast because his sailors prayed to St. Barbara. The Santa Barbara Channel was named by a pirest who visited there with Viscaíno on the saint's feast day, December 4, 1602. St. Barbara is the patroness of artillerymen and architects as well as seafarers.

BERENDOS

Outgoing SDDGP Ella Brownfield and DGPs Dorothy Rose, Patricia Griffin, Frances Davenport and Viola Lowden were honored.

First installment of Berendos Parlors scholarship was made to Barbara Foss, this years recipient. Dorothy Rose made the final report on the fancy-work booth at the Tehama County Fair, while Ella Brownfield reported on the floral booth. CALISTOGA

An event of unusual significance was observed recently when Calistoga No. 145 presented fifty-year membership pins to Ann Pocai and Aurelia Butler, who joined the Parlor on August 15, 1917, along with four other initiates. They were guests at a dinner in their honor at which Jr. PGP Annette Caiocca, who is their long-time friend, presented them with their gold 50-year pins.

Following the dinner, they were honored at the regular meeting of Calistoga Parlor, where each honoree spoke briefly, expressing what Native Daughter membership had meant in their lives and reminiscing about past events in the Calistoga Parlor's history. These two members are still very active in parlor affairs, and seem to grow younger with each passing year. It is a unique occurrence to have two sisters, by birth as well as by affiliation, celebrate their 50-year membership anniversary simultaneously. Calistoga Parlor is very proud of them.

Retiring DGP Alvina Woodard of Vallejo No. 195 was installing officer and introduced the new DGP Barbara Dulinsky of George C. Yount No. 322 and Helen Gracy DDGP of the Vallejo Parlor.

Both Calistoga and Clear Lake Parlors are making plans for the official visit of Grand President June T. Goldie at Calistoga on September 25.

ESCHSCHOLTZIA

June T. Goldie, Grand President and a member of San Gabriel Valley No. 281 of San Gabriel paid her official visit to Eschscholtzia No. 112 Tuesday evening, August 1. The Grand President was accompanied to Etna by a member of her own parlor, Helen Gould.

Preceding the meeting a pot luck dinner was enjoyed in the lower hall. Anita Tucker had decorated the tables with bowls of beautiful summer flowers. May Aker, Dorice Young, Eleanor Hendricks, Ellen Skillen, Barbara Cross and Bernice Smith were on the committee to set the tables.

President Jessie Burcell presided over the meeting held in the lodge hall. Ellen Skillen had arranged the flowers in the upper hall. The Grand President gave a very interesting talk on the different projects of the order. She stated that such names as California should not be abbreviated. Her talk was enjoyed by all present.

The monetary gift was presented to the Grand President from the parlor. Those taking part in the presentation were: Barbara Cross, May Aker, Ellen Skillen, Bernice Smith and Frances Smith. Jessie Burcell was appointed by the Grand President to be Supervising District Deputy Grand President for District No. 3.

After the meeting punch and cookies were served. Mrs. Goldie and Mrs. Gould were overnight guests of Mrs. Eleanor Murphy.

LILAC DEPUTIES

Past SDDGP Frances Simas and her Lilac Deputies will meet for dinner in the lovely dining room of Castle Lane on Wednesday, Sept. 27. This will be an extra gay night because Mrs. Simas is able to get around without help of a cane. A year ago Mrs. Simas was very badly injured in an automobile accident. PGP Irma Caton the Lilac's first lady will be the honored guest.

MINERVA

Minerva No. 2 held a china cup and saucer shower for Past President Dolores Kikke at the regular meeting on August 9. Hostess for this party, was Mary Frances Barron, newly installed president for the ensuing term.

Twenty-six cup and saucer sets were received by the honoree. Each package being opened revealing an entirely different design and shape. One among these beautiful keepsakes being a tiny miniature bearing the seal of the Order of the Native Daughters of the Golden West.

A beautifully decorated cake inscribed, "CONGRATULATIONS ON A JOB WELL DONE", was served with coffee, bringing to a close a delightful and exciting evening enjoyed by all.

Other less significant producers of mission postcards were: Tichnor Brothers, Inc. (Boston and Los Angeles), the Neuner Company (Los Angeles), Carlin Post Card Company (Los Angeles), Harold A. Taylor (Coronado), Frederick W. Martin (Pasadena), Souvenir Publish- (Pasadena), Souvenir Publishing Company (San Francisco and Los Angeles), California Sales Company (San Francisco), Bardell Art Printing Company (San Francisco), T. P. Getz (San Diego), Eno and Matteson (San Diego), Diederich-Schafer Company (Milwaukee) and the Albertype Company (Brooklyn).

No period in human annals has been devoid of a medium to express its own particular beauty and fascination. When seen in their proper historical perspective, mission postcards can be said to express the tone of California's provincial atmosphere far more effectively than many other of the less ephemeral survivals of the era.

SAN JOSE

Members of San Jose No. 81 held their annual installation of officers in Eagles Hall. DGP Mary Ausano of El Monte No. 205 was the installing officer and members of her Parlor assisted. PGP Margaret Farnsworth of Vendome No. 100 was opening chairman. The hall was decorated with bouquets of white daisies and lavender gladioli at each station. A trellis covered with ferns was placed over the altar. The lavender and white decor was also carried out in the decorating of the refreshment tables. The officers marched in, holding carrying pieces made of pastel crepe paper flowers and ribbon.

Miss Christine Vaughan was installed as president. Her officers include Mary Sholes, Dolores Knox, Marie Knox, Shirley Svindal, Lee Vaughan, Marie Landini, Margaret Turner, Lavina Hogan, Frances Rowland, Sylvia Delgado, Elizabeth Bringmann, Jewel Wyman, Gale Lobner and Patricia La Metre.

The "Lord's Prayer" was sung after the prayer by a friend of the new president. She also sang "Climb Every Mountain" and Summertime" later in the evening. Escorted to the altar for introduction were GT Marie Landini, PGP Margaret Farnsworth, PGP Eileen Dismuke and SDDGP Patricia La Metre. They were all called on to speak later in the evening. Stella Garino of Vendome No. 100 was escorted to the altar and introduced as new Deputy Grand President. General chairman for the evening was Lee Vaughan, who planned a lovely evening for her daughter, Christine. Jack Vaughan presented his daughter an orchid corsage and a gavel.

Among the coming events in the program planned by the President was a family picnic at Vassona Lake in Los Gatos. This activity was sponsored by the Young Women Activities Committee. An annual Bazaar under the chairmanship of Sally Berryessa will be held in October. A luncheon and fashion show is also planned for this fall.

President Christine Vaughan's theme for this year is friendship. She closed her installation message with the following poem:

There is a garden in my heart
Where happy memories grow,
Of those who mean the most to me,
As seasons come and go.
And among the fairest flowers
And the loveliest by far,
Are thoughts I'll always cherish
Of how very dear you are!

not as a Northern man, but as an American . . . I speak for the preservation of the Union." With respect to slavery in California he observed, "I look upon it, therefore, as a fixed fact . . . that both California and New Mexico are destined to be free . . . free by the arrangement of things by the Power above us . . . I would not take pains to re-affirm an ordinance of Nature, not to re-enact the will of God."

On March 11, Senator William H. Seward of New York made a powerful speech for California which he referred to as "the youthful Queen of the Pacific, in robes of freedom gorgeously inlaid with gold." "Let California come in," he urged, "California, that comes from the clime where the West flies away into the rising east; California, which bounds at once the empire and the continent."

After much debate, Senator Stephen A. Douglas called up his bill for the admission of California to the Union. It passed the Senate on August 13 by a vote of 34 to 18. It was carried in the House on September 7. Two days later President Fillmore gave his approval and California was a State.

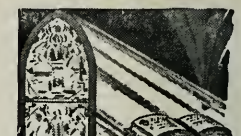

California did not receive the good news until October 18 when the steamer Oregon entered San Francisco harbor, bearing two banners, on which were written, "California is a State." In his diary of that important day, Charles E. Huse wrote:

"At eleven o'clock A.M. the 'Oregon' came up the harbor, draped in flags from stem to stern, while her guns thundered out to tell the Californians, 'California is admitted'. This is glorious news. A salute was soon after fired on the Plaza (Portsmouth Square), and the flag, with another star of paper pinned on, was run up on the lofty staff while a Yankee climbed to reeve the halyards at the cap. A general discharge of small arms and firing of crackers with now and then the booming of a hoarse mouthed canon which kept up till after midnight, proclaimed the joy with which the glad news was received."

EL DORADO

El Dorado No. 186 held its regular meeting the afternoon of August 12 in the historic I.O.O.F. hall where the meetings have been held since the Parlor was first instituted in May, 1910. At that time it was deemed feasible to meet on Saturday afternoon for the convenience of members who lived out of of town. This custom has remained throughout the years.

The meeting was called to order by President Helen Francisco. There were eleven members present including visitors, Edith Hare and Addie Quinn, both of Auburn No. 233.

DDGP Georgia Gardner was introduced and welcomed. Mrs. Gardner was appointed to represent El Dorado Parlor at the newly formed Historic Council meeting. Its aim is to compile additional data on early day history of the Mother Lode and surrounding towns.

It is the custom of the Parlor, in lieu of flowers, at the death of a member, to place a memory book in the Georgetown Branch Library. At this meeting a book, The Gold Rush (American Heritage Edition) was selected in memory of the late Nettie Leonardi.

El Dorado's member, Kathleen Flynn, has served as Financial Secretary for some fifty years and Ethel Breedlove has been organist for the same length of time. There are three charter members left, Annie Herndel, Louise Schneider and Elizabeth Murdock, the latter two still active.

Preceding the meeting President Helen Francisco was hostess to her new staff. She served a fine luncheon and gave each a nice gift. Past President Lorraine Ross, in the same spirit of appreciation, presented each one with a dainty "home sewn" apron. Although the weather was very warm, all present enjoyed the afternoon.

HIAWATHA

Hiwatha No. 140 of Redding and Camellia No. 41 of Anderson maintained a booth at the Shasta County District Fair where California born women were registered. This project was conducted in an attempt to contact eligible prospective members. A total of 350 names were registered, most of them non-members.

Each one registering was presented with a badge to wear; a little gold bear mounted on a green ribbon and inscribed with the words, "I am a native Californian". They were also given a small leaflet which explained the Childrens Foundation and the work that it does.

At the meeting of Hiawatha Parlor following the registration, two names were drawn from the 350 registered and were awarded prizes by the parlors participating. Ruth Griffen, chairman of the project, delivered the gifts to Helen Maturino and Virginia Lee Kosko, both of whom live in Redding.

LOS ANGELES 186th BIRTHDAY

by Martha Ann Kerr

California Herald

VOLUME XV OCTOBER, 1967 NUMBER 2

SALUTING LOS ANGELES' 186th birthday and California's 117th anniversary, the Los Angeles Breakfast Club again honored Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West at its annual Fiesta-Breakfast. Emcee Joseph J. Micciche presented the radio (KRKD) and musical programs assisted by Dudley Kesselhuth. Frank Konyi was at the piano with James V. Keith as song leader. Greatly missed were Sheriff Emeritus Eugene W. Biscailuz and former Breakfast Club Emcee Harold B. Link. Presented were Chairman of the Day, Hugh R. Murchison, former president of the Union Rescue Mission and owner of Radio Station KPOL, assisted by co-hosts Charles von der Ahe, owner of Von's Markets and Raymond W. Seltzer, president of the R. W. Seltzer Co.

Father Damian McHale, C.P. lifted our eyes to the mountains, visible and majestic, and the blue sky stretching like a limitless tent above; then down to this, one of the hottest smog-predicted days of August, when "we look as through a glass darkly" but when it clears, our present minds are not yet worthy of the beauty that is revealed in the mountains, flowers and trees.

Dr. Carl S. Dentzel, historian, author, director of the Southwest Museum, and president of the Los Angeles Culture Heritage Board, highlighted Cabrillo's discovery of California in 1542, the friendly Indian aborigines, the California Missions, the romantic days of the ranchos and other outstanding events in California's early history. "New races, religions and cultures have built this State", said Dr. Dentzel. "We are struggling today with the assimilation of the Afro-American. . . I hope that we may have vision and patience with all this merging population". The speaker concluded with "I hope before the 200th anniversary in 1969 that we will have done our best to keep California the place we love, so that our children will become part of that magic which will be conjured up whenever we mention California."

Historical Knox Hotel

by Frances M. Saner

In the year 1876, Amaziah Lord Knox built the Knox Hotel located near the intersection of the present Main and Magnolia Streets in the center of the city of El Cajon which, at that time, was called "Knox's Corners". Mr. Knox later built a larger hotel adjoining the original, but which no longer exists.

The Knox Hotel served "The Corners" as a stage station and also as a rest stop for teams and travelers en route to the mining country in the mountains at Julian. It consisted of two stories with a lobby, manager's bedroom, dining room, kitchen and front porch on the first floor and four bedrooms on the second floor.

Shortly after building the hotel, Amaziah Knox married the former widow Illa M. Porter Birdseye and brought his bride to the hotel which also served as their home. Here they raised a family of four children, a son and daughter by her former marriage and the son and daughter by this union.

All four of these children grew up and attained prominence in this community except Frederick Birdseye who practiced medicine during most of his life in the east, but who returned later and died and is buried here. Theodora Birdseye Ballantyne, sister of Frederick, and a teacher, lived for many years with her husband John and daughter Jean on a ranch which is now a residential area near the business section of El Cajon. A local elementary school is named for John Ballantyne, regarded very highly for his dedication service of many years on the school board. Dr. Charles Randall Knox was one of El Cajon's two pioneer physicians. Respected and widely known by many until his death a few years ago. Miss Alice Mabel Knox, the only living member of this family, now resides in La Jolla and, before her retirement, served the community as a nurse for many years. Miss Knox is a member of the Illa M. Knox Parlor No. 320.

As the city of El Cajon began to grow the small Knox Hotel building was moved to the rear of the property to make room for the El Cajon Hotel, the third to be built on this property and was used as an annex to the El Cajon Hotel until the early 1940s.

In 1944 the small Knox Hotel was purchased by Mr. S. H. Mathews and moved to 105 E. Lexington (at the corner of south Magnolia) two blocks from its original site to be used by the Mathews family as a residence. Mr. Mathews, in remodeling the structure, attempted to keep the appearance as near the original as he could outside and inside such as the interior staircase, doors and hardware.

To commemorate El Cajon's historical landmark, the Knox Hotel,

Butte County Pioneer

By Florence D. Boyle, P.G.P.

On May 3, 1911, Gold of Ophir Parlor No. 190 was instituted in Oroville. The following year, one of the members was approached by the son of one of the early pioneers and offered the gift of a ledger dating from the early 1850s. It was gratefully accepted and a few evenings later was presented to the Parlor at their meeting. Immediately two members, who were daughters of pioneer families offered two more mementos of Ophir City's past.

Drug store. Many of the old patent medicines and almanacs are shown.

This was the beginning of the Pioneer Relic Building. By 1913, the Parlor had received forty mementos of the past. When the City Library was approached, they were given the privilege of installing a cabinet for these treasured relics. After its completion a dedication ceremony was held. Relics kept coming in. When the cabinet was filled, gifts were then stored in the home of one of the members and in the Court House. Interest was rapidly growing.

A few years later at a joint Halloween social meeting of Gold of Ophir No. 190 and Argonaut Parlor No. 8 NSGW which was held in the Gardella Building on the corner of Montgomery and Myers Streets, a small kitten was auctioned off; a basket of apples sold at one dollar each; tickets were sold for guessing the number of seeds in an uncut pumpkin. The returns netted $52. This was the foundation of a fund to erect a Pioneer Relic Building for the preservation of articles pertaining to the history of California.

Soon afterwards it was found that a lot on Montgomery Street, which was the original site of the first saw mill in Ophir City was for sale. Argonaut Parlor No. 8, NSGW produced the $700 for purchase of the lot. This fund was later refunded to them by placing the names of all their members on a memorial plaque.

Dances, dinners, card parties and various means of raising funds were held for the building of a Pioneer Relic Building.

The first week in May of 1927 a three day 49'er celebration was held. This netted $7,000. In 1930, the

One section of Blacksmith Shop. In foreground to left is a "seeder" sack of grain put in the top section; this was then attached to one wheeel of a horse-drawn wagon, as the wheel turned the seed would be released in the bottom and thus they planted their grain fields. To the right of this is part of a forge, to work the bellows. The handle was made from one shay of a cart.

This is the other end of the Blacksmith Shop. Notice the dark colored boards on the left side. These were boards from the last blacksmith shop in Oroville. When it was dismantled I asked for the same, as they bore the imprint of the branding irons. The black object is a "Hay Bailer" used to grab a bale of hay and then lift it from the wagon by a pulley to store the hay in the upper part of a barn.

Our old-fashioned kitchen. The table in foreground was made from the sideboards of a Covered Wagon brought to Bidwell Bar, Butte County in 1852. The table was made in 1857. In front is the beginning of the washing machine.

The "Saddle" room. Horse hair buggy robe on back wall. All types of saddles. Also at the left on floor is a "Stitching Horse". The arms in front would be spread flat and the leather placed on same. The worker sat astride the horse to do his leather work. Down in front of the old trunk is a set of bells such as used on lead horses drawing freight teams.

Butte County Pioneer Memorial Association was incorporated, with membership from the two Oroville Parlors. Two years later in May, the stone building was completed and dedicated to the memory of the Pioneers of California. Governor Rolph was among the guests present. Ceremonies were in charge of the Grand Officers of the Native Sons of the Golden West.

The following week, an invitation was extended to the teachers and pupils of the Oroville Grammar School. Under the guidance of Clarence Fylling, principal, each class was given a 45 minute tour to interest them in the early history of our State. The eight classes marched up and back to their respective class rooms.

From then on thousands of pupils, high school and college students, historical societies, service clubs, and various other interested groups have been given special tours. The Relic Building has been open every Sunday for the enjoyment of the public.

On July 1, 1949, the adjoining lot was purchased for $4,000. In 1958, thru the generosity of Jess Sank, who presented a lovely gift to the Association in memory of his wife, Cornelia Lott Sank, an extension was added to the building at a cost of over $21,000. A little over two years ago, another beautiful bequest was left to the Association by Minnie Braselton Fahey of Garden Ranch, in memory of her family. This has enabled the Butte County Pioneer Memorial Association to open the basement; rearrange the various displays; and install better lighting, heating and air conditioning.

Now that the vacation season is over and our thoughts are turning to more businesslike matters, let us renew our endeavors to strengthen our Order by increasing our membership. Along with increasing membership, we should revive the interest and active participation of present members. The survival of any organization depends upon growth. Let the motto for each Parlor be "A new member for each member".

The Annual Conference of Junior Native Daughters of the Golden West will convene this month. Give the young ladies your full support and cooperation. Our youth need the encouragement, guidance, and understanding which we, as Native Daughters, can give them through their formative years. Their members are our future members and citizens of these great United States.

The Admission Day Celebration on September 8, 9, and 10 was a glorious success. Alameda County Parlors, the hosts for this year, are to be highly commended for their gracious hospitality and outstanding arrangements. September 9th, Admission Day, is so important to our State and Order. It is not too early to begin to plan for participating in the 1968 Celebration.

REINA DEL MAR

During Old Spanish Days celebration, Mrs. John E. Stupak, Jr. portrayed the city's patron saint. As St. Barbara she wore a gold crown and red and white robes, and carried a chalice and palm frond. The former Miss Karen Elaine Miller was first introduced at the annual prefiesta tea given by Reina del Mar to honor the Old Spanish Days directors and the descendants of the first settlers in Santa Barbara County.

Mrs. John E. Stupak, Jr.

Born in Glendale, she attended Los Angeles schools and Santa Monica City College. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Miller of Palos Verdes Peninsula. She and Mr. Stupak are the parents of John III, 4; and James Wesley, 6 months. During two years as a parlor member she has been bulletin and rummage sale chairman, and is now outside sentinel and a member of Las Fiesteras dance group. She is also a member of the Goleta Woman's Service Club, and was a founding member of the Children's Psychiatric Guild of Los Angeles. While she reigned as St. Barbara, Mrs. Stupak was attended by Mrs. Lorraine Aceves, Mrs. Walter Fluker and Miss Mary Louise Days.

St. Barbara was in the historical parade, El Desfile Historico, on her traditional float, which was decorated by parlor members and friends under the direction of trustee and Past President Ambert Phillips. At the Old Mission on the opening night of Fiesta, St. Barbara was introduced and entered through an honor guard of flower girls. She was presented on the balcony of the courthouse during the opening of each night's performance of Noches de Ronda, while an audience of several thousands watched from the sunken garden.

The parlor has taken a very active part in Fiestas since the first one in 1924, including sponsorship of the colorful Noches de Ronda free entertainment programs in the garden of the county courthouse. Dorothy Russell and her husband William were directors of the show, which included performances by Las Fiesteras, of old California traditional dances. After the last performance, the parlor gave a party for the participants in the show. Betty Miller acting as chairman for the party, and the presence of Grand Presidents June Goldie and Joseph Perez, and PGPs Henrietta Toothaker and Eileen Dismuke, added to another very memorable Fiesta '67.

GP June Goldie, PGPs Eileen Dismuke and Henrietta Toothaker, President Mary Louise Days and a delegation of officers and members attended the dedication of the Hosmer Adobe, built in 1830, in Montecito as an historical monument. GP Joseph Perez, NSGW and GP officers officiated.

The beautiful, hand-carved, gold-etched, leather covered Bible, carried to the altar by Konni Rose, granddaughter of Mrs. Riggs, has been in the possession of Mrs. Husbands' family since 1879. Corsages made by Miriam McPhee and Irene McKibben, were fans of blue lace with red and yellow flowers and orange colored streamers. Mrs. Riggs carried a delicate, white, hand-carved ivory fan made with white feathers and lace dating back to 1835, from France. Her gavel was the one presented to her aunt, Dr. Heilbron, by the Alameda County Deputy Grand Presidents on September 8, 1928.

The program, presented by Mark Russek, featured the Carolina Russek dancing class from Santa Rose School in San Fernando; two numbers, Ciel de Andaluz, and Guadalajara, the costumes were brilliant Spanish colors and the dancers were superb. MEMORIAL TO GRACE HALSEY WILLIAMSON

by Corinne Brandenburg

Grace met her husband, Roy, through their affiliation in the Sierra Club. Until her death in December, 1966, she was continuously active in the conservation of California's natural resources and preservation of its history and landmarks. Loving her heritage as she did, it was natural that she responded quickly to the invitation to become a member of the Native Daughters of the Golden West; her membership in Placerita Parlor was a shining light to her. Thus, it seems fitting that her memory be perpetuated at the site that has been designated "Historical Site No. 1" by the California Heritage Board.

PGP Eileen Dismuke of Tierra de Oro No. 304, organizer and member of the present Committee for El Camino Real and a member of the State Historical Landmarks Advisory Committee, spoke at the presentation ceremonies and gave a history of the El Camino Bells. Memorial ceremonies were conducted by Dorothy Dye of Placerita Parlor. Mrs. Florence Couch, who was associated with Grace in the English Department of Van Nuys High School presented verses by California poets.

Prior to the meeting, a steak dinner was served to approximately sixty members. The tables were covered with gold tablecloths and complemented by dark green napkins. Miniature trees sprayed with gold and bearing tissue-paper flowers of orange carried out the theme of "golden harvest". These were placed at intervals along the tables with autumn leaves scattered in between. Mrs. Paul Breese and Mrs. J. O. Clement of Ontario did the decorating.

The meeting was called to order by the chairman of the evening, Past President Ruth Minnick of Ontario Parlor now residing in San Diego, who presented the gavel to Dorothy Norton of Jurupa for the opening ceremony and escort of honored guests.

The escort team, made up of members from Jurupa Parlor, entered bearing sheaves of wheat sprayed with gold and, in their long white gowns, resembled Minerva, Goddess of the Harvest. Following the escort of Grand President Goldie, GT Lila Hummel, G.O. Gertrude Doss, PGP Anna T. Schiebusch, SDDGP Ruby Meadows, and DGPs Floretta Banks, Margaret Kramp, and Judy Ritter, were escorted in turn and introduced.

Ontario Parlor, led by president Dodge, performed the closing ceremony, calling upon Mrs. Goldie to say a few words. In her address to the members, Mrs. Goldie told about her day which began when she arrived in Ontario at 9:30 A.M. to have a picture taken at the local newspaper office. Then on to the County Court House in San Bernardino where Lugonia Parlor was re-dedicating a sun dial given by them to the county some years ago and just recently moved to a new location. Following this ceremony, Mrs. Goldie was whisked to the San Moritz Club at Crestline for a luncheon hosted by Mrs. Meadows and attended by sixteen members from the three parlors including Mrs. Dodge and Mrs. Henry Lucas representing Ontario.

During the lunch, Fred W. Palmtag, Past President of Arrowhead Parlor, NSGW, arrived to present Mrs. Goldie a gift of her favorite cologne from the San Bernardino Native Sons. After lunch, Mrs. Goldie rested and then dressed for the evening at the home of Mrs. Meadows in San Bernardino. She wore a long formal gown of gold accented with touches of white.

Parlor reports were given by Mmes. Cisneros, Lucas and Jackson. Tommie Lucas presented Lugonia's gift to the Grand President — it was a small stuffed squirrel gathering nuts which opened to reveal the dollar bills. Ontario's gift, in the form of a small money tree, was presented by Past President Wardell now living in Carpenteria. Golden sheaves of wheat concealed the gift from Jurupa Parlor which was presented by Mahala Lieb of Riverside. All were escorted to the president by Mrs. T. Crisp of Ontario who was the Marshal of the evening.

Proceeds from the coin march were marked for the Native Sons' and Daughters' float in the Tournament of Roses in compliance with Mrs. Goldie's request. Mrs. Earl J. Poulson of Ontario Parlor was in charge of the guests books and reported some ninety members were in attendance. Deputy Jean Whitten, Secretary Nancy Payer, Grand Past President Beryl Kee and Grand Marshal Louise Whitten, all from Alila No. 321, Delano were the installing officers. Phyllis Hansen was Chairman of the evening. Mrs. Max Walker was seated as president, using an elaborate color scheme of royal purple, emblem of loyalty; orchid, symbolizing beauty and dignity; lavender, the epitome of affection. These three colors, her favorites, were used profusely throughout the hall. Her theme, chosen from these colors, is loyalty, dignity and affection, representing togetherness. Her project for the year is supporting the Grand Parlor Scholarship fund. The Childrens Foundation chairman for this year will be Dorothy Rother.

Installed to serve with Mrs. Walker were Mmes. West, Neff, Sheela, Rother, Barnes, Reaves, Liebel, Acheson, Garner, Sells, Brown, Loesel, Walters, Smith, Parmalee and Miss Muriel West.

Each station had a white cupid supporting a gorgeous bouquet of the above colors. The refreshment table was most attractive with punch bowls at either end, centered by the installation cake, silver dishes of mints and nuts. These same colors were predominate at both the refreshment table and the guest book table. Adding to the decor was a royal purple, satin banner, festooned with orchid and lavender with gold letters spelling out loyalty, beauty, dignity and affection. Refreshments and table decorations were in charge of Mmes. Smith, Seibert and Loesel, assisted in the serving by Della Campbell. Gladys Kofahl attended the guest book. All past presidents were hostesses for the evening. Lawrence Wensley, a student from Curran Junior High School entertained with two solos and received hearty applause. Another feature of the evening was the escorting of the past presidents to the altar for introduction. The "Hymn to California" was sung by Mrs. W. S. Sells. SDDGP Louise Whitten from Alila Parlor was escorted to the altar and introduced as was DGP Eva Fowler from Miocene Parlor. Members and guests were invited to sing "I Love You, California" as the officers formed the regalia march, closing the installation ceremony. All were invited to stay for cake and punch.

WE PLOW THE FIELDS

by

Johann A. P. Schulz

1800

We plow the fields, and scatter
The good seed on the land,
But it is fed and watered
By God's almighty hand;
He sends the snow in winter,
The warmth to swell the grain,
The breezes and the sunshine,
And soft refreshing rain.

He only is the Maker
Of all things near and far;
He paints the wayside flower,
He lights the evening star;
The winds and waves obey him,
By him the birds are fed;
Much more to us, his children,
He gives our daily bread.

We thank thee, then, O Father,
For all things bright and good,
The seed-time and the harvest,
Our life, our health, our food:
No gifts have we to offer
For all thy love imparts,
But that which thou desirest,
Our humble thankful hearts.

All good gifts around us
Are sent from heav'n above;
Then thank the Lord,
O thank the Lord
For all this love. Amen.

"Here rests in honored glory
An American Soldier
Known but to God"

Sign of the Home that will stay young

And so will the family that lives here, because the Medallion Home Emblem can mean gentle, whole-house electric heating; a flameless, cool electric kitchen; and a readiness for the wonderful electric conveniences that are as near as tomorrow.

Historic Ince Studio

by Lillian M. Stratton

THE SITE ON which was founded the first motion picture studio in Culver City (Los Angeles County), built in 1915 by Thomas H. Ince, pioneer producer-director who died in 1924, was recently designated a California historical landmark by Beverly Hills Parlor No. 289, Native Daughters of the Golden West.

The commemorative ceremony took place at the main entrance to Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer Studio, 10201 West Washington Boulevard, Culver City. MGM's huge 175-acre film plant stands on the exact location of Ince's original (his first) motion picture studio which he built in that community in 1915. Ince was later to build a second and final film studio in 1919 a few blocks further east on Washington Boulevard, following his decision in 1917 to convey his interest in his first studio to others. This included all the land occupied by Ince's first studio, which he owned outright.

It was Ince's first studio — the site now occupied by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer — that Beverly Hills "marked" with a bronze plaque. Mrs. Frank (Laura) Blosdale, who was retiring as president of Beverly Hills Parlor at the time of the commemorative event, and Mrs. Clarita Marquez Young, history and landmarks chairman, were in charge of the ceremony. The event, Mrs. Blosdale pointed out, was Beverly Hills Parlor's participation in Culver City's recent city-wide celebration observing its 50th anniversary as an incorporated city. Quite a few parlor members are residents of this community. Mrs. Young was active on the city's Anniversary Celebration committee.

Text of the commemorative bronze marker, which was placed in a permanent location at the front entrance to Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer Studio, besides declaring the 52-year old original film studio site a California landmark, also includes the information that Samuel Goldwyn, in 1919, succeeded to the title to the studio property and adjoining land for his film production headquarters. In 1924, the text further explains, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studio acquired the property.

Harry Culver, left, and four associates, are shown in 1913 standing on Baldwin Hills overlooking what is now Culver City. It was from here that Culver declared, "This is the place, this is where I'll build my city, midway between the beaches and the City of Los Angeles.

After 43 years, MGM Studio is still the owner at the same location in Culver City. It is one of the world's largest motion picture and TV plants, its property now covering 175 acres of land. At the ceremony, the Reverend Fred Balak, of St. Augustine's Catholic Church, gave the invocation, and Rabbi Allen S. Maller, of Temple Akiba, delivered the benediction. Chief of Police, Gene Mueller of Culver City, led in the salute to the Flag. The Color Guard was composed of recruitment officers from the Los Angeles area Marine Corps Division. Mrs. Young, who is active in Culver City civic and club circles, introduced local dignitaries present at the event. These included, among many others, Culver City's Mayor Dan Patacchia and Chamber of Commerce President Clifford Bollman. Both men were guest speakers on the program.

History of Grace Parlor

Part III

PGP Grace S. Stoermer, for whom Grace parlor is named

In November, 1949, 60 bottles of shampoo were sold to earn the coffee maker. Can you believe it, the dear old pot is nearly 18 years old?

January 5, 1950 bed jackets for the patients in Geriatric Ward in Orange County General Hospital were being made. Fifty-one jackets were completed.

On April 6, plans were started for marking and dedicating Mother Colony House, Anaheim.

On August 3 it was reported that Mother Colony House's dedication was a huge success.

On Oct. 5 — Won Sweepstakes trophy at Fullerton Festival Parade—the float was "an old-fashioned kitchen" with guests having coffee and cake at the old kitchen table. Also won another trophy for float in Halloween Parade in Anaheim.

In 1951, April 5, a check for $100 was presented the Grand President for Mission Soledad fund. The money was made by the History and Landmarks Committee by selling shampoo and vanilla and also by raffling off an electric oven.

On June 28, Grace Parlor "adopted" Girl Scout Troop 11 in Placentia. The leader was Betty Palmer. Grace Moore suggested we donate flags to Scout Troops.

On July 19, three dozen diapers were donated to Sister Kenney Hospital.

A good used piano for $100 to be presented to Carl Harvey Therapy Recreation Center in September was purchased.

We cleared $350 on a bazaar in December.

In 1952, a wheel chair was purchased for Crippled Childrens Association in February. On April 17, the first Courtesy Night was enjoyed.

Our Silver Anniversary was celebrated on June 8 with 87 guests from other Parlors present.

A piano stool was donated to Carl Harvey School in December.

In 1953, the first card party for Childrens Foundation at Knotts Berry Farm was enjoyed and $89.50 was cleared. A Brownie Troop No. 7, Placentia, was sponsored in November.

Work was continuing at Orange County Hospital. Parties and gifts for T.B. patients and to Ward 42 were given with Eva Rice as chairman.

In 1954, April 1, dues were raised to $9 per year plus Home Assessment (75¢ at this time).

On October 21 Mary Williams started the silverware set with 4 dozen teaspoons. A friend of Mary's made the box that is now being used to store the spoons and forks.

This is the year that Grace Parlor started donating American Flags to Scout, Cub and Brownie Troops.

There were fifteen presented at this time and down through the years over 100 flags have been presented to date.

In 1955, a show-case was purchased for T.B. Ward, so that patients could display their hand-work.

The first letters soliciting Children's Foundation Funds were sent out. Tickets to the Annual Card Party were included and the returns have been growing a little larger each year. To date over $1,000 has been raised in this manner. Again this year letters will be sent out.

On December 1, a Merchants lunch was served in the Legion Hall and cleared $100.

In 1956, a brazier was purchased for the girls at Juvenile Hall. Also supplies for making jewelry.

In June the California Herald magazine became our Official Publication and Grace Parlor subscribed 100% Grace Parlor has been a 100% subscriber to the California Herald for 10 years! The Parlor pays the bill for every member's subscription.

On December 14, two card tables, needlework supplies, records and bobby pins were purchased for Ward 41, County Hospital.

In 1957, March 21, "Grace Notes" was suggested as the title for the news Bulletin by Helen Renard. This name is still in use. On May 2, four garden chairs were presented to the Geriatric Ward at County Hospital. June 6 the 51st American Flag was presented to a Girl Scout Troop on this date. June 11 the Sewing Club met at Melba Hughes for the first time. We didn't sew at Melba's — just ate and ate!

On September 10 off we went to Catalina. Such a wonderful time! Let's do it again. How about it girls?

November 7 a Merchants lunch was served to 105 customers — made $97.50. Also had a bazaar and a candy sale which cleared $150.55. Two Thanksgiving baskets were given this year. We are now members of the Pio Pico Society also. On December 14 combs, tooth brushes and kleenex were given to the patients in the T.B. Ward, also four re-conditioned radios.

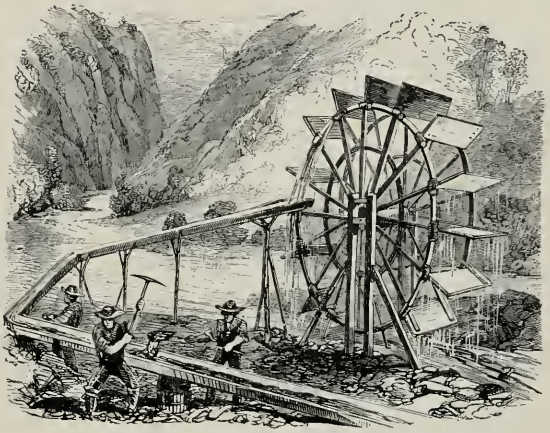

The "Pan Free" project cleared $115.45 for 1957.

HYDRAULIC MINING

BY J. J. FRIIS PART 2

Flutter wheel used in early day mining

CHARLES G. Yale said, "The immense detritus . . . commonly called 'debris', resulting from the work, was allowed to go where it might, and, while much was deposited in canyons or gulches, vast quantities entered the navigable streams, injuring and shoaling them, and doing damage to the farming and horticultural lands along the banks. The bay of San Francisco, into which the main rivers empty, was also shoaled in the upper portions."

"The amount of debris in some localities, notably about Marysville, was almost beyond conception to those who have never seen it. In some places it piled up in the streams 25 or 30 feet deep and caused overflows during the spring, resulting in great damage. In many localities, orchards and farming lands were almost entirely covered by debris and thus destroyed."

In self defense the Anti-Debris Association was organized to fight the powerful Miners' Association. Numerous lawsuits followed. The deciding case was that of Edwards Woodruff vs. The North Bloomfield Mining Company wherein Judge Sawyer perpetually enjoined the defendants from "discharging or dumping into the Yuba River or any tributary stream, especially Deer Creek, Sucker Flat Ravine, Humbug Creek, or Scotchman's creek, any of the tailings, bowlders . . . refuse and debris resulting or arising from mining thereon . . ."

The affect of this decision was to stop hydraulic mining in the central-northern part of the State. Over $100,000,000 in mining property and equipment became idle. Thousands of men were thrown out of employment. The victorious farmers themselves were hurt, for the buying power in mining localities dropped perceptibly.

Much gold remains in unworked gravels. Whatever is recovered in the future will be done principally by dredges for the limitations now placed on hydraulic mining will forever curtail that type of activity.

THIS IS YOUR LIFE

A surprise party was given on October 16 by members of the Past Presidents Association No. 1 for PGP Evelyn I. Carlson, first past president of the association to receive this honor. She joined the association 50 years ago in March, 1917. The distinguished guest was presented at the altar, given a white orchid and escorted to a seat of honor.

Evelyn I. Carlson in 1932

Lucile Ashbaugh, narrator, announced "This is Your Life". She had put the articles pertaining to Mrs. Carlson's life in book form with 50 year emblem on the corner which was later presented to the honoree. Pertinent facts revealed that Evelyn Isabelle Gunther was born in San Francisco, November 26, 1891. Her parents were William and Margaret Gunther. Her father was a member of the Native Sons; her brother William, a past president of the Stanford Parlor. Evelyn was married to David Carlson, November 9, 1911.

After Lucile read several paragraphs, Emma O'Meara, co-chairman, then presented the honoree with a red rose and told of her part in Evelyn's life, stating she had presented Evelyn's application for membership in Dolores Parlor in 1911.

Others participating in the ceremonies were Betty Navarro, Lucille Kimbark, Katherine Keating, Georgia Thierbach, GIS Helen McCarthy, PGP Emily Ryan, Selma McMullin, GT Irene Bondanza, Elsie Paul, William Keane, Ann Shaw, SDDGP Inga Meyer, Theresa Galvin, Mary Morash and Irene Crowley who all spoke and presented red roses which were placed in a golden basket.

Organist Hazel Adams played appropriate music. Evelyn was then presented with a silver charm (clasped hands denoting friendship) engraved 1917 - 1967. The organist played "May the Good Lord Bless and Keep You". Mrs. Carlson was completely surprised and expressed her heart-felt thanks and appreciation. Delicious refreshments completed the evening. Committee included Mmes. Stidhen, Williams, Keneally and Diderickson.

Saga of the Conejo Hills

by Necia Gaffey

NOT SO LONG AGO the softly rolling Conejo Hills
Knew the joy of the gay meadow-lark's trills;
Saw white-faced calves sleeping in the fields
so green,
As contentedly the mothers browsed on the bright spring scene;
And the young colts raced across the grassy rise,
As though to greet the bright, clear blue skies.

The shadowy, dry Conejo Hills once more remember
Their velvety, brown robes of late September
And the bright, amber leaves of the oak and the sycamore,
Swirling in the east wind's bluster and roar.
They remember too, that the end of another harvest was nigh,
When the dark clouds came scudding through the dusty sky.

The old, quiet and gently rolling Conejo Hills
No longer know the many old-time thrills
Of the gay bandit, pioneer wagon and stagecoach days.
The years have brought progress and a whole new phase
Of housing tracts, compact cars and smoggy industries.
Gone forever are the ancient, sprawling oak and sycamore trees.

For better or worse, the freshly terraced Conejo Hills
Have lost the little woodsy, sparkling blue rills.
Now, thin long white gutters of newly poured cement,
And crowded, endless streets of wide grey pavement
Have replaced the slow and quiet old ways.
Of the once tranquil life of the early days.

Perez, of the Native Sons and a member of Eden Parlor, and his lovely wife, Doris, a member of Hayward Parlor. The "Cantino" featured the lively accordion music of Emily Spracklin and Spanish dances performed by Rita Holliday and Camille Cuevas.

Decorations in the hall and banquet room were symbolic of the three parlors and State of California. HISTORIC INCE STUDIO . . .

As Culver City lies within the limits of two historic ranchos — La Ballona and Rincon de los Bueyes — whose settlement began in the Spanish period of California history, Mrs. Young asked Mayor Patacchia to relate the arrival in the early 1800s, of the first white settlers to the two adjoining ranchos.

According to eminent California historian W. W. Robinson, members of four families — the Machados, Talamentes, Higueras and Lopezes— journeyed west approximately twelve miles from the tiny pueblo of Los Angeles, to settle on the ranches They held concessions granted them by the Spanish military commander, José de la Guerra y Noriega, to raise cattle and horses, plant vineyards and grow crops. Friendly Indians already were dwelling on the ranchos, said historian Robinson, gathering shellfish and clams at the beach, hunting small game in the marshes and finding edible berries and seeds along La Ballona Creek. This creek, then a year-round river, lined with sycamores and willows, ran straight through the two ranchos, emptying into the sea at Playa del Rey.

Culver City in the year 1924, still sparsely settled. Camera focussed north, across Culver City. The wide-open area beyond Culver City is now a densely populated area of the western section of Los Angeles.

The Indians remained to work for the four families and they lived in huts built among the sycamore trees or up against the cliffs beneath what is now Loyola University at Playa del Rey. When Mexico took over rule of California, the four families ultimately were given full ownership grants to their lands.

Culver City in the year 1926, with famous old Culver City Racetrack in right foreground. Now gone, it once was setting for many world-famous automobile races. Photo camera focusses north-east across Culver City, showing sections of the city of Los Angeles. Note in dim background the snow-covered San Gabriel Mountains. In front of them the lovely hills which frame Hollywood and western area of Los Angeles.

Clifford Bollman, Culver City's Chamber of Commerce president, in his talk, paid tribute to the memory of Thomas H. Ince, who was one of the more important of the pioneer film makers, which include D. W. Griffith, Mack Sennett and Jesse Lasky, all of whom have passed away; and Adolph Zukor and Samuel Goldwyn. Mr. Zukor resides in New York and Mr. Goldwyn actively operates the huge Samuel Goldwyn Studios in Hollywood. A charming telegram of good wishes was read during the commemorative ceremonies, sent by Mr. Goldwyn, who was in Europe and therefore unable to attend the ceremony.

Thomas H. Ince came to Los Angeles from New York in 1911 as west coast executive chief of the New York Motion Picture Company. "Inceville", a sprawling, busy, 18,000 acre motion picture "lot" which now is just a fond memory to southland old-timers, was built by Ince in one of the Santa Monica canyons and along the beach-front, soon after his arrival in 1911. It was named "Inceville" in his honor by his associates.

For a number of years Ince produced and directed motion picture films at this picturesque location by the sea. Many of the greatest silent screen "stars" appeared in his film productions. Ince was described by his co-workers as a dynamic, imaginative, brilliant individual, who worked extremely hard day and night in his successful efforts to produce exciting and memorable film stories.

Thomas H. Ince's "discovery" of Culver City as an ideal location for a permanent film studio site, came about in an interesting way. California historian W. W. Robinson wrote: "Thomas H. Ince, producing pictures at Inceville, on the coast above Santa Monica, needed a stream of water that could float three canoes full of Indians. The Los Angeles River at the time was incapable of such an act and the Colorado River was too far away. La Ballona Creek came to the rescue. Canoes filled with painted savages floated on its surface. The scene was shot under the bridge at Casserini Ranch, not very far from the site of of Francisco Higuera's homestead. One of the most interesting spectators was Harry H. Culver."

Culver, a brilliant real estate developer, had come to the Culver City area around the year 1912. It then was mainly wide open spaces, beanfields and a few homes. Culver conceived the idea of "a city on the highway between Los Angeles and the sea." It was to be partly residential — partly industry. Culver and his associates worked diligently to make the "idea" a reality. In 1913, the unincorporated community of Culver City was born, named after the inspired realtor by his enthusiastic co-workers in the Culver Investment Company. Four years later, in 1917, it became an incorporated city.

Harry Culver, who has passed away, long had desired a motion picture company to permanently locate in his little town. He knew that such an industry would bring prestige to the community. He realized that hundreds of film workers would be employed and that meant homes would be built, shops and stores would open for business to serve the needs of the families and other big industries would be attracted to the vicinity. Soon Culver and Thomas Ince met. That was early in 1915. Shortly thereafter, Ince purchased from E. P. Clark some acreage facing on Washington Boulevard, and commenced building his first Culver City Studio.

On New Year's Eve, 1916, the first motion picture studio in Culver City, built by Thomas H. Ince, formally opened, with an elaborate reception and ball. Five hundred guests attended. These included famous movie stars of the silent screen, producers, directors, writers and executives from other film studios located in and around Los Angeles. In attendance also were business and civic leaders from Los Angeles and Culver City. Ince and his charming wife led the colorful grand march that memorable night, fifty-one years ago.

A delightful and nostalgic highlight at the Native Daughter marking was the introduction of Thomas Ince's widow, their son, Thomas Ince, Jr., two grand-daughters and a great-grand-daughter. Mrs. Ince, a petite and gracious woman, reminisced about those early days when the Los Angeles area was just beginning to become the movie capital of the world and of her close association with her husband in his film work up to the time of his death in 1924.

Mrs. Senaida Sullivan, Beverly Hills Parlor's Civic Participation and Americanism chairman, gave a talk on the outstanding historical projects maintained by the statewide Native Daughters of the Golden West, and Mrs. Lillian M. Stratton, parlor press representative, introduced executives from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studio. Both women were members of the "marking" committee.

Roger Mayer, executive assistant to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer vice-president-general manager Ray Klune, accepted the plaque on behalf of MGM. Following the event, an informal luncheon was held in the studio commissary for Mrs. Ince, her family, and those who took part in the marking ceremony.

MISSION PARLOR NO. 227

Mrs. Warshaw is presently State Inside Sentinel of the Past President's Assembly.

Minerva

by Marie Ann O'Keefe

"HAPPY NEW YEAR" — Startling isn't it, but true at this time for our Minerva No. 2, for on July 2 the installation of officers took place. First, congratulations are sincerely extended to our Past President, Dolores Kikke, for a successful and active year, and to Dolores' core of officers and fellow workers for the wonderful way they worked together with their president to make this last term such a happy one. "A CHAIN OF FRIENDSHIP" were the words used at our beautiful 80th Anniversary Tea by our Past President and it is this friendship that makes Minerva Sisters a complete family of unity. Thanks again Dolores for everything.

Congratulations and best wishes are extended to each new officer of Minerva No. 2. They are as follows: President, Mary Frances Barron and Mary Ann O'Keefe, Mary 1. Barron, Rose Sarouhan, Mary Oertwig, Imelda Baker, Bertha Miller, Ethel Hambly, Minnie Rausch, Ella Tait, Ruth Tousdale, Lola Followell, Marie Robins, Hazel Adams, Dolores Kikke and Claire Booker.

PGP Alice D. Shea

The installation of officers was handled under the chairmanship of Alice D. Shea, Past Grand President and her committee. It was a beautiful evening. Many of the new officers were attired in formals. Upon completion of the installation, delicious refreshments were served. Dorothy Bayles, Deputy Grand President from Utopia No. 252 was installing officer. Taking a few seconds, would like to say thanks to Dorothy for she not only was a good Deputy to our Sisters but has become a great friend.

PGP Emily E. Ryan

Emily E. Ryan, Past Grand President, from Las Lomas No. 72, gave the obligation. For all who know Emily, know that she was her usual gracious self. She certainly is inspiring to us all. Acting Grand Marshal was Helen McCarthy, Grand Inside Sentinel of Utopia. Other Grand Officers in attendance were Mary Mahoney, Grand Secretary, Golden Gate No. 185; SDDGP Inga Meyer, Mission No. 227. BERKELEY

"Our guests couldn't have enjoyed coming as much as we did entertaining them," was the comment of the committee in charge of arrangements for the 1967-68 official visit to Berkeley No. 150. The grand pow-wow was a turnabout from the usual mid-winter luncheon honoring the grand president. The theme was "American Indian", with a color scheme of autumnal colors. The chief sent up smoke signals to bring in all Indian baskets, pottery, costumes, blankets, and artifacts. Widespread and generous responses brought in quantities of cheerished mementoes, all of which, even to one moccasin were used by the committee on the stage and across the auditorium at the Berkeley City Club or in the large centerpiece on the long tea table. A card table held two sheet cakes decorated as an Indian village, with miniature riders, teepees, and figures. The whole was set off with, dock, corn stalks, acorns, and cones. Mexican lilies with the theme colors subtly blended were corsages.

GP June T. Goldie

More than 75 attended. Marshal Marian McGuire presented the Grand President June T. Goldie, who was escorted by DGPs Madera, Ragon, Murphy, Campbell, Madsen, Smith, Stuart, Sairanen, and Jordan. At first vice president Marjorie Benedict's station, was a chief's head dress, the quills of which were ball point pens. Guests of honor weer presented with pens and a string of beads. The head dress with remaining plumes was presented to the Grand President, who won this regalia for the meeting.

Other grand officers present were GM Nancy Conens; Chairman of the Board of Trustees Virginia McCombs; GTs Irene Bondanza; Maria Landini; Betty Read Curilich, and Marian McGuire. Also escorted were GS Mary Mahoney and PGS Irma Murray, SDGDP Dorothy Lynn, DGP Josephine Lauricella, and charter member Amanda Higgs. Charter member, Lucy Mahoney, was also honored. Attending were six Past Grand Presidents: Irma Caton, Ethel Enos, Jewel McSweeney, Doris Gerrish, Alice Shea and Clarice Knowland four State Chairmen, Betty R. Curilich, Extension of the Order; Nancy Conens, Pioneer Roster; June Painter, California History and Landmarks, and Irene Caton, Insurance.

GM Nancy Conens sang a welcome as the Grand President was escorted. A motion to investigate the suitability of Brooks Island for a NDGW historical marker was carried. An address on Brooks Island, a pilgrimage place for Indian Relics, which is in process of becoming part of the East Bay Regional Parks, was given by a staff member. The highlight of the afternoon were solos in the Indian languages by Minnie Ellen Hastings, in her authentic Navajo Indian costume. Mrs. Hastings is on the board of Intertribal House, Oakland.

Gifts of Indian decorated notepaper were presented by the Chairman followed by the presentation to the grand president of a silk screen copy of a Navajo sand painting, an autographed copy of Uses of Native Plants of the Bay Region; and a special presentation of a gold colored Indian necklace carrying wampum by Maude Stanley.

PGP Clarice Knowland spoke honoring especially vice-president Marjorie Benedict, for her 12 years' service as National Republican Committee woman; and the three generations of Joan Moura's family. PGP Knowland listed the services of Joan's mother, GT Marian McGuire, and her grandmother, Edna Towne, who organized many parlors in Central California. Joan received a knife and fork from Berkeley Parlor for her newest little Native Son.

Guests lingered a long time exchanging news, and generous compliments on the occasion. The last guest to leave was the Grand President. All grand officers were guests of GT Marian McGuire for a tour of special interest to NDGW and a luncheon at her home before the meeting.

Sacramento in the early days

Christmas at Sutter's Fort in 1845

MAJOR PIERSON B. READING was invited to be a guest of Captain John A. Sutter for dinner on Christmas day, 1845. Also included as guests were John Bidwell, Samuel J. Hensley and a number of Sutter's employees. This special holiday dinner was given at Sutter's Fort situated at what is now Sacramento. Years later this interesting account of the dinner was found in Major Reading's effects.

"We took our seats at the table with expectancy and no little curiosity, inasmuch as our stores were limited. The first course was beef soup, garnished with frijoles, chile colorado and garlic. The second course was roast beef. The third course was baked beef pie. The fourth course was stewed beef and the fifth course was fried beef garnished with the same condiments as the first, but the chile colorado dominated all others and our stomachs were like boiling caldrons.

"We were all very anxious for the plum pudding to counteract the heat created by the red peppers. The cook soon brought it in with an air of self congratulations. And such a pudding! In its construction the cook had used common beef tallow liberally and filled it with sour grapes, and seasoned it with chile colorado, black pepper, salt and garlic. He also had made a sort of sauce with the panoche sugar and also dosed that liberally with chile and black pepper.

"Captain Sutter was a singular man about his food. He would partake of anything set before him without a remark, but this dish bothered him. We had all been helped plentifully, but after taking a mouthful or two were as perplexed as the Captain and gazed at each other and at the dish in silent astonishment until I broke the silence by asking, 'Cook, what is it?' 'Why, sir,' said the cook, 'it's a regular Christmas pudding, Mexican style', and so ended our dinner at Sutter's Fort in 1845."

Madrina of Olvera Street

By Dr. Leo J. Friis

SENAIDIA Sullivan, a seventh generation Californian, has been appointed Madrina (godmother) of Olvera Street and El Pueblo de Los Angeles. She was unanimously selected for the honor by the Selections Committee appointed by the Executive Board of the Pueblo de Los Angeles, Inc. and her nomination was likewise unanimously approved by the Board.

Mrs. Sullivan is a member of the Cultural Heritage Board of the Municipal Arts Department of Los Angeles and was recently appointed a member of Los Amigos del Pueblo. Her commission for the latter office, signed by Governor Reagan, Mayor Yorty and the Los Angeles Board of Supervisors, states, "Henceforth, you are designated as Doña Senaida Sullivan."

As Madrina, Mrs. Sullivan succeeds the late Florence Dodson Schoneman. Her first public function will be her appearance at the opening of the Las Posadas observance.

Mrs. Sullivan is a direct descendant of Pedro Amador, a member of Portolá's expedition which marched overland from San Diego to San Francisco Bay in 1769, an event which will receive state-wide celebration two years hence. Amador's granddaughter, María Josefa Dolores Alvarado, married Antonio José Rocha at San Gabriel Mission on December 5, 1826. Rocha, a native of Portugal, arrived at Monterey in July, 1815, and came south to settle in Los Angeles where he was the first non-Spaniard resident.

Rocha was a stone mason by trade and his services were in great demand. He did much work for Father Antonio Peyri at Mission San Luis Rey. He built an adobe home at the northwest corner of Court and Spring Streets in Los Angeles. This property was sold by his heirs to the County of Los Angeles in 1853.

Governor Antonio José Carrillo granted Rocha the 4600 acre Rancho La Brea on April 8, 1828. The grant was confirmed and a patent for it issued by President U. S. Grant on April 15, 1873. Upon this rancho are the famed tar pits from which the bones of many prehistoric animals have been recovered. Upon it also stands the famed Farmer's Market.

In 1852, Rocha's son, Antonio José Rocha II, grandfather of Mrs. Sullivan, married Ventura Lopez at Mission San Gabriel. According to the records of the Mission, the bride had been confirmed by Father Junípero Serra. Antonio José Rocha II purchased a substantial portion of Rancho Rincon de los Bueyes from its original grantees. Upon this land he erected an adobe in 1865. In 1938 the home was purchased by Mrs. Sullivan and her husband, Francis W. Sullivan, who thoroughly restored it and installed modern conveniences. Mr. Sullivan, a well-known pipe organ builder, passed away in 1957. Mrs. Sullivan continues to reside in the adobe at 2400 Shenendoah St., Los Angeles, and has been very generous in opening it to school children studying California history.

Senaida Sullivan is an active member of Beverly Hills Parlor No. 289, NDGW and has served several years as a Grand Officer of the Grand Parlor, retiring after a term as Chairman of the Board of Grand Trustees.

While serving as Grand Organist she introduced a resolution in Beverly Hills Parlor urging that "I Love You California" be made the State Song. This resolution was enthus-

Historic and Interesting Places

TROPICO GOLD MINE, Mill and Camp in the Antelope Valley near Lancaster is an historical place of interest preserved for all to see by owners Glen and Dorene Settle. Picture on the cover of this issue is a hawk's-eye view of the entire operation. At left the owners inspect gold-specked crucible, part of gold smelting furnace used to reduce the precious metal into molten pour for ingots. Visitors on guided tour can trace the step-by-step conversion of hard-rock, gold-laden ore into bullion.

The saddle room shows a stitching horse, horse-hair buggy robe and all types of saddles. This is but one of many exhibits at the Pioneer Relic Building in Oroville.

If Heritage House could talk, it would certainly reminisce on the olden days in Compton. The photograph shows the living room with the old Nygaara clock, antique platform rocker, Harshman framed picture and other relics.

Coit Tower on Telegraph Hill was designed by architect Arthur Brown, Jr., and erected with funds bequeathed by Lilly Hitchcock Coit for "beautification of the city." It is one of the most distinctive marks on San Francisco's skyline.

DISTRICT FOUR

Grand President, June T. Goldie made her official visit to a joint meeting of the four parlors of District four on November 7. The meeting was held at the Masonic Hall in Anderson and was preceded by a dinner at the Big Star Restaurant in Cottonwood.

Tribute was paid to Mrs. Olive Matlock, who was a 64 year member of Camellia No. 41, Anderson, when she passed on last year. She served as Grand President of the Order in 1912 and 1913. Grand President Goldie was privileged to wear PGP Matlock's regalia while making her official visit. Camellia Parlor has conducted a project to raise funds to purchase a display case for the historical room at the Native Daughter Home in San Francisco. The case will be presented as a memorial to PGP Olive Matlock.

Three candidates were initiated for Hiawatha Parlor: Myra Swarts, Dorothy Holt and Ethel Ruth. Arlene Chase and Edith Pelnar were new members for Camellia Parlor. Twenty-five year membership pins were presented to Alice Weingartner of Hiawatha Parlor and to Nell White of Lassen View Parlor, the Grand President making the presentations. WHITTIER

A most unusual installation was held for the incoming officers of Whittier No. 298 at the Masonic Hall. Incoming President Maxine South's theme was "Serving the Order With Happiness", and happy clowns were used as her decorating decor. A large five foot pink and white clown holding a decorative sign spelling "Happiness" was at the president's station, and happy clowns with colorful red and white flowers were in front of each of the other stations. The color scheme was red and white, and the table decorations were carried out in these colors with a little individual clown at each place setting. The cake was a three-tiered cake adorned at the top with a large clown happily waiving congratulations to the newly installed Whittier corps of officers.

As a pleasant surprise incoming President Maxine was escorted to her station by Regina King, dressed in a red and white striped clown costume which added an entertaining and happy note to the evening and accentuated her theme. As the President was a Blue Bird leader, her Blue Bird group in uniform were the Flag Bearers. Holly Reasin of the Calhi Madrigals was the soloist and Evelyn Sherman was the chairman of the evening. Bible carrier was Cindy Gatlin, daughter of the president, along with her other daughters who were keeper of the guest book, Sara South; program, Connie Gatlin; hostess, Su Gatlin.

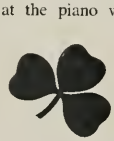

Honored guests included: GT Lila Hummel, GO Gertrude Doss, PGP Anna T. Schiebusch, DGP Shirley Dearborn, and SDDGP Virginia Bennett. Over 100 guests and members were in attendance.

Future plans of Whittier Parlor include forming a bowling team, holding a membership tea, concerted effort for 100 per cent increase on California Herald subscriptions, Christmas party, and an Around The World Dinner.

PARADE PRINCESSES

BY MURIEL C. FABRICK

Seven girls put aside their numbers and were identified by name Friday morning (November 10) and ascended to the regal honor of representing the 79th Annual Tournament of Roses during the festivities climaxed by the Rose Parade and the Rose Bowl Game. H. W. Bragg, president of the 79th Annual Tournament of Roses, was handed seven sealed envelopes by Peter Davis, chairman of the Association's Queen Selection Committee. After briefly addressing the 25 finalists assembled on the front steps of Tournament House following a breakfast, he read the names one by one, handing each girl a bouquet of American Beauty roses.

Listed in numerical order by the numbers they wore during all previous judging sessions, the girls named to the 1968 Royal Court are: Linda Jean Strother, No. 67, Pasadena; Eileen Kondler, No. 80, El Monte; Nancy Otten, No. 92, Pasadena; Colleen N. Coffey, No. 97, Arcadia; Patricia J. Dayton, No. 159, Pasadena; Jonee Miller, No. 179, Pasadena; Sharon R. Canfield, No. 227, Temple City.

Among the newly named Court members are four girls from Pasadena and one each from Arcadia, El Monte and Temple City. All of the girls are students at Pasadena City College except Colleen N. Coffey who attends Pasadena High School. Four of the Court members are studying to become teachers, two are pointing toward careers as legal secretaries and one will become a buyer upon completion of her education.

From here on out, it will be a busy schedule for the members of the Royal Court. Immediately after the announcement, they will be taken to one of Pasadena's leading stores where they will be outfitted with three wardrobes — sports, dressy and formal. Next week, the final seven will attend the President's Tea and the President's Dinner.

On Sunday, November 12, 1967 the Tournament of Roses Association held the "Get Acquainted" Tea for the seven Princesses who have been chosen by the Judges to ride on the Queens' float in the Tournament of Roses Parade on January 1, 1968. The tea was in honor of the girls and their parents.

Tournament of Roses Float

by Evelyn Henry

THIS IS THE 26th year that the Native Sons and Daughters have entered a float in the Pasadena Tournament of Roses Parade on New Years day. This is the seventh year that the Orders have teamed up with the United States Forest Service. The theme this year will be: "BE MY GUEST, BUT PLEASE PREVENT FOREST FIRES". Donald I. Bent will again be the builder of the float.

The Tournament of Roses theme is the "Wonderful World of Adventures" Senator Everett Dirksen will be Grand Marshal. He will join the illustrious group of persons which includes presidents, governors, military heroes and entertainment stars who since 1890 have led the world's most famous floral parade. Senator Dirksen will give the signal to start the parade at 8:40 A.M., January 1, 1968.

Sixty floats will be entered and seen by a million people along the parade route. One hundred million people in the United States, Canada and Mexico will view it on television. Entries are expected from Thailand, Mexico and Canada in addition to those from the United States.

The Native Daughter - Native Son float will be fully animated. It points out the wonderful adventures that can be had in the forest, but also points out carelessness as a serious cause of forest fires. Three life-like flowered figures are on the float: a little boy, a little girl and Smokey Bear. The animation shows a dog and a rabbit running through the forest. The boy turns to watch the action. The girl at the front of the float bends down to smell a large, beautiful flower. Just then, a bee pops out of the flower. She throws up her hands and leans back. At the rear of the float, Smokey watches the children playing in the forest. He turns and points to a sign which says "Smokey's friends don't play with matches."

The figures of the boy and girl are covered with gladioli and orchid petals, pampas grass, palm fronds and onion seed. Smokey is covered with Hawaiian fire sedge and blue corn flowers. His ranger hat is covered with more than 20,000 sea oats. The base of the float is covered with brilliant red roses, sea foam, statice, fern and gold and white chrysanthemums. The Great Seal of the State of California is on the back of the float. The Orders' floats have won many awards in the past years including the Governor's Trophy and the Grand Marshal's Trophy. In 1954 the Native Sons and Daughters received the highest award given by the Smokey The Bear Program to organizations—the Golden Statuette. This was given to each of the Orders for their outstanding work in promoting forest fire prevention nationally through the Smokey Bear Rose Parade floats.

The float will be decorated at the Rose Palace, 835 S. Raymond St., Pasadena. The hours for decorating are: Wednesday, Dec. 27, 12 noon to 9 P.M.; Thursday, Dec. 28, 9 A.M. to 10 P.M.; Friday, Dec. 29, 9 A.M. to 10 P.M.; Saturday, Dec. 30, 9 A.M. to 11 P.M.; Sunday, Dec. 31, 9 A.M. until completion of float.

EL DORADO

El Dorado No. 186 met in the I.O.O.F. Hall, November 1, with President Helen Francisco presiding. Fourteen members were present. Alta Douglas and May DeNore who have been unable to attend for some time, were welcomed. A greeting card was signed by the members present to be sent to Jennie Kelley, age 102, who resides in a rest home in Sacramento. She was very active in years past.

Plans were made for the annual Christmas party for the December meeting. Gifts and cards will be exchanged at a pot-luck luncheon.

The highlight of the afternoon was the luncheon that preceded the meeting. The table was festive with autumn leaves, "mums", pyracantha and tiny flags for Veterans' Day. A few guests were invited including, James Mace and Mrs. Mace, of the newly formed Historical Council of Eldorado County. This project will bring together several counties in a campaign to preserve and restore the historic early days of the Mother Lode and nearby towns. Modern children will be given a chance to perform some of the activities of children of the 1850-1860 period.

Kathleen Flynn displayed some pictures of the Georgia Slide, one of the Blue Rock Mine, its buildings and watershed. Miss Flynn's childhood was spent in this then thriving community. Her father, the late James Flynn held ownership in these mines.

JUNIOR CONFERENCE

by Marie C. Landini

State Chairman of Junior Native Daughters

A formal banquet and installation of State Officers of the Junior Native Daughters of the Golden West was the highlight of the Annual Conference held at the Holiday Inn, Oakland, on Saturday, October 14.

State Chairman Nancy Conens, GM, installed Marsha Metzger of Estrellas de Oro Unit No. 37, Norwalk, as Junior State President. The ceremonies began when Angela Sumner, a new member of Estrellas de Oro Unit, lit the candles on the altar. The Bible was carried into the room by Marsha's cousin Laura Nesbit. Six members of the new President's Unit formed the escort team for the Jr. State Officers and honored guests. Kenny Hawkins, Marsha's father, was her special escort.

Presented and escorted guests included GP June T. Goldie, Jr. PGP Annette Caiocca, GTs Irene Bondanza, Marie C. Landini, Lila Hummel, Marion McGuire, GIS Helen McCarthy, PGPs Evelyn I. Carlson, Irma Caton and Alice Shea. Also presented were Advisor Mary Manges and President Margaret Pacheco, members of the sponsoring Parlor, Cien Años No. 303, Norwalk.

Other Junior State Officers installed were: PP Cheryl Patterson, Las Amiguitas Unit; VP Kathy Slater, Sequoia Unit; Sec. Linda Ucovich, Menlo Unit; Treas. Cheryl Medford, Camellia Unit; Marshal Jana Gonsalves, Escholita Unit; Trustees Leealyn Baker, Fruitvale Unit, Linda Cane, Menlo Unit, Janette Stetson, Sequoia Unit; Sentinel Nancy Allen, Estrellas de Oro Unit and Organist Pat Powlesland, Las Amiguitas Unit.

GT Marie C. Landini of San Jose Parlor No. 81, was installed as State Chairman. She stated that the State Committee's goals for the year were to increase membership, to institute at least one new unit, continue the program of rewriting the Ritual, Rules and Installation Ceremonies, and develop plans for the new "Scholarship Aid Fund" program.

The newly installed Junior State President said in her acceptance address: "I have chosen as my theme for the coming year 'Climb Every Mountain' for it represents my life as a Junior Native Daughter.

As with all mountains, you have to begin at the base, then work your way up. I began in my unit by joining committees and participating in all unit activities. I climbed a little higher and was elected Sentinel in my unit. Fifteen months after I became a member I ran for the Junior State Office of trustees and surprised myself by winning.

I continued up the mountain slowly but steadily. I worked my way up to the Unit Presidency and became Junior State Treasurer and last year Junior State Vice President.

Tonight I have reached my mountain peak. As I stand here and look back over the year I find that I have not climbed this mountain alone. The members of my unit, my advisors, the members of my Mother Parlor and my family have helped me take each step. Without their support I could never have made it.

It's my time now to say thank you to all those wonderful people that have been so good to me and have made this all possible. I only hope that in some way maybe I can help them climb a mountain of their own and find all the happiness that I have found on the peak of mine."

The Conference's concluding events took place the following day with a swim meet in the morning, conducted by Shirley Svindal, advisor from Menlo Unit, and in the afternoon, approximately seventy Juniors and their advisors drove to Fisherman's Wharf in San Francisco, where they embarked on the "Harbor Prince" for a cruise of the bay.

REINA DEL MAR

Reina del Mar No. 126 is making a concentrated effort to get increased membership subscriptions to the California Herald, and the project was started off September 5 when Past Grand President Eileen Dismuke, who is co-chairman of the Grand Parlor Committee of the California Herald, was invited to attend the meeting and to speak on the history and the importance of the California Herald to the Order. The members are being made aware of the importance of preserving the past for the future, and the California Herald was "born" for that purpose.

PGP Dismuke

The September activities of Reina del Mar proved as exciting and eventful as those previously reported, starting with Admission Day Celebration, when a group of Las Fiesteras dancers accepted Grand President June Goldie's invitation, along with the Native Sons Grand President, to participate. The members of the group, Mary Louise Day, Lisalotte MacFarlane, Nancy Fluker and Karen Stupak, portrayed "Spanish Fiesta Days" in blue taffeta Spanish gowns and heirloom shawls, and appeared very popular with spectators, winning for their theme "California Fiesta Time" $25 prize. They returned home from Hayward in time to attend the Native Sons and Reina del Mar's own Admission Day celebration on September 10 at Santa Barbara's Oak Park, barbecue, the proceeds of which were earmarked to assist Old Spanish Days Fiesta. also Mmes. Aceves, Fraser, Meyerink, Davis, Diaz, Schmitter, Burdick, Graham and other members assisted the members of the Native Sons who had charge of the entertainment and the barbecuing of the delicious steaks. Many visitors attended from El Aliso and Poinsettia Parlors, including DGP Dorothy Douglas.

October has provided continued activities for busy members of this parlor when President Mary Louise Days, and Officers Lorraine Aceves and Nancy Fluker traveled to attend the Soledad Mission Fiesta on October 7, and reported meeting many members of other Parlors and Grand Officers in attendance, which proved to be most enlightening to them and revealing enthusiasm for the projects of our Order.

On October 17 the first initiation ceremonies were attended by DGP Dorothy Douglas, at which time she was officially introduced to the members. The officers were in formal gowns and after the meeting, members participated in a "mad hat" fashion show and refreshments, with the Halloween decorations, thus rounding out the busy fall schedule of the Parlor.

Dear Sirs:

Beverly Hills Parlor No. 289, Native Daughters of the Golden West, at its regular meeting held Wednesday, October 4, 1967, voted unanimously to subscribe 100% for the CALIFORNIA HERALD.

We greatly enjoy the excellent feature articles appearing monthly, which so factually and colorfully describe memorable and exciting periods in California's history.

Not only are these stories invariably absorbing reading — for the pleasure of reading — they also contribute immeasurably to the fund of historical knowledge about our beloved State that each one of us in the Native Daughters of the Golden West should certainly possess. These splendid articles are most helpful in our historical education.

Another section of the CALIFORNIA HERALD which we think is of great interest, and of tremendous importance to our Order, is that section reserved for news stories concerning Native Daughter parlor events, sent to the magazine by alert parlor press chairmen from all over the State.

We definitely feel that these news reports are very important to the Order, because they keep us informed about what is going on in other Native Daughter parlors throughout California. These stories tell us what other parlors are planning in the way of interesting special events, perhaps of civic interest, or they describe recent successful accomplishments in

by Necia Gaffey

THE CALIFORNIA Oil Museum located in Santa Paula on the corner of Main and Tenth Streets, is in the oldest of all western states oil buildings. The Union Oil Company of California was organized in it on October 17, 1890 by the founders, Lyman Stewart and Wallace Hardison. The building is constructed of bricks and wood shipped around the Horn in the early Eighties. The stone portions of the edifice are from local sources. The unusual second floor bay-windows are painted a sparkling white, which emphasizes their Victorian dignity and style against the red brick and the distinctive arched windows between.

The Chumash and Mupu Indians collected the sticky tar from the nearby oil seeps and used it in their basket-making and other ways. Later the Spanish padres knew of the oil seepages and General Andreas Pico found pits of oil in the Newhall area. He and his family sold some of the oil in San Fernando for lamp-lighting and heating. However, the California Oil Museum Building housed the beginning of California's oldest oil companies. The history of the Union Oil Company played a major part in the early days of California's oil industry. Mr. Stewart and Mr. Hardison were oil drilling partners in Pennsylvania in 1874. In 1883 they migrated to Santa Paula. They eventually combined efforts with several other citizens and incorporated the present company. It has become the oldest and largest independent oil company in the west, with its main offices now located in San Francisco.

Through the efforts of Myrtle Dudley, History and Landmarks Chairman of El Aliso Parlor No. 314, and her committee, a bronze plaque was placed on the building on October 25, 1965, which was part of commemorating the 75th anniversary. The old building houses some of the first pieces of equipment used in early day oil drilling. including a full-sized drilling rig, which was first erected in the Nineties. The museum is open to the public without charge from 10:00 A.M. to 5:00 P.M., except Mondays and Tuesdays.

Annotated by Dr. Leo J. Friis

NOTE: — This article appeared in THE NEW YORK TIMES on November 5, 1895, under the title of "California's First Capital." It clearly proves, what historians know, that statements of "old timers" can be unreliable, particularly when they refer to events which occurred before their time. As in many newspaper accounts, contemporary observations are excellent. My annotations, in brackets, appear throughout the article. —L. J. F.

MONTEREY, the dream of the first Spanish navigators to our coast, across the placid water of whose bay floated the solemn tones of the first Mass ever celebrated in California, and the scenes of the early struggle of the infant State to free itself from old Mexico, surrounded by the memories of nearly three centuries, Monterey is, indeed the object of deep interest.

"Back from the ocean and shut in by low, undulated mountains, is the famous Carmel Valley. Its river, during the dry season, is marked only by a path of white sand, bordered by grasses of variegated green, dotted here and there by yellow stubble. The descent into the valley is short and steep, and close by the roadway runs the ruined adobe wall that, of old, inclosed the mission.

"As early as 1770, Junipero Serra, with some of his loyal followers came down from this valley where they had distinctively to early California. [The first mission of California was at San Diego. The second was mission San Carlos del Carmelo.] and sailing along into this beautiful bay, tied their boat to an oak tree, which yet stands a monument to the man who founded the City of Monterey. [Serra arrived on the San Antonio which was not tied to a tree. Launches brought him and the others ashore. This oak tree was probably the one where, according to Fr. Maynard Geiger, O.F.M., some "Carmelites with Vizcaino in 1602 said the first Mass in the area." Here Fr. Serra said Mass in 1770 in the presence of those who had accompanied him on the ship and those who had come overland.] He and his ardent apostles saw the beautiful picturesque site, and began the erection of the famed San Carlos Mission which now stands like a sentinel watching the new growth of the old City of Monterey. [One wonders if the author is not now referring to Royal Presidio Chapel of San Carlos de Borromeo de Monterey, which is situated in Monterey and not to the Mission San Carlos del Carmelo some distance away. Incidentally, the church of the old mission has now the status of a minor basilica.]

Shoreline of early Monterey showing old Custom House

"To-day the adobe buildings, slowly falling into ruins, are pathetic reminders to the past, which belongs built the first mission in California; Bountiful in historical treasures, and greatly endowed with natural beauty, she is a city of adobe ruins, which are being gradually supplanted by homes of more modern design.

El Cuartel

"Probably the most interesting of the historical buildings was the old Cartel on California Street. This structure was recently torn down to make room for the extension of Alvarado Street, the main thoroughfare of the city. This adobe was a two-storied affair, long and rambling, having a balcony running entirely around it. It was built in 1840 by A. Abrego, acting under orders from

Gov. Alvarado, at a cost of $14,000, redwood then selling at $70 per thousand and nails at $48 a keg. The Cartel was used as a school building until the school was transferred to Colton Hall. [El Cuartel herein mispelled Cartel, was built under contract for the Mexican Government by José Abrego, who had come to Monterey in 1834. As its name implies, El Cuartel was probably first used for quartering soldiers and other governmental purposes. During the military governorship of Col. Richard B. Mason, El Cuartel became his department headquarters and as such has been considered California's first American capitol.]

Colton Hall

"Colton Hall, which now stands in a good state of preservation, is where the first Legislature convened in this State. The building was planned by Robert Colton then Alcalde of Monterey. In the pages of Colton's diary we find the concise history of its construction.

" 'In 1842,' says Colton, 'the Town Hall on which I have been at work, is at last finished. It is built of white stone, quarried from an adjacent hill, and easily takes the shape you desire. The lower compartments are for schools; the hall over this, 70 x 30 feet, is for public assemblies. The front is ornamented with a portico, which you enter from the hall. It is not an edifice that would attract attention among the public school buildings of the United States, but in California is has no rival. It has been erected out of the slender proceeds of town lots, the labor of the convicts, taxes on liquor stores, and fines on gamblers. The scheme was regarded with incredulity by many, but the building is finished, and the citizens have assembled in it and christened it after my name, which will go down to posterity with the odor of gamblers, convicts, and tipplers.'

"It is hard to believe that the old building standing on the hillside could have been considered the finest edifice in California. The stone prison, also built by Robert Colton, adjoins the hall. [There is a typographical error on the date of the completion of Colton Hall. It was completed on March 8, 1849. Colton, a naval chaplain, arrived at Monterey on the frigate, Congress, on July 15, 1846. The Constitutional Convention of 1849 was held at the Hall, but California's first Legislature convened at San Jose.]

James Marshall Monument

to Visit in California

by J. J. Friis

JAMES W. MARSHALL, who discovered gold on the South Fork of the American River on January 24, 1848, was a native of New Jersey who arrived at Sutter's Fort in 1845. He and Sutter formed a partnership to build a sawmill at what is now Coloma. Here he "picked up a flake of yellow metal, the historic first piece of gold. It was shaped like a melon seed . . . He picked up a few more flakes . . . He was satisfied that he had found gold." His discovery brought riches to some, but he was not among the fortunate. He died alone in his little cabin at Kelsey Diggins in 1885. Five years later the State erected the Marshall Monument on the hill above Coloma. The figure points to a spot a half mile away where the precious metal was found.

Parlor News

EL TEJON

El Tejon No. 239 joined with Bakersfield No. 42, NSGW in honoring the pioneers of Kern County and California. Approximately 200 guests atended. The hall was appropriately decorated throughout, carrying out the theme, "California Fiesta". Doris L. West, chairman introduced Madalynn Walker, president of El Tejon and Anthony Cochens, president, Bakersfield No. 42, NSGW. Vera Gibson read the roster of those attending. A troup of Boy Scouts presented the colors, followed by the pledge of allegiance to the flag and "Star Spangled Banner".

An interesting talk was presented by Richard Bailey, curator of the Kern County Museum and Pioneer Village. Mr. Bailey emphasized the importance of Pioneer Village as a most complete collection of items typifying early Kern County days. John Loustalot, Bakersfield postmaster, was master of ceremonies and recalled early Kern County history, depicting the courage and sacrifices encountered by the pioneers. In spite of the many difficulties they carried on, sharing their lot with neighbors, making for Kern County the bountiful place that it now is. The "Pairs and Spares", a senior citizen group, entertained with some very lively music, for which they received hearty applause.

Mrs. Errol Knight was in charge of prizes to be awarded to the oldest pioneer, oldest Kern County resident, oldest Native Daughter, oldest Native Son, and also a prize to the person who traveled the greatest distance to attend the tea. Mary Canady, age 88, qualified as the oldest native daughter, and James M. Garrett, age 95 was the oldest native son. Mrs. Waldemar Loesel was in charge of refreshments. Assisting her in the serving were members of the Native Daughters. Other committee chairmen were: invitations, Agnes Smith; registration, Phyllis Hansen; organist, Mrs. John Walters; decorations, Muriel West and her committee. Hostesses at the door were Georgia Sanders, Lorene Williams and Grace Acheson. Mr. and Mrs. Errol Knight were greeters for the afternoon affair.

ARGONAUT

Miss Mary Long of Sonora was initiated into Argonaut No. 166, Oakland, on November 18, although confined in the Sonora Community Hospital where she has been under treatment for the past four weeks.

Miss Long had been scheduled to be initiated at the Official Visit of Argonaut Parlor on October 26, but fell in her garden and fractured both knees the Saturday before. She will be hospitalized another eight weeks, so was delighted when permission was given by the Parlor for her to be obligated and initiated into the Native Daughters. After she is released from the hospital, she will have to use crutches and really learn to walk all over again. While hospitalized she is not allowed to stand or put pressure on her legs. When she is fully recovered and allowed to drive her car, she will travel down to Oakland, and then go through the regular initiation ceremony.

Performing the ceremony at her bedside, were Past Grand President Irma M. Caton of Argonaut Parlor and Past Grand President Norma Hodson of Phoebe A. Hearst No. 214, Manteca. Also present were Ora Doyle, of Argonaut Parlor; Willa Wilson, SDDGP of District 23, San Joaquin County and Josephine Bianchi, DGP both of Phoebe A. Hearst Parlor.

Miss Long became a member of Argonaut Parlor, joining Mrs. Caton and Miss Doyle, who are sisters, and have been her close friends since 1926 when they met on a trip to Alaska. A native of Gilroy where her parents were also born, Miss Long went to Sonora in 1924 to accept her first teaching assignment at Sonora Union High School, after graduating from the University of California in Berkeley. She taught biology there until her retirement in 1960.

PASADENA

Edythe Russell, president of Pasadena No. 290, recently announced that Pasadena Parlor has voted to sponsor the Girl Scout Troop at Roosevelt School for handicapped children again for the coming year and their check as sponsor has been forwarded to the troop. This Parlor has sponsored the Girl Scout troop at this school since the first troop was organized in 1949. Later, when the Boy Scout troop was organized, Pasadena No. 298, NSGW, took over sponsorship of this troop. Since then the Native Daughters and the Native Sons have worked together on their responsibilities.

On December 14 the Native Daughters and Native Sons joined in holding a Christmas Party for the two Scout Troops at the American Legion Hall, Pasadena. Santa Claus presented the children with gifts and a Christmas program under the supervision of Mrs. Russell was enjoyed. Entertainers for the program were the Advanced Accordion Group from Flaherty School of Music and Chrystal and Choral Russell with their guitars.

At the Christmas pot-luck luncheon, preceding the meeting, the table was decorated with runners of narrow strips of twirled red crepe paper, on a white cover, together with vases of English holly.

Gifts and cards were exchanged from a "Mini" tree, nicely trimmed, and donated by PP Lorraine Ross. All these events totaled up to a very pleasant afternoon.

SAN DIEGO

San Diego No. 208 has been very active since installation of officers on July 10 at the Sands Hotel. Members, their families and friends enjoyed a harbor excursion around lovely San Diego bay to celebrate Admission Day, September 9. The event, also a benefit for the Children's Foundation, was well planned by co-chairmen Barbara Dunn and Catherine Higdon.

The Parlor was very well represented on November 5 by Gwen Hanlon, Essie Haubert, Catherine Higdon and Ellen Stone who participated with a Color Guard in the annual Massing of the Colors in Balboa Stadium in anticipation of Veteran's Day. On November 14, President Dorothy Mason presented a California State Bear Flag to the city of San Diego through its Mayor on behalf of the Parlor. The city is planning a year long celebration in 1969 to celebrate its 200th Anniversary. It was requested that the flag be flown along with the Stars and Stripes over civic buildings during the bi-centennial year.

Grand President June Titus Goldie presents 50 year emblem to Pearl Conrad.

Highlight of the year was the official visit of Grand President June Goldie on November 21. A dinner-meeting was held in Town and Country Hotel that evening, at which time Mrs. Goldie presented a 50 year emblem to Pearl Conard.

The Parlor has filled two baskets for the needy this year. Welfare Committee Chairman Ellen Stone reports one was given at Thanksgiving and the other was given at Christmas.

Christmas was celebrated on our regular meeting night, December 11. A program was presented by students of a dance school and later in the evening carols were sung, gifts exchanged and refreshments served. Evelyn Wurzell was chairman of the evening.

MINERVA REVIEW

Minerva No. 2 celebrated Admission Day in Hayward with a marching unit of 14 members, and 5 children; a decorated car and a beautiful horse called Ace, ridden by his owner, known as Happy. Leading the marching unit was PGP Alice D. Shea and

PGP Alice D. Shea

Mary Frances Barron, President of Minerva. All members and the children wore identical old fashioned long dresses of poppy color, trimmed with white lace. White gloves, shoes and tiny white lace parasols completed the costume. An award was won by "Happy" and Ace for being the best mounted entry. After the parade 27 members and guests of Minerva, enjoyed a delicious dinner at Banchero's Restaurant in Hayward.

A farewell party, honoring Dorothy Bayless on her last evening as DGP to Minerva, was given by the members. President Mary Frances Barron presented Dorothy with a gold bracelet, as a token of esteem from the Parlor, for her guidance and friendship during the past term. The newly appointed DGP Marilyn Driscoll, was then presented and made welcome.

On October 28, Minerva held its major fund raising event of the year: a dinner and bingo game played for prizes. PGP Alice D. Shea was general chairman of the evening. A delicious chicken dinner and all the trimmings was served to 71 members and guests. Mrs. Shea, being her usual generous self, not only cooked all of the chicken, but made all of the very tasty cookies served with the ice cream dessert. Many thanks are extended to all of the members for their generous donations of prizes for the bingo game, items for the grocery basket and last but not least a big "THANK YOU" for the time and effort put forth to make the evening, both an enjoyable one to be remembered by our friends, and a most successful and profitable project for Minerva Parlor.

JAMES LICK

With the New Year the members of James Lick are moving to a new hall in the Druids Temple and are changing to meet in the afternoon. All members of the Parlor are either retired or do not work, so the attendance should be much larger. It makes a difference in getting to and from meetings for those who have to ride public transportation. The Christmas party was well attended and the exchange of gifts created a lot of fun. Refreshments in keeping with the season were served before the meeting by President Georgia Robinson and her committee, Ann Ghisilli, Ann Schaughnessy, Mable Fisher and Charter member Mabel Walker.

mains of an old fort, and from here a commanding view of the adobe city can be had. There seems to be no definite history of the old fort, but it is usually called Fremont's fort. Dr. James Ord, now a resident of Pacific Grove, and who is acquainted with the early history of the State, is the only surviving officer of the Third Artillery, of which he was surgeon, that came in 1847, with the expedition of the American occupation.

"From his interesting reminiscenceses of early days in Monterey we learn that the old fort on the Government Reservation, is misnamed. It is really Fort Halleck, so named in honor of Lieut. W. H. Halleck of the Corps of Engineers, by whom it was laid out. The fort was built by Lieut. E. O. C. Ord and Lieut. W. T. Sherman in 1847, and the earthworks were thrown up by Col. J. D. Stevenson, in command of the New York Volunteers and regulars, then stationed on the hill. [Halleck served as Secretary of State under Col. Richard B. Mason, military governor.]

Old Custom House

"Within close proximity to the old fort, and lying at the water's edge, is the old Custom House, the most important building in the early history of California. The authentic story of the building of this old adobe comes from a pioneer, Jack Swan, who came to Monterey in 1843, and still resides in this vicinity. The foundation, or rather the central portion of the Custom House, was laid when the flag of old Spain waved over California, and after remaining for years in that state, the walls were raised under Mexican rule, and a tiled roof put upon the central part, and at the ends, two shingled towers, the second of which was not built until 1844. In the Mexican time the Custom House could boast of a boat and a boat's crew, but now Uncle Sam is too poor to support one in the third harbor in California, though it is the only port from San Francisco to San Diego where a vessel can lie in safety during a southeaster.

"In early days it used to support two or three Custom House officers, for Monterey was the port where the duties were paid by vessels trading to the Mexican Department or the territory of California. In the latter part of 1844 the Custom House was turned into a ballroom by the officers of the United States frigate Savannah, then lying in the Bay of Monterey. [The custom house was the only one in Alta California during the Spanish and Mexican regimes. Hence, its importance. The American Flag was raised over the building on October 20, 1842, with Commodore Thomas ap Catesby Jones' bloodless capture of Monterey under the mistaken apprehension that United States and Mexico were at war. The Flag was again raised on July 7, 1846, when the city surrendered to Commodore John D. Sloat, this time for keeps! It is now a museum. Reports of American forces taking over the custom house for dancing, are conflicting, although Swan should know. The date of 1844 is not correct.]

Early Theatre

"The early building of amusement in old Monterey, besides the enclosure where the young caballeros used to hold their field and athletic sports, was Swan's Theatre. The theatrical history of Monterey dates back to worthwhile historical, philanthropic and/or educational efforts. This exchange of Native Daughter parlor news is inspirational and practical, and we learn a lot from each other.

We are grateful to the conscientious parlor press chairmen who prepare and submit these informative news stories concerning their parlors' achievements and future plans. In fulfilling their duties as press representatives, they are greatly adding to our enjoyment as readers and our pride in membership. Beverly Hills Parlor will certainly make a better effort to keep parlors informed of its activities.

Without the CALIFORNIA HERALD publishing these valuable news reports from other parlors, we 16,000 members from 202 statewide parlors would be pretty much at a loss to know what was going on elsewhere. We would lose touch with our sisters. That greatly needed solidarity or "togetherness" would be gone. That is something all parlors should think about.

And so, we hope all the other Native Daughter parlors are subscribing to our own CALIFORNIA HERALD — our official magazine — or at least are subscribing for their parlor presidents, recording secretaries and press chairmen.

Because, through the medium of this magazine we are able to keep constantly informed of what is going on in Native Daughter circles all over California. After all, we're all part of a big family, and it's nice to keep in touch.

So, we of Beverly Hills Parlor want you to know that we appreciate very much the CALIFORNIA HERALD as a major means of communication in our statewide Order. We wish the magazine continued success.

Sincerely,

Patricia Kindelon,

New Year's Day Customs

by Jane Friis

The custom of celebrating the New Year is very old. Some accredit it to the Chinese, some to the ancient Germans, some to the Romans.

The Chinese have always made the New Year an extravagant and elaborate celebration. They have, at the New Year, their Feast of the Lanterns, their gay Festival of the Dragon Boats, their Fisherman's Festival.

The ancient Germans looked upon the beginning of their New Year as a time of the putting aside old troubles and old worries and the welcoming of new duties and the promise of new bounties.

The early Romans made much of the New Year. To them it symbolized the putting aside of an old life and the taking of a new. They presented one another with branches of trees as tokens of good luck for the coming year.

The Persians have a custom of presenting one another with eggs on New Year's Day. The egg, of course, typifies creation, the beginning of life and hence, the beginning of a new period of life.

In France and Spain, New Year's Day has always been the proper time for exchanging gifts. The people make calls upon one another, extend their good wishes for the coming year and leave small gifts.

The exchange of gifts at New Year's had its origin in the desire to invite prosperity during the coming year. First the gifts were presented to the gods with a little prayer that the donor would be happy and prosperous during the year. Later the idea expanded and the people gave gifts to friends.

The Cherokee Indians have an elaborate New Year's festival. On the day the New Year is supposed to begin they build huge fires and burn all the old clothes and utensils. Old fires are extinguished, the dirt removed and new fires built in their place. New corn is cooked; new beads and new head-dresses d i s p l a y e d. Everything old is cast aside to symbolize the passing of the old year.

In ancient England it was the custom to clean out the chimneys on New Year's Day so that luck could descend and remain all year.

With us it is customary to make good resolutions so that our lives will be better throughout the New Year.

the fall of 1847, when four volunteers [American soldiers] Matt Gormley, William Tindal, Jack Moran (now living in Monterey) and Long Lee, came up from Santa Barbara. They were in the minstrel line, and had given several burnt-cork entertainments in Santa Barbara before leaving. In Monterey they were joined by Alex Patterson, Peter Earl and three local characters designated as 'Tips', 'Taps', and 'Tops'.

"Old John Swan, a '43 pioneer, was manager. He tells the following story of the first performance ever given in California:

'It took in my old adobe storehouse which yet stands on Pacific Avenue, though time has told on it, and from lack of care it is almost in ruins. The performance came to pass in this way: About the time that Stevenson's regiment was disbanded, three companies with the Colonel, came to Monterey. Soon after the soldiers attempted a theatrical performance, which was a success. Encouraged by their liberal patronage, I had seats fixed, and a stage and scenery were put into the building. The bills were got out in due form, posters printed with a blacking pot and brush, and programmes written announcing "Putnam; or, the Lion Son of '76", as the first piece to be played. "Damon and Pythias", "Box and Cox", "The Golden Farmer",

"Grandfather Whitehead", and "Nan, the Good for Nothing" were pieces in the repertoire. The years of 1848 and 1849 were memorable eras in the Thespian record of Monterey.' [Swan was a sailor before he settled in Monterey in 1843. Bancroft comments that he had an unusually accurate memory. The theatre is now a State Historical Monument.]

Convent

"Another building that has been torn down was the old convent. It was built in 1832 for the Sisters of Charity, but a portion of the convent wall is all that now marks the spot where the convent stood. The high wall was standing until a few years ago, when it was deemed necessary to tear it down to make room for houses, for the convent was in the most central portion of town. Although the educational spirit that permeated the walls has by no means passed away with it, and the people feeling the need for some educational advantages, have raised the funds and the contract has been let for a college building. [Santa Catalina, or St. Catherine's Convent, was established in Monterey in 1851 (not 1832) in a building at the northwest corner of Main and Franklin Streets, by three Dominican sisters who came to California in 1850. Here was started the first convent school in the State. The convent's first novice was Concepción Argüello, who many years before had become betrothed to Nicolas Resanov. She had waited long and patiently for his return from Russia and in 1842 learned that he had died on the steppes of Siberia. Little Concha, as she was called, turned to a religious life and became known as "La Beata", the Blessed. Upon becoming a nun she took the name of Sister Mary Dominica. The convent was moved to Benicia in 1854 where the little sister died three years later.

Teakwood House

"A building that is interesting from the fact that it shows that the spirit of progress asserted itself in Monterey before it did in any other portion of the State is the old frame building at the extreme end of California Street. This is built of teak and is the first frame building that stood in California. It was put together in Australia and brought to Monterey in a sailing vessel. While the wood is strong, and has not crumbled, it presents a very tumbled appearance, perhaps owing to the way it was put together. Standing near and in direct contrast to it is the imposing residence which was occupied by Gov. Alvarado. This building is at present the home of a Spanish family, who trace their lineage back to a Casttilian family of nobility.

Washington Hotel

"The Washington Hotel, built in the early forties, is one of the largest adobes ever built in California. When the Capital of the State was Monterey all of her important and distinguished visitors were entertained in this hotel, and Sherman, Fremont, Sloat, and many others have danced the Spanish quadrilles within its historic walls. Even in those primitive days the beau monde flocked from far and near." [The hotel is believed to have been erected in about 1834 and torn down in 1914-1915. It should be pointed out that the author uses the word "state" in referring to California both before and after the Conquest.]

History of Grace Parlor

Compiled by Matilda Enfield

Part IV

MANY gifts have been given organizations. In 1959 two Bear Flags were presented, one to a Scout Troop and the other to Centralia School by Sylvia Meyers. Two folding chairs were donated to Orange County Hospital in 1960. Floral arrangements and cookies for the tables of Geriatric Ward of the Hospital on Mother's Day were made. A Bear Flag was presented to Camp Ahwahne. Nine members were present at a tea at McMillen School in Santa Ana when Grace Parlor presented the drapes for the main hall. In 1962 Pauline Johnson reported on the receipt of 100 hour pins for time spent sewing at Orange County Hospital by herself, Mae Lemke, Matilda Enfield and Hazel Bean. It was voted to donate $25 towards El Camino Real Bells.

In 1963 a Bear Flag was dedicated at new Hunt Foods Library in Fullerton. The Flag was dedicated in memory of Carrie Sheppard, one-time secretary of Grace Parlor, long-time Librarian of Fullerton Public Library.

Grace Parlor, on April 18, voted to sponsor a new Explorer Scout Troop. Merchants' Lunch and Bazaar was held. $158.24 was made on the Bazaar and $44.80 on the Luncheon.

In 1964 a Bear Flag in honor of Kate Rea was dedicated to the new Anaheim Public Library. Kate Rea is sister of charter member Ella Wallop now deceased. Life memberships were presented to Kate Hill and Matilda Enfield on the night of Installation of Officers. This was the 1st joint installation with Santa Ana Native Sons. Seven members attended the meeting at Hunts Foods Library when the Explorer Scout troop we sponsor received its Charter. It was April 18, 1963, when Grace Parlor voted to sponsor this group.

Many things have been accomplished in the last few years and if Grace Parlor can accomplish as much in the next 40 years as they have in the first 40 years, and I believe they will, what a record we will be holding in the future of our State!

CALIFORNIA STATE SONG

That the California Herald is widely read is attested by a recent incident in Santa Ana. A columnist of the Santa Ana Register erroneously stated that California had no State Song. He was immediately deluged with telephone calls from Natives correcting him. At least one person personally showed him a recent copy of the California Herald containing an article proving that there was such a song.

Mrs. J. Orland Smith of Garden Grove, not a Native, but a subscriber to the Herald, sent us this clipping in which the columnist, The Trouble Shooter, corrects himself. Here it is:

Dear Readers:

Looks like the Ol' Trouble Shooter owes a couple of bowls of chili to the Native Daughters of the Golden West.

They say he was wrong when he told T.F. of Orange that California has no official state song.

An article in the California Herald, official NDGW magazine published in Anaheim, says "I Love You California" was adopted by both houses of the legislature on April 26, 1951, as the official state song.

How do you want your chili, ladies? With or without beans?

The True Story of our State Song

I Love You California

by

Clara M. Barton

First printed copy of "I Love You California" presented to the author's father by Frank B. Silverwood, used extensively and treasured highly by the author.

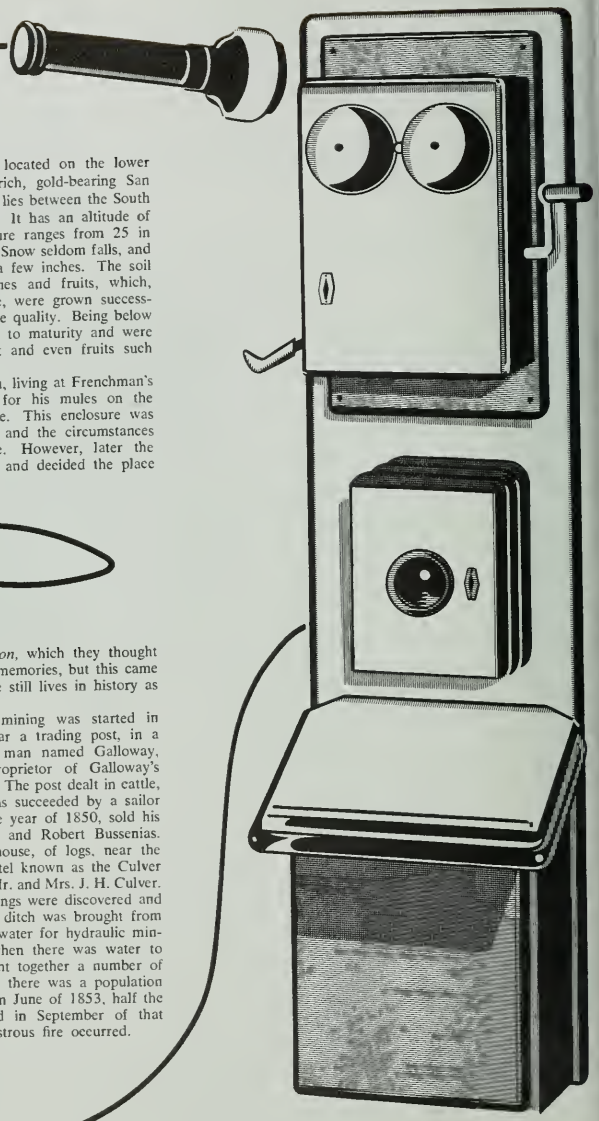

THERE HAS BEEN so much misinformation regarding our State song, its writer and composer that it seems that now is the time to get all facts from a member of a family who were close friends of both, and this will be a brief biography with verifications, if needed. In the first place, Frank Bernard Silverwood and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred F. Frankenstein were close friends of this writer's family and were our house guests many times.

Frank B. Silverwood was the son of a Russian Jew who migrated to the United States to escape the Russian Revolution. He (the father) landed in New York with his young wife and two young daughters. After he had opened a small tailoring shop, on the West side of New York, in the Jewish section, Frank was born. When in his latter teens, Frank Silverwood contracted "serious lung trouble" which we know as "T.B." The doctor ordered him to a drier climate and with the small amount of money, he had saved up by doing odd jobs, he was able to move to Los Angeles, as he had wanted to for a long, long time. He had received his early schooling in New York. According to Mr. Silverwood, he came here at the wrong time as the weather was "floody, scary and just miserable" (quoting Silverwood).

However, a few months later, this was in the year of 1903, Silverwood met another Jewish young man and to make a long story short, they pooled their funds and opened up a men's clothing store in a small room on Main Street. Because both Silverwood and his partner were quite heavy set men, they decided to carry nothing but suits, coats, shirts and even gloves for large men. Here is where my father, Hiram Barton fits in. Dad was a very heavy-set man, with broad shoulders and it had always been a difficult problem for him to get clothing to fit him. He made two business trips to Los Angeles a month from our home in San Bernardino and one day in 1904, he strolled by Silverwood's clothing store and saw the sign, "We carry large suits for large men." Dad walked in, was greeted by Frank Silverwood himself and from then on, dad was a steady customer and both became close friends. My father was not a Jew and was the charter secretary of Arrowhead Parlor No. 110 in San Bernardino (Native Sons). Frank said he had always envied my father. Silverwood was our guest many times in our home, along with the Frankensteins and other outstanding celebrities. Dad always took them for drives around San Bernardino valley and other points of interest.

Frank's hobby had been writing poetry for his own amusement and the words always came from his heart. Thus one day when my father was in the store, Silverwood put a FRENCH CORRAL is located on the lower terminus of the rich, gold-bearing San Juan Ridge which lies between the South and Middle Yuba Rivers. It has an altitude of 1,750 feet. The temprature ranges from 25 in winter to 105 in summer. Snow seldom falls, and then only to a depth of a few inches. The soil is adapted to raising vines and fruits, which, when water was available, were grown successfully, of good size and fine quality. Being below the snow line, they came to maturity and were seldom damaged by frost and even fruits such as oranges flourished.

In 1849, a Frenchman, living at Frenchman's Bar, built an enclosure for his mules on the present site of the village. This enclosure was known as French Corral and the circumstances gave the town its name. However, later the citizens called a meeting and decided the place should be called Carrolton, which they thought was suggestive of better memories, but this came to naught and the village still lives in history as French Corral.

Some little surface mining was started in 1849. In that same year a trading post, in a tent, was started by a man named Galloway, later known as the proprietor of Galloway's Ranch near Downieville. The post dealt in cattle, hides, etc. Galloway was succeeded by a sailor named Jack, who, in the year of 1850, sold his tent and trade to John and Robert Bussenias. They erected the first house, of logs, near the site of the later-built hotel known as the Culver House and operated by Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Culver.

In 1851, richer diggings were discovered and in the spring of 1852 a ditch was brought from Shady Creek to supply water for hydraulic mining. The rich mines, when there was water to work them, soon brought together a number of miners and traders until there was a population of nearly 400 people. In June of 1853, half the village was burned and in September of that same year another disastrous fire occurred.

History of French Corral

Home of the first long distance telephone line

by Phyllis Butz

Hydraulic mining was carried on by use of water forced by gravity pressure through large nozzles, or monitors, which tore away boulders, gravel and sand which were washed into long sluices where blocks or riffles caught and held the heavier gold. When this process of mining was at its height, the debris or waste was washed into the rivers and streams and carried on to the rich farm land in the valley below. In time this condition became a nusiance and a menace to the farmers and orchardists in the valley and they demanded legislation to control it. In 1883, a law called the "Anti-Débris Act", was passed requiring the building of dams to hold back the silt and rocks. Unable to meet the conditions of this law, most of the mining ceased and people gradually moved away until there were left only about 100 residents.

In the early days of mining, some Chinese were employed by the company in charge of the larger operations. This irritated the white men, who sent a delegation to the superintendent, threatening to quit unless the Chinese were let go. The superintendent replied that if they felt that way about it, they could all quit and he would replace them all with Chinese, and "the grass would grow in front of the white men's doors." This he proceeded to do, and for some time no white man could get a job with that company.

The Chinese were regarded as not quite human by the whites and they were often abused and mistreated and even killed without anything being done about it. A couple of white men had a good-paying mine and worked on it together. They suspected that someone was "cleaning up" the profits at night so one of the partners took his shotgun and went down to the mine one evening after dark. There he surprised a Chinaman in the act of robbing the sluice and shot him dead on the spot. Friends of the dead man removed the body and nothing was said about the killing, but the partners let it be known that they had suspected someone other than the Chinaman and that whoever it was would have met the same fate. Apparently the lesson was taken to heart, for the mine was not robbed again.

For some years after the Anti-Débris Act was passed, hydraulic mining was carried on at French Corral surreptiously. Of course, evidences of this became apparent and men were sent from the valley, one at a time to investigate. Whenever a stranger on horseback was observed going along the road, one of the loyal wives would run to the edge of the "diggings" and wave a white cloth. Upon observing this signal, one of the miners below would jump on a horse, kept saddled and bridled for instant use, and gallop up to shut off the water. The rest of the men would vanish into tunnels and private operations. Access to the mine being by a roundabout way, by the time the investigator reached the scene of operations, no illegal mining was in progress and no one available to be charged, so nothing could be done. Eventually, however, someone managed to elude the watchers on the road above. The miners were caught and prosecuted and the operations came to an end.

Historic San Juan Ridge was a treasure chest of gold collected and deposited in pre-glacial times by ancient rivers. Miners learned that the best way to recover the precious metal from these pre historic gravel beds was by the hydraulic method.

Water for this type of mining was diverted from existing streams and often transported many miles by ditches and flumes. The important hydraulic mining companies on San Juan Ridge were the Milton Mining and Water Company of French Corral, the Eureka Lake and Yuba Canal Co. of North San Juan, and the North Bloomfield Gravel Mining Co. of North Bloomfield.

First Long Distance Telephone Line

In order to establish an efficient method of comunication among reservoirs and mines, in 1878 these three companies created the Ridge Telephone Co. which constructed a line sixty miles in length extending from French Corral in Nevada County to Milton in Sierra County. This was the first successful long distance telephone system in the United States. Thirty telephones were installed in twenty-two stations on the line. Many of them were placed in stores where the local postoffices were situated. An early rule of the company provided, "Persons in charge of offices will be allowed to use the line for their own business free of charge, but, as the use of the line exhausts the battery power, it is not to be used for idle talking." "Obscene or profane language through the telephone" was strictly prohibited.

The telephones were commonly called "Edison phones" because it was Thomas A. Edison's invention of a carbon transmitter that made the instrument commercially practicable. However, the name, "American Speaking Telephone Co." was stamped on each box.

The system was built for the modest sum of $6,000. No doubt this low cost reflected the nationwide depression of the time. Although the company showed a deficit on its books in its first year of operation, it was generally felt that "increased economy of ditch maintenance and use of water" far exceeded any apparent loss.

Under the rules of the Ridge Telephone Co., signed by its superintendent, R. McMurray, the telephones were not to be used by anyone except persons in charge of offices. According to a local paper, A "message called a dispatch, was written on a regular form by the sender; the operator 'sent' it. Rates were: dispatches to the North San Juan office, not

Sue Harrison, a former Saint Barbara, spoke at a meeting of Reina del Mar Parlor about her work as a VISTA volunteer on a Crow Indian reservation, in Montana. She displayed the ceremonial dress and buckskin boots, headband and pendant she wore in ceremonial dances, which she beaded from her own design in cream, green, yellow and black. She provided first-hand information of the problems of the reservations, particularly why young people leave the reservation to get jobs. They are usually unhappy and return to the reservation because there they know they have security in family and traditions. They are trying to be a modern people, but they cling tenaciously also to their culture and customs, for which she expressed great admiration, comparing it to the aims of the Order of Native Daughters preservation programs.

Continuing the activities of the various committees, Reina del Mar presented two California Bear flags, one to Dolores School and one to Santa Barbara Girls Club. Past Presidents Mamie Miller and Thelma Hodgkins assisted President Mary Louise Days at the presentation ceremonies.

The Parlor held a dinner and toy party. Chairman Mamie Miller and her committee did a terrific job. Karen Stupak made the arrangements for the toy party which served Grand President June T. Goldie received a warm welcome to "Discovery Parlor", the evening of January 3, the first official visit on her itinerary for the New Year of 1968. The joint meeting of Bonita No. 10, El Carmelo No. 181, Menlo No. 211 and San Bruno No. 246, was held in the "Blue Room" of the Crocker Masonic Building, Daly City, with over 130 members of the Order in attendance.

"Discovery Parlor" theme of the evening, carried out the message of future celebrations, planned to commemorate the 200th anniversary of the discovery of San Francisco Bay, November 4, 1769 by Don Gaspar de Portolá of Spain, and a party of around 60 men, who set out by land in July, 1769 to reach the Bay of Monterey. From a location in San Mateo County, a site, called Discovery Site, top of the Sweeney Ridge, and at present relatively unspoiled, still commanding a magnificent view of San Francisco Bay, a hunting party from the Portolá Camp on November 4, 1769 discovered this world's finest harbor. Placed at all stations in the meeting room, and in front of the stage, were reprints of the map of this era, framed in gold. A dashing hat, complete with a beautiful colorful plume, a replica of the hats worn by the riders of Portolá's group, also was placed at the stations. In honor of the Grand President's interest in California history, along with her interest in the raising of our "California Natives" in the botanical world, cacti and succulents, the decorations were carried out in the theme of a succulent garden.

Chairman of the evening, Christine Hulme introduced the host parlor presidents and their officers as they entered the room: Loretta Mosely Bonita No. 10; Ruby Murphy, El Carmelo No. 181; Virginia Tremaine, Menlo No. 241 and Stella Zanetti, San Bruno No. 246.

The Ritualistic Team was composed of the officers of the four participating Parlors: Loretta Mosley, Florence Brown, Gloria Rene, Bette Grass, Barbara Boelsems, Barbara Cocco, Louise Gibsen, Dorothy Mackintosh, Louise Murray, Nancy Cane, Enos Serratti and Ellen Pieri, Kay Raugi, Marion O'Connor, Madeline Koskela, Stella Arcimas and Marie Rogers. Assistant marshals for the evening were Jane Cuneo, Nancy Cane, and Wanda Facchini.

Grand President June Goldie had been presented with a lovely white orchid, complimenting her lovely chiffon gown of white and red, and was escorted to the altar and introduced. Escort work was performed by Bonita Parlor's escort members wearing their lovely pink net formals and carrying the colorful plumes in keeping with the theme. While at the altar, Grand President June was honored by GM Nancy J. Conens singing warm words of welcome to the tune of "It's June in January". President L. Mosley then introduced GM Nancy J. Conens; GTs Irene Bondanza, Marie Landini, and Marian McGuire; GIS Helen McCarthy; PGPs Evelyn I. Carlson, Jewel McSweeney, and Alice Shea; SDDGP Helena Lewerenz; DGPs Juanita R. Doyle, Lillian King, Elma Crouch, and Rosemund Lagomarsino. Also escorted and introduced were charter members, Matilda Heeringa, and Stella Zanetti.

State officers and trustees of the Jr. NDGW introduced were Kathy Slater, Jannette Stetson and Linda Cane. Monetary gifts were presented to the Grand President by Kathy Slater, Sequoia Unit and Linda Cane, Menlo Unit. They introduced Junior members who were present.

Initiated into the Order by Presiding President Loretta Mosley and officers of the ritualistic team was Marsha Zanetti, daughter of Wanda Facchini, a past president of San Bruno, and grandaughter of charter member Stella Zanetti of San Bruno, completing three generations of ND. Present and introduced was Alice Oldham, a past president of El Carmelo and the present State President of Young Ladies Institute of California.

In her message, the grand president explained some of the highlights of the decorations on the floats for the Tournament of Roses Parade on New Years Day, and then, she touched on the recognition of members of the Order who are also in high offices and chairmanships in other organizations, and the fine impression they bring to these cooperative organizations of our beloved Order. The Grand President brings to her office a warm feeling of understanding, and her graciousness, combined with her vivacious personality and always leaves a revitalized feeling to all, at each of her official visits.

GM Nancy J. Conens speaking for the Grand Officers, extended a warm welcome and touched on interesting facets of the Order. PGP Jewel McSweeney used the theme word "Discovery" effectively in relating to interests of our Order. SDDGP Helena Lewerenz noted that all seven deputies of San Mateo County were present. Juanita Doyle, spokesman for the deputies, called attention to how much we revere our flag of our country, and that we must be ever proud of its heritage.

Gifts of the evening, were succulent gardens planted in lovely glass containers, decorated by hand, with glass marbles of different hues. In the banquet room, the head table was covered with lace tablecloths and two large succulent topiary trees with Lily of the Valley and orange and green net accents, which were complimented by two golden "Spurs", original and antiques, prized possessions of Fern Bauden. Gold foil covered candy in the shape of coins of that era were sprinkled along the table, and at each table in the banquet room. Dish gardens of succulents with holders in the middle on which the bay of San Francisco had been painted by DGP Lillian King, and two rings, one of acorns and one of orange colored beads made up the friendship rings. The men of Portolá's group had been thankful for the gift of the acorns from the Indians and in turn presented them with the orange beads. This carries out the friendship theme of the Grand President as she had handed out the golden rings to the presidents of the participating parlors.

The Parlors joined together in presenting their monetary gift to the Grand President. It was presented by President Loretta Mosley, who, called attention to the holder, a specially grown succulent plant in a colorful Mexican pottery cup with golden chain holding golden mesh bags with each Parlor's gift. The succulents were all from the garden of member Juanita Doyle, who also planted the dish gardens and did the succulent topiary trees and individual favors as well as the gifts of the evening. Chairman Christine Hulme extended her thank you to chairmen Juanita Doyle, Fern Bauden and Lillian King. Delicious refreshments were served: hot stuffed rolls, molded jello and cup cakes.

A highlight of the evening of the presentation by the Grand President of a 50 year emblem pin to Irene Moresco of El Carmelo. The Grand President, after most appropriate remarks, graciously called on Irene to introduce members of her family present, and among them was a sister who had already received her 50 year pin and many relatives also members of the Order.

BUSY TERM . . .

Following a short breathing spell, it was inevitable that a "fun" time should be in order. Therefore, the annual Halloween Party was planned by Chm. Constance Baer and her committee on October 25 and a real relaxing evening was enjoyed by all. Costumes were a requirement, and some were really "eye-filling" and interesting, to say the least. A few who dared to attend in street clothes paid a "fine" by having to perform a "trick" for the entertainment of their more daring sisters. Prizes were given for the best costumes and for the winners of the games played during the evening. Delicious refreshments were served in keeping with the evening's festivities.

Again it was time to go to work and plan for the Parlor's most important fund-raising activity, the annual Bazaar, held on November 29. Although the twenty-three members of the Sewing Club, which this year is headed by Vera Kleckner, work the year around making articles for the Bazaar, many "pitched-in" for the day's activity which also included a public Luncheon and Spoon Supper. Offered at the Bazaar booths this year were doll clothes, dish towels, pillow slips, aprons, Christmas novelties and other articles too numerous to mention. A doll, complete with wardrobe and carrying case was awarded during the evening. Altogether, the day's effort netted the Parlor $620. A great deal of credit is due the hard working members of the Sewing Club for their continual efforts in putting on these highly successful annual Bazaars.

A few short week and it was Christmas. A lovely Christmas Party was planned by Elsie Sturm and her committee on December 27. The tables were beautifully decorated with berries and candles and a floor-to-ceiling Christmas tree added to the festive decor. Exchange gifts were passed out by "Santa Claus" and delicious refreshments of sandwiches, fruit cake, nuts and snacks topped off with individual ice-cream Sno-Balls with tiny lighted candles were served. It was a most enjoyable evening, long to be remembered, and adidng just the right finishing touch to a very busy first half of a new term.

While nothing as ambitious as the preceding six months is planned for the second half of the year's term, it is certain there will be much activity to challenge busy minds in the coming months for member of Las Amigas Parlor.

poem into dad's hand and asked him to read it. "You know, Hiram, California has been very kind to me. It has brought me back my health, gave me friends, customers and a very happy life. I love every inch of it." He let my father take the poem which so expressed his heartfelt sentiments and dad made a bee line for the Frankenstein's home! It was not long after that that Alfred Frankenstein had composed music to Silverwood's words. He was not a noted composer. He was a concert pianist and for several years was the conductor for Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra, but he did some composing as a hobby. Mrs. Frankenstein was his severest critic.

Late in the 1912's Mary Garden was to give a concert at the Philharmonic auditorium and Frankenstein, having known her for several years, went to her with the manuscript and urged her to sing it as an encore. She resented it at first as she did not like to sing something from a local composer. However, she consented. That night, I was seated with my parents, and the Frankensteins with Frank in the 5th row from the front and heard Garden give "I Love You California" as an encore and at its close, she pointed to both men and motioned them to stand. I nudged Frank, and after much tugging, Frankenstein was able to get Silverwood to his feet. It was a complete surprise to him. Both men, of course, received an ovation. Afterwards, we went backstage to greet the singer and Frank wept on her shoulders! Before she left her suite at the Alexandria hotel, she sent Silverwood a beautiful note.

In the early part of 1913, Frankenstein took the manuscript to the Hatch and Loveland Music printers in Los Angeles (they were the only music printers in the State at that time) and had a few copies made. It was copyrighted that same year by Silverwood. My father received the very first copy which I possess along with the Garden program. The song's cover contains a picture of Garden in her famous Salome role while the back cover has a copy of the note she wrote Silverwood and a few tributes. The song sold for 50¢.

Frank Bernard Silverwood is laid to rest in a Jewish cemetery in Los Angeles, but his store on Spring Street still carries on Silverwood's policy as well as "We Carry Large Suits For Large Men." That was Frank's slogan.

Several years ago, there was a large picture of Frank Silverwood in the back of the store and in a glass case was the original manuscript of both music and poem. I do not know if they are still there. The Silverwood store had to move three times during his life time as each location was too small. This last move on Spring Street was made after his death, I have been reliably informed.

Mr. Silverwood belonged to a Russian Jewish fraternal order, but "I was a very bad member" he always said. He did so much charitable work and he always found much enjoyment wherever he went. He gave California her song in appreciation of what she had given him!

more than 20 words, 50 cents; each additional 20 words or less, 25 cents; from North San Juan, and from or to any other office, not more than 10 words, 25 cents; each additional two words, or less, 25 cents. Anything smaller than 25 cents was 'chicken-feed' in those days."

On June 18, 1883, the Ridge Telephone system proved of unmeasurable value. N. C. Miller, ditch superintendent at French Corral, received word that the English Dam on the Middle Fork of the Yuba had given way. He immediately sent messages to the stations along the line "giving the approximate time the highwater should reach designated points." Miller's prompt action saved the lives of many people.

The old headquarters of the Milton Mining and Water Company at French corral housed the western terminus of the telephone line. Columbia Parlor No. 70, NDGW, placed a historical plaque upon this building noting its association with the Ridge Telephone Company. The plaque, properly maintained, is still in existence although the building has been razed. Its reference to the non-existent structure proves confusing to visitors. Nevertheless it serves as a reminder to later generations that French Corral was once one of the keys that opened Nature's rich treasure chest of gold.

When at its population peak, French Corral was a lively place, particularly in election years, when the Democrats and Republicans would stage rallies and dinners at which their respective candidates would be featured speakers. Dances to local music were popular and always lasted all night long. They were very well attended by all ages.

The old schoolhouse, now used as a community hall, was originally a small hotel, which was donated for use as a schoolhouse after one of the early-day fires. Being too small to accommodate the number of pupils in attendance at that time, an "ell" was built on for the primary grades, with one of the older pupils in charge of them under the supervision of the teacher. A partial list of the teachers and the years they taught is posted inside the building.

It was decided to raise money for a school bell and so a dance was held and two hundred silver dollars were collected. These were sent to Troy, New York, where the silver was melted down and added to the metal from which the bell was cast. This, it is said, is what gives the bell its lovely tone.

Five Rosendale sisters were born and raised in French Corral — Ella, Lena, Mary, and the twins, Fannie and Flora. Fannie married William Moulton in 1900. He had a general store in French Corral and later the post office was moved into the building. He also operated a store in North San Juan for a number of years. In 1928 the Moulton home burned and many records of the past were lost. The Moultons had two daughters, Frances and Louise, who married and moved away, but now take turns coming back to spend some time with their mother, who is now 87 years old, but still active. They and Adele Monier Browning recalled memories of long ago to aid the writer of this article.

In September of 1942, a brush fire started near North San Juan, and pushed by a strong north wind, moved down the ridge and almost wiped out the buildings at French Corral. The Culver House was lost at this time. Most homes were never rebuilt and the population declined still further. In the late 1950's the Pine Grove Reservoir, which stored water for the village's summer use, was washed out and the residents had no funds to repair it. Without the life-giving water, the farms and homes of the little community have steadily deteriorated.

In June, 1892, Columbia Parlor No. 70, NDGW was instituted in North San Juan with eleven French Corral girls among its charter members. Its name was taken from the song, then popular, "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean." Members married and moved away until the French Corral girls constituted a majority, and then they decided to change the meeting place to French Corral. Kate Farrelly Sullivan had remodelled the upper story of her building, formerly a boardinghouse for miners, and donated it for use of the Parlor. It is still in use — "Farrelly Hall".

Kate was secretary of the Parlor for many years, and it is due to her determination and loyalty that the Parlor endured. She was considered quite a character by all who knew her. On one occasion she had the misfortune to fall into an abandoned well not far from Pine Grove Reservoir. Nobody heard her cries for help and after she had spent the night there, in water up to her waist, her voice had completely given out. A passing prospector was unable to coax his dog away from the spot and upon investigation, discovered Kate. He summoned aid and they got her out and took her to a hospital for observation. She suffered no ill effects.

In 1912, Kate began to compile a list of the charter members of Columbia Parlor and their whereabouts at that time which was given by Adele Monier Browning at the Parlor's 75th anniversary last June. She never finished the list for reasons unknown. Only one of Columbia Parlor's charter members is still ilving. She is Lois Miller, now 99 years old and resides in Auburn.

THE LIGHTER SIDE OF IT

Happily married newlyweds were separated for the first time when she went home for a weekend visit with her mother. On Saturday morning her husband proceeded to make himself a cup of coffee and found this little note from his thoughtful wife on the coffee jar, "Don't forget, darling, that I love you."

When he got home from work at noon, he fixed himself a light lunch and then went to turn on the television. On top of it was a second little note, "Don't forget it's Saturday, dear, and do your little chores around the house."

That night he found her third and final note. It was pinned to one of his white shirts in the dresser drawer. It said simply, "Where do you think you're going that you need a white shirt?"

Orange County Through Four Centuries

This is the first history of Orange County that has treated the County as an entity rather than a collection of isolated communities. This book takes the reader from 1542 to the Present Day. George Berkeley

By Jane Friis

Sather Gate at University of California, Berkeley

Westward the course of empire takes its way:
The four first acts already past,
A fifth shall close the drama with the day;
Time's noblest offspring is the last.

THE AUTHOR of the above quatrain was the man after whom the city of Berkeley, the seat of the great University of California was named—George Berkeley, Bishop of Cloyne, Ireland. It is most appropriate that the home of the largest, most westward of American universities, should thus honor the memory of this great scholar. George Berkeley gave up a comfortable position with the Church of England to come to America with the avowed purpose of establishing a college for the education of "children of planters and for young savages who might be trained as missionaries."

Bishop Berkeley was born on March 12, 1685, in the County of Kilkenney, Ireland. He attended Trinity College where he was a brilliant student, receiving his M.A. in 1707. He moved in highly intellectual circles and in 1712 was appointed Junior Greek lecturer.

In the following year he went to England where he made the acquaintance of such men of letters as Addison, Steele and Pope. As a poet, philosopher, and man of the cloth he was appointed to the enviable position of Dean of Derry in 1725. However, he was not content with a life of comfort and ease. He had more ambitious plans. In the same year as his appointment he published a booklet which he called, "A proposal for the better supplying of churches in our foreign plantations and for converting the savage Americans to Christianity by a college to be erected in the summer islands, otherwise called the Isle of Bermuda."

To carry out his plan it was necessary that he meet the affluent of London. He approached Jonathan Swift with the request to write for him a letter of introduction to persons who might contribute toward the financing of his project. Swift was adamant. He had no patience with Berkeley's aspiration which he called a "scheme of a life academico-philosophical, of a college founded for Indian scholars and missionaries."

Actually Berkeley needed no assistance for Swift. He moved into London society and charmed newly made friends with his fascinating personality. He obtained pledges for his project in the amount of 5,000 pounds and expected additional contributions. Even the King gave his blessing to the venture.

At this time Berkeley fell into an unexpected fortune. Hester Vanhomrigh died. Shortly before she passed away she had been jilted by Dean Swift whom she admired with selfless

California Gold and The Civil War

by Herbert M. Bergen

WHEN JAMES MARSHALL, in January, 1848, discovered gold at Sutter's Mill on a small creek tributary to the American River in northern California, he could not possibly have realized the great importance and profound effect his discovery would have on the course of American history in the succeeding decades. When news of his momentous find reached the rest of the nation and the outside world, there was a feverish flow of immigrants from everywhere to California to share the wealth that was waiting there. This migration still stands as one of the greatest events of its kind since Columbus discovered the New World.

A little more than a decade earlier several small gold fields were found in North Carolina and Georgia, but they were already on the decline. Miners, when they heard of the fabulous new strike in California, packed up their picks and started the long overland journey to the new El Dorado where the yields were reportedly unbelievably high and the region of mineral enrichment so extensive that it would cover most of the State of Georgia.

Time proved that these wild claims were not much exaggerated. The gold resources of California turned out to be the greatest known anywhere in the world. Production from them was preëminent for more than half a century. When it was no longer easy to strike it rich by panning gravel on the surface of existing streams, deep mining by means of drifts and tunnels driven into buried gravels of antecedent Tertiary rivers brought forth even greater yields of gold. This was followed by the mass production method of hydraulic placer mining which returned still greater yields. Finally, hard rock miners followed surface out-crops of gold ore downward by boring and blasting until they reached great depths, still recovering large quantities of pay ore.

No contemporary records of total gold production were kept during the early years, but a review of customs receipts and mint reports has permitted reasonably good estimates to be made. A table published by the California State Mining Bureau in the thirteenth annual report of the State Mineralogist shows the dollar value of California gold production from 1848 to 1874 as estimated by Louis A. Garnett, a San Francisco mining statistician:

Year	Gold Production
1848	$ 245,301
1849	10,151,360
1850	41,273,106
1851	75,938,232
1852	81,294,700
1853	67,613,487
1854	69,433,931
1855	55,485,395
1856	57,509,411
1857	43,628,172
1858	46,591,140
1859	45,846,599
1860	44,095,163
1861	41,884,995
1862	38,854,668
1863	23,501,736
1864	24,071,423
1865	17,930,858
1866	17,123,867
1867	18,265,452
1868	17,555,867
1869	18,229,044
1870	17,458,133
1871	17,477,885
1872	15,482,194
1873	15,019,210

from its huge treasure of gold. At the end of another quarter century the State was still a large producer. It was sometimes pressed by later gold discoveries, but none in the Western Hemisphere was able to surpass it in total value, not even the famous deposits that were found in Alaska on the Yukon and the Klondike at the close of the century.

While the Argonauts were driving their covered wagons over the dusty, rutted trails through thousands of miles of prairies, deserts, and mountains in quest of riches, ominous clouds of civil strife were gathering over the Union of American States. By the time the initial rush of Forty Niners was over and mining became an established industry, the storm of Civil War broke over the nation in a fury of marching and musket fire, cannonading and sabre slashing, that lasted for four full years from 1861 to 1865.

When James Marshall found gold at Sutter's Mill, California was a newly occupied territory that had only recently been wrested from Mexican rule. But the magic of gold, soon brought the territory into political prominence. Fast development of its great mineral wealth focused attention of the nation on its growing importance. So it was not long before admission to the Union as a state was sought by the inhabitants.

California, colonized and ruled by Spaniards for over a hundred years, was a storied land of vast ranchos, hospitable haciendas, peaceful missions, and a few small pueblos that could hardly be called cities. Cattle and sheep grazed the green valleys that threaded through the picturesque mountains called Sierras. Rural life dominated the economy. As such it had much in common with the Southern States. In fact, many had come west from there before the lure of gold became the magnet of migration, and they kept the political feelings of their home states. Most of the sparse population lived in southern California, but the rapid influx of miners and adventurers to the Mother Lode region in 1849 soon tipped the population scale in favor of the northern half of the territory.

Thus it was, that when statehood became an issue, there was a divided political opinion between rural southern California and the increasingly urban and industrialized Alta California. The former was sympathetic to the views that prevailed in Southern States, while the latter adhered to the beliefs that predominated in Northern States. This resulted in a strong attempt to divide the territory and form two separate states. Admission of a pro-Northern state would thus be balanced by a pro-Southern state which would keep intact the equal division of votes between the two opposing political forces in the United States Senate.

But the flow of immigrants to the gold fields was mainly from the North and in the end they dictated the decision to ask for admission of California as one state. Statehood was granted on September 9, 1850, after Congress reached a compromise whereby the admission of California as a Free State would be offset by later admission of Kansas as a possible Slave State.

After statehood was granted, the people in southern California still wanted to form a separate state. Attempts were made at each session of the legislature to bring this about. In 1859 a bill to form two states was passed and signed by the Governor. However, it was never approved by Congress where Northern States now held a thin voting edge which they feared would be lost by such action.

In the early years of the Gold Rush there was an urgent need of coins as a medium of exchange. It was impractical to ship sufficient coins to the far west from eastern Mints. Not being willing to wait for the government to act, the miners began to strike coins from the gold they mined. Private coinage continued without objection by the Government until it established a branch Mint at San Francisco in 1854. After that private coinage was limited to dollar and fractional dollar pieces in gold, known as "California pocket pieces."

With so much gold being produced nearby, the new Mint for many years issued more gold coins, totaling much greater value, than silver coins. It struck all authorized denominations from one to twenty dollars. In the years before the Civil War started, excepting the first year, 1854, it struck an average of nearly twenty million dollars annually. The estimated average annual production of

My California Gold

by Necia Gaffey

THE SHIMMERING gold - streaked dawn that I love,
Brings life and gladness from our God above
To the lofty white Sierra and shifting desert sand;
Glorifying a rugged, but lovely and bounteous land.
In the spring, bright poppies spill over the hills,
Dancing gayly to the mockingbird's merry trills.
Blest with Mother Nature's warm
sun and early rains,
We reap the summer harvest of golden fruit and grains.
Then during the mellow days and cool nights of fall,
The slender aspen and mighty oak answer her call.
Soon cold winter winds roar through the marshy lea
Where the red and gold evening sky meets the foaming sea.
As these treasures before me slowly unfold,
I know that I have found My California Gold!

President Mary Louise Days of Reina del Mar presided over the opening ceremonies and balloting, then President Gertrude Reed of Tierra de Oro took over the gavel for initiation and closing ceremonies. Carmen Jay and Linda Wolf became new members of Reina del Mar. Past President Thelma Hodgkins of Reina del Mar was opening chairman, and members of Tierra de Oro formed the escort team. Hortensia Cuellar of Tierra de Oro was organist and Marshal Beverly Burdick of Reina del Mar was soloist.

SDDGP Charity Righetti of Santa Maria No. 276 and PGP Eileen Dismuke of Tierra de Oro were honored guests, along with DGPs Dorothy Douglas of El Aliso and Mamie Kortner of Santa Maria. Over 100 members of the order were in attendance, with visitors from as far away as Fresno.

A highlight of the evening was the presentation by Grand President Goldie of one 50-year pin and thirty-two 25-years pins to members of Reina del Mar Parlor. The grand president donated the coin march proceeds of $31.60 to the Santa Barbara Trust for Historic Preservation for its project to reconstruct the Royal Presidio of Santa Barbara.

During the day of the official visit the grand president was guest of honor at a luncheon at El Paseo Restaurant given by the two parlor presidents and attended by PGP Dismuke, and Mmes. Amelia Acres, Bernice Hogg, Nancy Fluker, and Miss Pearl Chase, well-known conservationist and member of the NDGW honor roll. The grand president was then taken on a tour of the Santa Barbara Historical Society Museum, where she dedicated a California pepper tree to the memory of Anna E. McCaughey, a member of Reina del Mar for several decades. Also officiating at the ceremony were Paul Sweetser, president of the Historical Society, Mrs. Hogg, and PP Edna Cannon.

The grand president was given a welcome surprise when two costumed members of Las Fiesteras, Reina del Mar Parlor's dance group, presented her with a gift from the two parlors. They were PP Mariana Schmitter and OS Karen Stupak. The gift was handmade Santa Barbara pottery. Miss Chase then conducted the grand president on a tour of El Cuartel state historical monument and the site of the Royal Presidio chapel, which is being excavated by volunteer labor.

GOLD IN CALIFORNIA

by Bertha Maynard

Gold in the heart of the wild rose
Blooming on the hill
Gold in the song of the meadow lark
Echoing trill upon trill.

Gold in the heart of the sunset
As into the sea it dips,
Gold in the song of a lullaby
Born on a mother's lips.

Gold in the heart of the mountain
Where it is apt to stay,
Gold at the foot of the rainbow,
So the fairies say!

Gold in the heart of a poppy field
Surrounded by lupine blue,
Gold in the flash of an oriole's wing
As he waves good-bye to you.

Golden heart of our Golden State
Withstanding every test;
Here is our proclamation:
"To California, our loyal best!"

DISTRICT 36

The meeting was held in the Girls' Club House in South Gate Park and the hall was decorated with hearts and flowers. Each Parlor made their own corsages, carrying out the theme. The gifts presented to the Grand President were beautifully decorated. Five candidates were initiated. There were 111 in attendance. Grand President June, as usual, was charming and gracious. It is an honor to have her representing the Order throughout the state. Refershments of dainty sandwiches, heart-shaped cookies, mints and coffee were served following the meeting.

An easy way to get along with four hours of sleep is twice a day.

A motorist was driving in the country when suddenly his car stopped. He got out and was checking the spark plugs when an old dog trotted by.

"Better check the gas line," the dog said and trotted on up the road.

The motorist was so frightened he ran to the nearest farmhouse and told the farmer what had happened.

"Was it an old spotted dog with floppy ears?" asked the farmer.

"Yes, yes," cried the frightened man.

"Well, don't pay no attention to him," replied the farmer, "he doesn't know a darn thing about cars."

devotion. Swift was a hater of all women and he made no exception for Hester. It is said that Hester died of a broken heart. However, before she passed away she changed her will and left her entire estate to Berkeley, a man whom she had seen only once and to whom she had never spoken!

Following the substantial improvement in his financial status, Berkeley married Anne Forster on August 1, 1728. Anne was a daughter of the former chief justice of common pleas of Ireland. On September 4 of the same year, the couple sailed from Greenwich and landed at Newport, Rhode Island, in the following January.

Berkeley had decided to establish his projected college in New England instead of Bermuda. He bought a 96-acre farm near Newport and built a small house which he called "Whitehall." He awaited the arrival of the money which had been subscribed to establish the college for which he had obtained a charter.

In the meantime he enjoyed the companionship of intellectual persons, becoming well acquainted with the faculty members of Yale. He established a close friendship with Samuel Johnson, Episcopal missionary at Hartford, Connecticut.

Unfortunately the financial aid promised Berkeley for his projected college never arrived. No doubt those who had promised him money had had second thoughts after the waning of initial enthusiasm sparked by his magnetic personality.

Berkeley waited three years. By the end of that period he had lost hope. Before leaving for England he made several gifts. He presented Trinity Church at Newport with the first pipe-organ to be played in any church of North America. He gave "Whitehall" and its lands, together with a 1,000 volume library, to Yale College. He also made Harvard College a handsome gift of books.

Berkeley sailed from Boston in October, 1731, and reached London in February, of the following year. On May 19, 1734, he was consecrated Bishop of Cloyne in St. Paul's Church of Dublin. Bishop Berkeley spent the remainder of his life at Cloyne, his mind active until his death in 1753.

In New England his memory is kept verdant by several landmarks. At Bishop Berkeley Rocks at Newport, where he often sat and meditated, was built the Berkeley Memorial Chapel. In Newport there is also Cloyne House and at Middletown, Connecticut, the Berkeley School. On the Pacific Coast, the pioneers of higher education, who founded the University of California one hundred years ago, chose his name for the city where this great institution of learning is situated. Even though Bishop Berkeley never built the college that he had dreamed of, he would have been happy to know that others appreciated his hopes and brought to fruition the establishment of the world's greatest university.

CALIFORNIA GOLD . . .

gold in California for that period was about fifty million dollars. The thirty million dollars which was not used for coinage was shipped to east coast ports or exported to foreign countries, mainly England and China, according to customs records. Most of the gold that was shipped to eastern ports was destined for government use, primarily for gold coinage at the Philadelphia Mint.

Mint records show that the output of gold coins at Philadelphia in 1850, as a result of the California Gold Rush, rose to nearly twenty-eight million dollars from an annual average of less than four million dollars during the preceding ten year period in which the gold fields of North Carolina and Georgia were being developed. After 1850 the gold coinage at Philadelphia increased to as much as fifty million dollars annually. But in 1854, when the branch Mint at San Francisco was opened, the gold issue fell to about twenty million dollars. The next year it was down to ten million dollars and it continued to go down until it was only about a million dollars in 1859. However, with war impending gold coinage was sharply up to twelve million dollars in 1860, and in 1861 it jumped to nearly seventy million dollars, an amount not equalled or surpassed by the Philadelphia Mint until 1904 when it was flooded with gold from Alaska.

Gold coinage at Philadelphia for the remaining years of the Civil War was down to an average per year of five million dollars, due partly to the restrictive effects of the war on shipping, both by sea and overland, and partly to the fact that the branch Mint in the west was able to coin as much gold as was currently needed for coins. The San Francisco output during the four war years totalled over seventeen million dollars yearly.

These records reveal the close relationship of economic conditions that prevailed before and during the Civil War years to the management of gold holdings by the Northern States. To carry on an all out war it was necessary to make huge expenditures of money and this required large scale financing or borrowing. Congress authorized big issues of paper money on which it promised to pay a high yearly interest in gold. Gold was therefore essential to the conduct of the war from the beginning, and with mounting financial needs it became more and more essential until at the end of the war it made up much of the difference between victory and defeat. On this premise we arrive at the logical conclusion that California gold, the primary source that supplied the Northern States, played a most important role in the outcome.

Conversely, the lack of gold by the Confederate States to back their war finances was a fundamental factor in bringing about their defeat. Their gold resources consisted chiefly of small, partly depleted gold fields in North Carolina and Georgia. The three branch Mints at Charlotte, Dahlonega, and New Orleans, had, since their establishment in 1838, minted relatively minor amounts of gold coins from gold mined in these southern fields. The Mints were in operation when the war began, but they had only small stocks of bullion and so had to shut down. There was no attempt to resume gold coinage by any of them, even though some gold must have been mined from these old deposits. This was no doubt cast into bars and held as such by the government which was found to be holding $76,000 in bullion gold when the war closed.

Failure of Confederate financiers to make any early moves to acquire gold assets was probably due to their reliance on their prime product, cotton, which the South controlled and firmly believed it could use as the backbone of their war finances. But the blockade by the Northern fleet soon became so completely effective that no goods could be exported from Southern ports. This was a crippling blow to Confederate economy and greatly weakened their war potential. By this time it was too late to look for gold.

That the North was fully aware of the vital importance of California and its wealth of gold is evidenced by the fact that, when war first threatened, military forces were stationed at several key points in the State. Trouble was anticipated in southern California where the most of the Southern sympathizers were known to reside. A company of soldiers was kept at San Bernardino, a town of one thousand inhabitants, for the reason that open hostility to the Union cause had been expressed by a group of miners in the Holcomb Valley in the San Bernardino Mountains. This military detachment remained there during the entire war.

Southern supporters around Los Angeles also had formed a secret society that called itself the "Knights of the Golden Circle." It held meetings at which means for helping the South were discussed. The only overt move that resulted from this was the Showalter Expedition designed to send enlistments for the Confederate Army out of the State to Arizona and thence to Texas. But this expedition only reached as far as Temecula where the leaders were taken into custody and the members dispersed. Soon afterward a column of one thousand five hundred volunteers under command of Union officers marched into Arizona from California to clean out any Southern elements they thought would be a threat to California.

In 1863 there was a last effort by friends of the Confederacy to give assistance. This was known as the Judge Hastings Plan. The originator, Judge Hastings of Los Angeles, had asked the Confederate Army for help to implement his plan of action. Receiving no answer he made a long roundabout journey through Mexico to ask President Jefferson Davis for help. But he failed to get approval and nothing ever came of his plan.

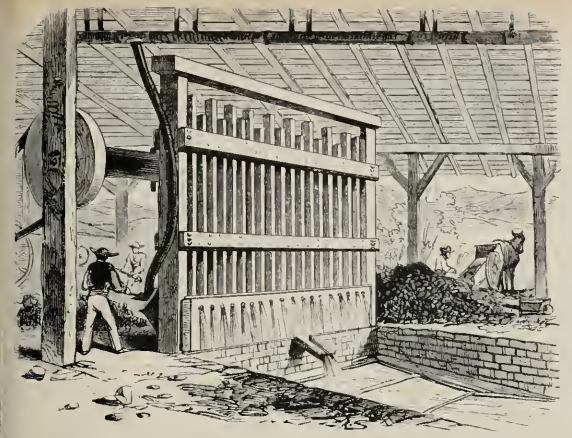

These were feeble efforts to bring California and its gold treasure over to the Confederate side. There were reports of plots to waylay overland stages carrying gold east to the Mint at Philadelphia, but reliable records and reports fail to disclose actual operations of this kind, notwithstanding any fiction and television stories to the contrary. Holdups occurred, of course, but as usual these were the work of outlaws who were loyal to no cause except their own.

Although the Northern States had an overwhelming advantage in financing their part in the war because they had virtually complete control of nearly all of the nation's gold resources, they nevertheless had many problems and obstacles to overcome. The enormous sums of money needed to prosecute the war made it necessary to resort to borrowing and use of credit. Before the war the Federal Government and banks had outstanding fifty million dollars in paper obligations. On June 30, 1861 the Federal debt totaled ninety million dollars. On June 30, 1862 it reached five hundred fourteen million.

In July, 1861 Congress approved an Act to issue sixty million dollars in Demand Notes, an unprecedented sum. Again, in February, 1862, Congress authorized the issue of new notes, called Legal Tender Notes, amounting to one hundred million dollars, another unheard of sum. But even this would not suffice to bring the war to an end.

Chinese Miners

Interest payments on all outstanding paper obligations of the Federal Government were payable in gold. Total interest paid for the fiscal year ending in June, 1862 was twenty-two million dollars. This big gold payment caused the premium on gold to rise from 5% in January, 1862 to 10% in July, 1862. The rapid rise of gold premiums and the resultant discounting of paper money forced Congress to refinance some existing obligations with new issues on which the interest was payable in paper money and not in gold.

In 1863 new issues of paper money were authorized by Congress. These amounted to six hundred million dollars of interest bearing notes. This vast sum reflected the spiraling costs of war. Prices were rising rapidly under the effects of paper money inflation. The financial status of the Treasury was becoming alarming. With rising gold premiums it was forced not only to make the interest payable in paper currency but to compound the interest for a period of three years so the notes would be accepted. By compounding the interest it was possible to pay a somewhat lower rate than the 7.3% rate that was paid on the old interest bearing notes of July, 1861 and the later ones of June, 1864, and March, 1865. This was the highest interest ever paid by the Federal Government. Fractional currency added also to the immense amount of paper money in circulation.

Despite measures taken by Congress to reduce the gold premium, gold continued to rise. In July, 1864 it reached the high point of 290 cents in paper money needed to buy a gold dollar. The following table of gold prices shows the trend of the premium brought by gold in exchange for paper money during the period from January, 1862 to June, 1865.

As the emission of paper money multiplied and the premium on gold increased hard money soon disappeared from circulation. People slowly became reconciled to paper money, but while doing so they hoarded hard money, even copper cents. Substitutes for small change came into use in the form of postage stamps and metal tokens issued by merchants.

The resort to paper money and other substitutes for hard money extended to all parts of the North except California where newly mined gold was plentiful and the people had a deep distrust of paper money. Here business and exchange continued on a gold basis. Even small change coins were of gold, being struck privately in quarter, half, and one dollar denominations, to which the government did not object. Only payments by the government of its dues and obligations, except interest due in gold, was made in paper money. Those who had to accept payment in paper money were at a great disadvantage because it would not circulate and they could not buy goods without gold. Currency had to be exchanged for gold at a heavy discount exacted by brokers who sent it east for use in paying for merchandise sold in California. It was also used to pay taxes to the government. Later, when it became apparent that the North would win the war, speculators bought all they could at discount prices with the expectation that it would bring par value at the end of the war or at the latest on the due dates of the notes. Thus the position of gold in California was paramount in all matters of finance.

At the close of the fiscal year ending in June, 1864, the total debt of the Union was 1,744 million dollars. Interest amounting to 42 million dollars, still had to be paid in gold during the fiscal year on seven hundred million dollars of the funded debt.

Benjamin William Foxen Memorial Chapel

The "Foxen Memorial Chapel", so designated in 1950 by the Santa Maria Parlor of the Native Daughters of the Golden West, became the first official historical landmark of Santa Barbara County on April 30, 1967.

Silhouetted against the sky and commandingly situated on a mesa at the head of a canyon, the chapel and the nearby Benjamin William Foxen (d. 1874) grave and monument stand as sentinels over a region redolent with romantic and historic interest.

The property on which the chapel and its adjacent cemetery are located was purchased from the United States government in 1872. It is about two miles southeast of the Frederick Wickenden adobe and the 8,874 acre Rancho Tinaguaic, a land grant authorized by Governor Juan B. Alvarado on April 29, 1842.

Two years after Benjamin Foxen's death, Father John B. McNally of Mission Santa Ines approached Ramona Foxen Wickenden for assistance in erecting a chapel at Sisquoc for the sixty-five Catholic families residing in that area.

The completed structure, placed under the spiritual patronage of San Ramon by Bishop Francis Mora, was dedicated in 1879. Identical frame buildings, suggesting in miniature the lines of Santa Barbara Mission, were erected at Lompoc and Guadalupe. The lumber used was of the finest quality, transported from San Luis Obispo where it had been brought through old Port Hartford.

• ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Father Weber is archivist for the Los Angeles Archdiocese. His biography of Bishop Mora has recently been published.

In succeeding decades, services were held monthly in the little white, twin steepled chapel. After the area became a station of the Santa Maria parish in 1907, the chapel was utilized only for funerals. Between 1908 and 1933, San Ramon was abandoned to the elements. On July 29th of the latter year, however, the chapel was restored as a public landmark to Benjamin William Foxen.

At the time of its re-dedication, one newspaper account reported that "the markers in the long-abandoned cemetery, now overgrown with weeds, bear the names of families famous as founders of California." Representing the broken mast of a ship, the marble monument to Benjamin Foxen aptly symbolizes the colorful life of the courageous "Don Julian" as he was known to his contemporaries.

Colorful is the chronicle of the old chapel, and many the brave services that were held within its shelter. The steep driveway ascending to it has been worn deeply by the feet of mourners and solemn processions into the cemetery. There lie many descendants of the soldiers who accompanied Father Junipero Serra on the first expedition to California, among them the wife and sister-in-law of Benjamin Foxen. To trace their stories is to read intimately into the early history of the Spanish-Californian settlement.

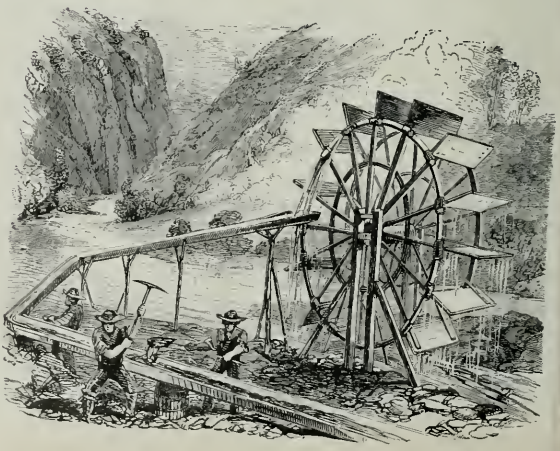

California Gold and the Civil War

by Herbert M. Bergen

Part 2

THIS WAS A DREADFUL drain of the gold reserve and would not have been met had it not been for the prolific gold production in California.

When the war came to an end in April, 1865, it had brought about a debt load to the Union of 2,757 million dollars which was unparalleled in the history of any country in the world up to that time. Eventually the gold fields of California produced enough wealth from gold production to pay this debt, but, unfortunately, there was no gold source in the South that would pay the war cost of the Confederacy, estimated at 1,500 million dollars.

This account of the costs of the Civil War and the means that were employed by the Northern States to finance their share of it clearly demonstrates that the production of gold by California during and preceding the war was a most vital contribution in that it served to maintain the strong financial structure and the credit that was required to prosecute and win such a costly conflict. At the same time it lets us understand why the Southern States, starting the war without any substantial gold resources to support their financial needs, were thus doomed to ultimate defeat, no matter how brilliant their military leaders, how brave their fighting men, and how valiant their women, in the fruitless sacrifice for a lost cause.

SUSIE DOTTA MATTEI

By Amalia Vella

SUSIE DOTTA MATTEI was honored by affiliates of Vendome No. 100, on the occasion of her 90th birthday with a gala and festive luncheon at Villa Filice in Los Gatos. Preceding the luncheon was the hour of cocktails where well-wishers greeted Susie and extended congratulations. "Aunt Sissie" as she is lovingly called by her nieces, was one of a family of eight, four girls and four boys. She was born November 16, 1877 on a small ranch near what is now known as Davenport in Santa Cruz county to Louis Dotta and Jane Lair Dotta. When Susie was very young, the family moved to another ranch at Pescadero where she was enrolled in a small country school in a place called Pomponia, later she was sent to the Pescadero schools.

When a young lady of 16, Susie met, fell in love and married a handsome young Swiss Italian by name of Victor Mattei in Pescadero, and they set up housekeeping on the ranch in Pescadero managed by Mr. Mattei. To this union were born six children, five sons and one daughter, but only five were to be left to Victor and Susie, one son being lost in infancy. The five remaining in order of birth are Michele "Kelley", Florence, now Mrs. Filben; Charles "Charlie", Louis "Bob", and the youngest son, Donald "Don". Susie worked hard and helped her husband so that years later they bought WILLOW SIDE FARM, a ranch of 1250 acres in Pescadero.

Here, on their dream farm, Susie was to show and prove her mettle. The farm was worked jointly by Susie and her Victor, putting long hard hours into the successful operation of the ranch, they were to be helped in later years by "Kelley" and "Charlie", the two elder sons, and who still live on the home ranch, working and managing it.

Susie helped tend cattle and at round-up time rode with the best of them and yet never once neglected her wifely duties. She did the family laundry by hand as there were no washing machines or such in the pioneer wife's time, then there was bread making which was baked in the old family wood range, churned her own butter and assisted "Pa" Mattei with the cheese making which was one of the features of the ranch, the milk and cream supplied by the large herd of dairy cattle which was the pride of Willow Side Farm. Susie raised her own hogs from which she made her luscious Italian sausage, there was also beef which required Susie's attention after slaughtering. Susie took care of all this as a regular routine matter. Since there was always such a large dairy herd, milkers were part of the life of Willow Side Farm too and of course this meant added care in cooking for them as well as for her family. At threshing time, the crews increased 6 or 8 more hands, which meant more cooking, but Susie took it in her stride and thought nothing of all this added work.

It was nothing for one to visit the ranch only to find Susie out on the range side by side with her beloved "Pa" rounding up the cattle for branding. Her hours were from sun rise 'til long after every one else had gone to bed, for Susie loved her family and loved doing for them, hence her labors were labors of love and joy and never considered burdensome, even when she cut her own kindling for her stove.

When I asked her to what she attributed her longevity, she answered, "I guess it's because I never let down on my work. I still work. Being always active, I guess I'd say. I traveled much after Pa's death, covering the better part of the world. To Europe three times, then on to the Orient, South America and finally the Hawaiian Islands. My last trip was to the Hawaiian Islands in 1960 with my two grandchildren.

We had a long and happy life together, Pa and I. We left the ranch moving to San Jose with our baby, young three year old Don, now office manager for Meadow Gold Dairies. In 1919 we settled on Martin Avenue just off the Alameda. What was our home, the house is gone now, is now part of Tiny's restaurant. After Pa's death in 1948, I moved here to my present home, 456 S. Genevieve Lane. Our early ranch life was happy, but of course, as all ranch life of that time, filled with hard work and at times worry, especially if grain or our produce, which were an integral part of Willow Side Farm, didn't come up to expectation or anything happened to our stock, which was the main factor of our ranch. Our large dairy herd, and beef cattle were Pa's and my pride and joy, along with my hogs, chicken and other fowl. My chickens I planned so to hatch the eggs from my own flocks and then to brood the chicks. This again took some home brooder invention. There was always plenty to do."

Susie joined Año Nuevo Parlor, Native Daughters of the Golden West in Pescadero February 25, 1910, later, when she moved to San Jose she transferred to Vendome Parlor 100, with whom she has always been most active and still is holding the Chairmanship of the Board of Trustees.

In 1960 Susie was honored by her home Parlor of Año Nuevo at Pescadero on the occasion of her

ANNIE K. BIDWELL

"MARDI GRAS" Fun Night was enjoyed recently in Native Daughter Hall by 80 members and guests of Annie K. Bidwell No. 168. The occasion was the District Meeting of District No. 7 and honored SDDGP Katherine LaBreacht, a member of Annie K. Bidwell Parlor. The Parlors comprising District 7 are Gold of Ophir No. 190, Berryessa No. 192, Centennial No. 295, Olivia No. 309, and Annie K. Bidwell No. 168. All Parlors were well represented and three members of Colus No. 194 were also guests of the evening.

Preceding the program, a potluck dinner was enjoyed. The buffet table was laden with many hot dishes, a variety of salads, homemade cakes and pies. Members were seated at tables laid with white cloths and yellow and green napkins. Decorations were serpentine, balloons and party horns, making for much fun. The dining room buffet was decorated with large balloons and serpentine, which decor was also carried out at the stations in the meeting hall. From each light fixture hung a mobile made of masks and small party hats.

When the members were assembled in the meeting hall, Mrs. LaBreacht greeted them with the announcement that Mardi Gras is celebrated on the last day before the beginning of the Lenten Season,— that "It is a Spirit, a time when you meet no strangers because all are friends. It belongs to everyone and no one!"

Introduced were PGPs Florence Boyle and Fern Adams, GVP Hazel Mallette, SDDGP Katherine LaBreacht and DGPs Zada Harkom, Elda Robinette, Clara Staheli, Pearl Sellman and Mrs. Frank Cooley. Parlor Presidents in attendance were Edna Wilson, Centennial; Gertrude Gilbert, Gold of Ophir; Clara Staheli, Olivia; Muriel Schroder, Annie K. Bidwell and Eloise Bettencourt, Berryessa.

Among the costumes were señoritas, clowns, old fashioned formals and other comic "get-ups". Outstanding was the authentic costume of the French-Normandy countryside worn by Mrs. Brov Evans and which had belonged to her grandmother.

In charge of the entertainment tion of the evening was Miss Genevieve Jezler who was costumed as a perky French parlor maid. She opened the program with group singing of "Come to the Mardi Gras". Centennial Parlor's skit was titled "Queen of the Mardi Gras".

Crowned President Edna Wilson was drawn around the hall in a child's decorated wagon, with several costumed members forming the parade. They threw wrapped bonbons to the spectators. Olivia's participants portrayed a miniature cabaret with two "Bunnies" serving two couples at tables covered with checkered cloths and candles in bottles. When the Bunnies became too friendly with the "gentlemen", the irate wives drove them off. Berryessa had a parade entitled "Going to the Mardi Gras". Each costumed marcher took a partner from the sidelines and had a jolly masquerade dance. Gold of Ophir Parlor called their skit "Something Lucky". PGP Florence Boyle roamed around the room with a magnifying glass searching for the "lucky one" and finally found the honoree of the evening Katherine LaBreacht and presented her with a monetary nosegay from Gold of Ophir, while singing appropriate words to the tune of "Mother Macree". Annie K. Bidwell's drill team members named "Hazel's Mod Drill Team" performed a comic practice drill showing the trials of perfecting a drill such as is being practiced for at this time for the installation of Grand Vice President Hazel Mallette at Grand Parlor in June. After this they formed as a huge Chinese dragon and serpentined around the hall. Those responsible for making the dragon were Mrs. Boon Baker, the ornate head and Diane Parks and her mother Mrs. Iris Parks working on the body. Diane Parks also read a comic poem as part of the program. Ending the festivities was a gay Virginia Reel called by Elsie Bearse, who was the chairman for Annie K. Bidwell's presentation. Coffee, tea and homemade cookies were enjoyed at the end of the meeting.

The head table was centered with an arrangement of gladioli and stock, with golden chains. Tiered arrangements of candles and chains formed the decor for the other tables where a delicious dinner was served.

San Juan performed the opening ceremonies and greeting of guests with President Farney in charge. Copa de Oro under President Grunnagle did the initiatory and ritualistic work.

Introduced also were DGPs Mabel Handley and Allis Hussey and SDDGP Loretta McAleer. Monetary gifts from the Parlors were presented to the Grand President. Secretaries Mrs. Baccala and Mrs. Pivetti gave the Parlor reports.

HISTORICAL MARKER

On March 11, 1968 Santa Cruz No. 26 dedicated a marker at the site of the First Methodist Church which was the first protestant church in Santa Cruz. The towns first protestant families were headed by Adna Hecox and Elihu Anthony, who arrived in 1848. An informal religion was first organized with Anthony elected as the preacher. In 1850 seven acres were donated as a site for the church. It was built and dedicated in 1850, the same year, as a small frame building which also served as a school house for the Methodist Academy. In 1848 when Elihu Anthony arrived in Santa Cruz he was welcomed with open arms by the priest in charge of the Holy Cross Mission, the only existing church at that time.

The marker was dedicated during the afternoon and the ceremony was headed by Grand President June T. Goldie, assisted by the Parlor's History and Landmarks committee chairman, PP Emily Everly, President Dorothy Johnson and PP Lela Swasey. This historical marker dedication was a part of Santa Cruz Parlor's 80th anniversary celebration and combined official visit of the Grand President. Santa Cruz Parlor continued its 80th aniversary celebration with a banquet in the Spanish room of the Palomar Hotel. The room was decorated with green and gold, the Grand President's color theme for the year. President Dorothy Johnson introduced the following dignitaries and presented them with orchid corsages: Grand President June T. Goldie, GTs Irene Bondanza and Marie Landini, SDDGP Loretta McAleer and DGP Marjorie Burden. The Barber Shop Harmony Singers of Santa Cruz sang some of their old favorite songs to highlight the festivities. During the meeting which followed, pins for 25 years of membership and service were presented by the Grand President to Mmes. Roberts, Ryan and Brenkwitz, Mmes. Tait, Sayre, Dake and Rice were introduced and presented with corsages in honor of their membership of 50 years or more. Following the meeting a large birthday cake in honor of the Parlor was served. General chairman for the birthday celebration was Lela Swasey. Approximately 80 members attended the affair.

ORIGIN OF MEMORIAL DAY

The inspiration for the origin of Memorial Day came from the South. Southern women inaugurated the loving custom of decorating the soldiers' graves with flowers.

Despite the feelings of bitterness that must have lingered in their hearts they placed blossoms upon the graves of the Boys in Blue as well as upon those of their own loved ones.

"From the silence of sorrowful hours
The desolate mourners go.
Lovingly laden with flowers,
Alike for the friend or foe:—
Under the sod and the dew,
Waiting the Judgment Day:—
Under the roses, the Blue:
Under the lilies, the Gray."

The noble act of these wonderful women inspired admiration throughout the country and General John A. Logan, then Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, issued an order that the thirtieth, day of May, 1868, be set apart for the purpose of decorating graves of the soldier dead.

Years ago this important observance was called Decoration Day. Perhaps the name was changed to Memorial Day to give the occasion a broader meaning.

Irrespective of what the day be called the important thing is that we Americans do not forget those who defended our country.

THE CROSS ON PAGAN HILL

By Glenny Farney

IT WOULD HAVE BEEN a wonder of wonders to the old Spanish padres of yesterday if they could have seen what now shines on the spot where they first erected a cross as a welcome beacon to weary travelers. With the financial assistance of San Juan Service Club and San Juan Chamber of Commerce, money was donated to install the power poles and wires to the top of Pagan Hill, where an automatic timing device turns on the lights at dusk every day. Thus, on December 1, 1967, San Juan Bautista No. 179, NDGW, inaugurated permanent lighting of the Cross on Pagan Hill above the historic town of San Juan Bautista. This was the culmination of many years of effort and planning.

The original cross was erected in 1803 by the Franciscan Fathers, and services were held there on special occasions. This cross was cut down and part of it was used as a gate post about 1852. A second wooden one was erected by the side of the stump of the first cross in 1907. It was made of redwood timber and was 30 feet tall, with six feet imbedded in concrete. The cross beam was 16 feet wide. The present cross is made of re-inforced concrete and was erected inn 1929 after the second one was found to be in dangerous condition. Money was collected by the Native Daughters of the Golden West (San Juan Bautista Parlor No. 179), with power from a cement plant it was lighted by 88 bulbs.

The lights gradually became damaged, as did the poles, and although the Service Club made repairs in the early '30s they were tentative. The Club has lighted the cross for some years past by a portable generator and flood lights during the Easter and the Christmas seasons.

A brief ceremony was held in the arcade of the Mission to commemorate this permanent lighting of Pagan Cross. Edward F. Pearce was master of ceremonies and a fine talk was given on the history of the Cross on Pagan Hill and its deeper meaning by Franciscan Father Gilbert Zlatar of the St. Francis Retreat. At the end of his speech the lighting of the cross was activated and the Old Mission Choir sang "By the Cross".

A reception was held by the Native Daughters of the Golden West, San Juan Bautista Parlor at their adobe building after the ceremony. Approximately one hundred people attended. "Thank you's" were extended by Parlor President Glenny Farney to the many people who had helped realize the fulfillment of this project.

Georgia Slide

by and

Kathleen Flynn

GEORGIA SLIDE was rightly named. It was situated two and one-half miles north of Georgetown in El Dorado County. The last mile of road leading down to it was very steep, but on reaching it, it was found to be quite well worth the effort it took to make the descent.

Miss Kathleen Flynn is the youngest of nine children of the family of the late James and Margaret Flynn. They were all born at the Slide. She is the only member of the family left and has a store of memories, that she passes on in this article, together with other data.

The site of Georgia Slide was settled first by a few miners in 1850, then in later years, a number of other men interested in mining for gold settled there, built comfortable homes and raised their families. Among these families were the Stantons, Beaties, Flynns, Barklages, Murphys, Kenneys, Morgans, Raus, Reinhards, and Presbys.

As time went on the settlement developed into a well-organized community. The children walked the distance to attend school in Georgetown and on Sunday families attended the church of their choice, Methodist or Catholic, in Georgetown. Some of men-folk held membership in various fraternal orders that held meetings in town. There was little transportation and that was by horse-drawn vehicles. Most of the traveling was on foot.

The first general store was established by Thomas Bowman in 1850. In later years it was owned and operated by Gearhart Barklage, and his brother William Barklage. On the death of Gearhart, William took over the business. It supplied the residents with groceries, dry-goods, "wet goods", grain for live-stock, hardware, tools, etc. Most of the gold (literally buckets of it) taken out was weighed and sent on to the mint from this store.

The store was a popular place to while away leisure time in exchanging news and views around the cracker barrel, or indulging in a friendly hand of cards. There were many spirited games of quoits on a square near the building. All supplies for the Slide were hauled in by large freight wagons, drawn by teams of horses, the leaders, bedecked with bells.

The fuel (stove-wood) for the various households was obtained at some distance down the ditches that supplied the homes and mines with water. There were three such ditches: the Blue Rock, the Pacific and the Beatie. Each family received its wood individually at the point along the ditch where its house stood.

The spirit of good-will was prevalent there. All came out to help on the day a quota of wood was floated down. It was always a gala occasion. The recipient furnished liquid refreshments and there was a treat of cookies and candy for the children.

There were five gold producing mines: the Blue Rock, the Pacific, the Stanton, the Beatie, and the Upper Blue Rock. They consisted of tunnels, run far in the ground where the gold was found in pockets in seams of rock. A majority of the residents held ownership in these mines.

There were many gay times along with the hard work, for those so inclined. Richard Buckler, who was employed as a miner, lived with his family for a time, at the Slide. He was never too weary after his day's work to furnish the fiddle music for an evening of fun and dancing when requested.

The Georgia Slide Brass Band was organized at this time. Its service was available whenever the occasion arose, around the countryside, especially at the Fourth of July celebration each year in Georgetown.

Most of the health problems of the community, illnesses, accidents and new babies, were taken care of

The Celebrated Jumping Frog of Calaveras County

FACT OR FABLE? / By J. J. FRIIS

"Lucky Lager" (full of hops) is held by Roy Weimer, an Angels Camp rancher. When "Lucky" broke the record, he jumped 16 feet, 10 inches.

THE Jumping Frog Jubilee at Angels Camp has become a California institution. In May of each year frogs are entered in an exciting contest to determine the greatest jumper.

About 25,000 people annually attend the Jubilee which was inaugurated in 1927. It commemorates an event which Mark Twain maintained actually happened and which he graphically described in his story of the "Celebrated Jumping Frog of Calaveras County."

For those who have never read Twain's account of this remarkable amphibian, the following streamlined version is offered.

TWAIN'S VERSION

According to Twain, at the request of a friend, he sought out an old gentleman, named Simon Wheeler, to determine if he knew anything of the whereabouts of one Rev. Leonidas W. Smiley who had come to California. Wheeler knew nothing about Leonidas Smiley but recalled a man known as Jim Smiley.

He remembered that Jim liked to bet; that he was "always betting on anything that turned up." Smiley owned many animals, but the most renowned of them all was his frog named "Dan'l Webster." Dan'l possessed extraordinary leaping powers and his master consistently won sums of money betting on him in jumping contests.

Here is the rest of the story as Twain told it (slightly abridged.)

"Well, Smiley kep' the beast in a little lattice box, and he used to fetch him downtown sometimes and lay for a bet. One day a feller—a stranger in camp, he was — come acrost him with his box and says:

" 'What might it be that you've got in the box?'

"And Smiley says, sorter indifferent-like, 'It might be a parrot, or it might be a canary, maybe, but it ain't—it's only just a frog.'

"And the feller took it, and looked at it careful, and turned it round this way and that, and says, 'H'm — so 'tis.' 'Well', Smiley says, easy and careless, 'he's good enough for one thing, I should judge—he can outjump any frog in Calaveras County.'

" 'The feller took the box again, and took another long, particular

Grand President June T. Goldie was the distinguished guest of four parlors recently: Tule Vista No. 305, Porterville; Miocene No. 228, Taft; El Tejon No. 239, Bakersfield, and Alila No. 321, Delano, hosting the event. Previous to the meeting a dinner was held. Thirty-two members from Bakersfield made the trip in a chartered bus to Delano for this annual official visit of Mrs. Goldie. Members from Tule Vista Parlor formed the escort team for the Grand President after which SDDGP Louise Whitten was escorted. Also escorted were DGPs Eva B. Fowler, Lucy Sphuler, Agnes Smith, and Grace Chase. Five officers from Bakersfield participated in the ritualistic team, Mmes. John Walters, Marjorie Reaves, William Parmalee and Waldemar Loesel; Mrs. Max Walker, president of El Tejon, was the presiding officer throughout the evening.

The hall was attractively decorated with tall candelabra and bouquets of flowers. Since Tule Vista had three candidates, the initiatory work was exemplified by Mrs. Walker. During this ceremony the Hymn to California was sung by Mrs. William Parmalee and Mrs. W. S. Sells, both from El Tejon. All parlors had their committee reports prepared in attractive folios and they were presented to the Grand President, together with their gifts of appreciation to her.

Mrs. Goldie gave a most interesting and informative talk on the many projects of the Native Daughters, and congratulated the four parlors for their fine work throughout the year. The coin march of the evening was presented to Mrs. Goldie for her Education and Scholarship project. Following the ceremonies, refreshments were served from Alila Parlor.

EL TEJON

San Joaquin Valley Districts 29 and 30 Childrens Foundation luncheon was held in the Del Webb Towne House in Fresno. The Childrens Foundation is a welfare project of the Native Daughters throughout the state offering aid to handicapped children of middle class families. Corrective braces, wheel chairs, artificial limbs are furnished. Surgery also cleft palate cases and orthodontics are also given aid. Five children in Kern County are now receiving this help.

Fourteen members from Bakersfield attended, including the president from El Tejon and her husband Max Walker. Mrs. W. S. Sells is District Co-chairman of the Foundation and Mrs. Dorothy Rother is parlor chairman. The theme for the occasion this year was "The Toy Circus."

Decorations in keeping with the theme were in charge of Eva B. Fowler and her committee. Each parlor participating presented a monetary gift. Mrs. Max Walker made the presentation from El Tejon. Adding to her donation was an additional $50.00 check delegated from funds received by Doris West during her term as president last year. PGP Jewel McSweeney gave an interesting talk on "California Women and Children". Entertainment was by a Fresno "Sing Out" group of "Up with People."

Members from Miocene No. 228, were also represented and took an active part in the colorful decorations. Among the draw prize winners was Mrs. John Hanning. A bazaar was held in conection with the project. This was is charge of Mrs. Gene Whitten and her sister, both members of Alila Parlor No. 321.

P.G.P. Boyle Honored

A CAREER DEVOTED to community service that spans a half century was lauded as the Oroville City Council honored Mrs. Florence Danforth Boyle with its "Outstanding Citizen" award.

Grand Vice President Hazel Mallette of the Native Daughters of the Golden West, recounted Mrs. Boyle's role in establishment of the Pioneer museum, recalling that she began collecting artifacts for the museum in 1918 and that stones from her home were used in the construction of the original museum, completed in 1932. She also noted that Mrs. Boyle was active in the statewide affairs of the NDGW and served as the organization's Grand President, and that she gave years of service in work with the Order's Pioneer Roster. Mrs. Boyle was also State Chairman of the Native Daughter's official publication the California Herald.

Heads of the various organizations of the city praised Mrs. Boyle and recalled her many activities in the community.

She was instrumental in establishing the American Legion Auxiliary and served two terms as its president. She was in charge of the community's USO during World War II.

She served as president of the Business and Professional Women's Club and is now an honorary member.

During the second World War she urged members to open their homes to Army Air Corps trainees stationed at the local airbase. The boys made her their mascot.

Mrs. Boyle was elected president of the Monday Club just a month after she became a member and during her term as president, spearheaded the project that resulted in the construction of the club building.

Mrs. Boyle responded to the tribute, saying she would "treasure this night more than words can say."

She asked the audience to "remember that, if you think what I did was good, there was always the help of others. I will always cherish what others did."

PGP Florence Danforth Boyle

Holding the bouquet of roses presented her by her daughter, Mrs. John Sutherland, Mrs. Boyle said the occasion had made her realize the true meaning of Oroville's original name, Ophir City — City of Gold.

"The young miners who first came here built our foundation on gravel and nuggets of gold," she said. "With the establishment of the citrus industry we had the golden fruit.

"And now we have the golden friendships of those whom we have known and worked with — and in our later years, our golden memories."

She concluded with the refrain. "When I grow to old to dream, I'll have you to remember."

EL DORADO

DGP Georgia Gardner was escorted to the altar and welcomed by El Dorado No. 186. She reported on the progress of the California Historical Art contest for District 15. Edith Hare of Auburn No. 233 was also a guest. Committees were appointed in preparation of Grand President June Goldie's official visit to the Parlor on May 11. A luncheon preceded the regular meeting. The tables were gay with camellias and daffodils.

EL CAMINO REAL

Mildred Kubler, organizer and charter president of El Camino Real No. 324, was awarded the Hourglass Award in Volunteer achievement in Philanthropic Service for 1968 at a luncheon at Sportsmans Lodge in Studio City before nearly one thousand San Fernando Valley women who came to honor the two winners, one in Philanthropic achievement and the other one in "Civic and Cultural." Faye Mac Farlane, Past President of El Camino Real was also nominated by the Parlor for the Award in the Civic category and received honorable mention.

Winners are selected by a staff of prominent judges selected by the Hilltoppers of the Assistance League of Southern California and are honored at a luncheon. Selected over a period of twelve years there are only twenty-five women in the exclusive group. Each year former winners are honored at a Champagne Tea at which time the nominees for the current year and presidents of their sponsoring organizations are introduced. This event is held each year at the Ferdinand Mendenhall home in December.

Mildred has given thirty-one years in Volunteer Service in the Valley and during 1965 contributed more than 1650 hours nearly the equivilant of a forty hour week. She joined the Order in 1950 at the official visit of PGP Margaret Farnsworth to Placerita and San Fernando Mission. She resigned from Placerita in August, 1958 and in September, 1959 joined the Order again as organizer and charter president of El Camino Real 324.

REINA DEL MAR PARLOR

Mrs. Henry J. (Sylvia) Griffiths, senior past president of Reina del Mar and a former member of Grand Parlor Board of Trustees, has been named executive secretary and acting director of the Santa Barbara Historical Society. To qualify for the salaried position under the society's corporate by-laws, Mrs. Griffiths resigned her directorship and position as treasurer of the Board.

The new executive secretary and acting museum director, born Sylvia Birss on a Goleta Valley lemon ranch, has for many years been identified with the Reina del Mar Parlor, and many civic enterprises, including the Salvation Army board, Santa Barbara Symphony Orchestra women's committee, Tri- Counties Blood Bank secretary - treasurer, Family Service Agency board, the Druids, American Red Cross board, and the Community Chest for 33 years. In 1957 Mrs. Griffiths won the Gold Feather Community Service Award. In 1964 she was named Santa Barbara's "Woman of the Year." Paul G. Sweetser, Past President of Santa Barbara Parlor 116 NSGW, a 30-year charter member of the society and first president and now its newly-elected president, in thanking Mrs. Griffiths for accepting the difficult post, noted her long and intimate association with the Historical Society which, he said, made her an outstanding candidate for the position.

Reina del Mar has maintained continuous membership in the Santa Barbara Historical Society and several members of the Parlor have been identified on the Board of the Historical Society: Past President Edna Sharpe Cannon, Mrs. I. A. Bonilla and Mrs. Ambert Phillips.

San Diego No. 208 has been very active since the lull over the holidays. Martha Anderson is Ways and Means Chairman. A Bunco Party was held with Myrtle Otto as chairman and Martha Anderson, co-chairman. The movie "Camelot" was enjoyed by those attending a theater party and there was also a drawing for lovely copperware prizes.

The Congress of History was held as San Diego Parlor joined with Illa M. Knox Parlor to serve refreshments at the reception. The two Parlors presented the Congress with a gavel duly inscribed for the occasion.

Courtesy Night was enjoyed. Officers from other Parlors were entertained at the formal meeting in the lounge of The House of Hospitality. Refreshments were served later in the La Sala Room. Young Mexican

To which the other replied, "Yes, I know exactly how that is as I feel the very same way when I lose my glasses!"

She and her husband visited there this last summer. Hostesses for the evening were Elsie Buchko, Roberta Nolze and Pat Smith. Each guest officer received a beautiful napkin holder made by Elsie.

MORADA

Morada Parlor No. 199 has established a practice of presenting a large California Bear Flag to each of the Modesto Schools. Recently the Parlor presented its 25th flag to the city's newest "Robertson Road School". The school has an unusual architecture—one very large round structure, partitioned into class rooms at the wish of the teachers. It features carpeting and air-conditioning and houses kindergarten through second grade. It is the first building of a complex to be built as funds are allocated. The schools of Modesto think of Morada Parlor as the Bear Flag of our great state waves overhead.

by William S. Hickman, M.D. He was the resident physician at Georgetown. He made his calls with horse and buggy.

As the years went by and the mines closed, the people moved away. Some passed away and many of them are at rest in the Pioneer cemetery at Georgetown.

These gold mines were re-opened at various times throughout the years, but only a trace of it all remains at at present. An overgrowth of scotch broom, thickets of trees and brush cover the site to a great extent.

Miss Flynn is one of the few people still to hold an interest in the mines.

JUMPING FROG . . .

look, and gave it back to Smiley, and says, 'I don't see no p'ints about that frog that's any better'n any other frog.'

" 'Maybe you don't', Smiley says. 'Maybe you understand frogs and maybe you don't understand 'em; maybe you've had experience, and maybe you ain't only a amateur, as it were. Anyways, I've got my opinion, and I'll resk forty dollars that he can outjump any frog in Calaveras County.'

"And the feller studied a minute, and then says, kinder sad-like, 'Well, I'm only a stranger here, and I ain't got no frog; but if I had a frog, I'd bet you.'

"And then Smiley says, 'That's all right—that's all right —if you'll hold my box a minute, I'll go and get you a frog.' And so the feller took the box, and put up his forty dollars along with Smiley's, and set down to wait.

"So he set there a good while thinking to hisself, and then he got the frog out and prized his mouth open and took a teaspoon and filled him full of quail shot—filled him pretty near up to his chin— and set him on the floor. Smiley went to the swamp and slopped around in the mud for a long time, and finally he ketched a frog, and fetched him in, and gave him to this feller, and says:

" 'Now, if you're ready, set him alongside of Dan'l with his forepaws just even with Dan'ls, and I'll give you the word.' Then he says, 'One—two—three—git! and him and the feller touched up the frogs from behind, and the new frog hopped off lively, but Dan'l give a heave, and histed up his shoulders—so—like a Frenchman, but it warn't no use—he couldn't budge; he was planted as solid as a church, and he couldn't no more stir than if he was anchored out. Smiley was a good deal surprised, and he was disgusted too, but he didn't have no idea what the matter was, of course.

" 'The feller took the money and started away; and when he was going out the door, he sorter jerked his thumb over his shoulder — so — at Dan'l, and says again, very deliberate, 'Well,' he says, 'I don't see no p'ints about that frog that's any better'n any other frog.'

"Smiley he stood scratching his head and looking down at Dan'l a long time, and at last he says, 'I do wonder what in the nation that frog throw'd off for — I wonder if there ain't something the matter with him —he 'pears to look mighty baggy, somehow.' And he ketched Dan'l by the nap of the neck, and hefted him, and says, 'Why blame my cats if he don't weight five pound! and turned him upside down and he belched out a double handful of shot. And then he see how it was, and he was the maddest man—he set the frog down and took out after the feller, but he never ketched him.' "

As told by Mark Twain the jumping frog story has the zest of the yarns of the early California mining camps. No doubt the humorist heard it somewhere in the Mother Lode district and "dressed it up" in his characteristic style.

In a recent issue of the "Coin World" appeared the story of a Seattle waitress who rejected a tip of a silver dollar. "I knew it was a phony," she explained, "because it didn't have any copper in the middle like a quarter." (She settled for a dollar paper bill.)

by Sharon Lynn Douglas Junior Past President

The hillside below Woodminister Amphitheater in the Oakland foothills is getting the golden touch, thanks to the efforts of the youthful members of the Fruitvale Junior Native Daughters Unit No. 22. Twelve members of the group met at the Abbey, Joaquin Miller's historic home on Joaquin Miller Road and sowed seeds of California poppies, the State Flower, on the embankment above Robin Perry Playfield. This was the first time the girls undertook this type of project, although the Unit has been busy with other civic and philanthropic work.

Members made scrap books for Children's Hospital, entertained for the Little Sisters of the Poor home for the aged in East Oakland, and assisted with activities of the senior organization. In January a choral group was organized and the Unit sang for the Alameda County Childrens Foundation breakfast in March. At this event the group was officially named "The Ragonettes", in honor of Mrs. Esther Ragon, head advisor of the Juniors since their organization in 1948.

The Story of Riverside

BY JANE FRIIS

JUAN BANDINI received a grant of the Rancho Jurupa on September 28, 1838, which was confirmed later by the United States. With this grant, Riverside County's rancho period began. Bandini was a member of the California legislature, a deputy to the Mexican Congress, a landowner and social leader, the best dancer in California (he introduced the waltz), and the father of daughters famous for their beauty.

Later the Jurupa Rancho was divided into two parts, the Louis Robidoux portion of over 6700 acres and the Abel Stearns parcel of more than 25,000 acres. In all, Riverside County had sixteen ranchos in the early days. Robidoux later sold small farms out of his rancho—"subdividing" as we would say today — and the land west of the Santa Ana River gradually became filled with settlers.

View of Riverside from Mt. Rubidoux.

In 1862 a flood swept down the Santa Ana River and destruction came to the pastoral community of Agua Mansa which was a continuous farm divided into a hundred or more separately owned fields. Father James Borgatta rang the Agua Mansa church bell to warn the people. No lives were lost, but the orchards, vineyards, gardens and community were left a wasteland. Only the cemetery on a knoll survived the ravages of the waters.

In 1870 John W. North, founder of the city of Riverside, came from Knoxville, Tennessee, where he had planned a colony for settlement in southern California. By 1871 a few houses had been built and the town was named Riverside because of its proximity to the Santa Ana River. In another year's time the town had homes, stores, churches, a schoolhouse, stage coach connections with MRS. EILEEN (Ben C.) Dismuke, Deputy Public Administrator for Santa Barbara County for the past sixteen and one-half years, and a county employee dating back to 1931-32, retired from county service on June 1.

Mrs. Dismuke is a native Santa Barbaran, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Galvin, who came to Santa Barbara at the turn of the century as employees of Milo Potter, owner of the world-famed Potter Hotel, met at the hotel and were married in Santa Barbara in 1905.

Mrs. Dismuke attended local schools, graduating from Santa Barbara High School with the Class of 1925, the first June graduating class to graduate from the new high school building. She was an employee of the Santa Barbara Chamber of Commerce for several years following her graduation from high school, and during 1931-32 had charge of the All-Year Club advertising program for which she received remuneration from the County of Santa Barbara.

She later affiliated with the County Probation Department, and from there became secretary to the late Mrs. Muriel Edwards, long-time Santa Barbara County Superintendent of Schools. Her work with the Public Administrator's Office began in 1951, interrupted for one year in 1958 when she was installed as Grand President of the Native Daughters of the Golden West in her home city, and for which she was granted a year's leave of absence by the Board of Superivsors in order that she might fulfill her duties during that year as Grand President. She resumed her position on July 1, 1959 and has continued to the present time the responsibility of the Public Administrator's Department.

Following her year as Grand President of the Native Daughters, and in recognition of the work which she accomplished during that year of returning the name El Camino Real to Highway 101 and return of the El Camino Real Bells along that famed highway, through State legislation, Mrs. Dismuke was rewarded with appointment by Governor Edmund G. Brown to the State Historical Landmarks Advisory Committee, on which she served for seven years. This service took her to many parts of the state for dedications of historical state landmarks, and for meetings of this important committee.

Mrs. Dismuke organized the Committee for El Camino Real in Santa Barbara in December 1958, for the purpose of assisting the late John J. Hollister, State Senator, in his Senate Bill 123 for return of the name El Camino Real to Highway 101 between San Diego and San Francisco, which had been changed by the legislature in 1957 to Cabrillo Highway. This committee was largely responsible for the success of Senate Bill No. 123, and Senator Hollister publicly credited Mrs. Dismuke, before a session of the State Legislature at which she was introduced as Grand President of the Native Daughters, with sparking passage of this legislation. She has continued her interest in the El Camino Real program of replacing the bells on the highway and at historic sites, and has been the author of numerous magazine and newspaper articles on the history of these bells, and the speaker at many dedications of such bells. The El Camino Real Bell on the Santa Barbara County Court House grounds was scheduled for dedication under Mrs. Dismuke's aegis on the tragic day of the assassination of President Kennedy, at which time visitors from the island of Mallorca, the birthplace of Padre Junipero Serra were to have been present during their tour of California in connection with the celebration of the 250th anniversary of the birth of Padre Serra. The dedication was necessarily postponed, and took place on December 4, 1963 in honor of Padre Serra and memory of President Kennedy.

Mrs. Dismuke was a member of the first Pueblo Viejo Committee appointed by then City of Santa Barbara Mayor Abbott, and served on this committee for two years. She is a member of the Santa Barbara Historical Society and the Carpinteria Historical Society, and holds the honored title of Past Grand President of the Native Daughters of the Golden West.

Mrs. Dismuke, together with the Rev. Noel F. Moholy, as members of the committtee for El Camino Real, devised the plan of sponsorship of a statue of Padre Junipero Serra on the State Capitol grounds, and were responsible for introduction of

by Leo Friedman

According to Greek mythology, it was Asclepius, god of medicine, who first discovered the mustard plant. To the early California ranchero, such a discovery could scarcely be considered miraculous. Indeed, who could miss seeing it? It was everywhere.

Mustard is not a native of California. Of the eight species which have established themselves in the state, all originally grew in either Europe or Asia.[1] How and when they arrived in California is a matter of conjecture. It has been suggested that the mission padres planted mustard seeds in order to gather their young leaves which were known locally as quelites, a general term for "greens."

"There is a tradition," says Charles Francis Saunders, "that in the early days the [Franciscan] fathers, when setting out on a journey, would fill the ample sleeves of their habits with mustard seeds, to be scattered along the way in order that the plant springing up and flowering would mark the path for future farings." Saunders rejects this tradition as improbable, and rightly so. The priests were intelligent men who were guided along El Camino Real by natural landmarks. They would have considered it absurd to mark a trail with a plant which would spread rapidly in all directions. Saunders credits birds with carrying mustard seed, noting that they were very fond of them and "great frequenters of mustard thickets." Irrespective of the manner of seed dispersal, the plant soon carpeted vast areas.[2]

Like the fabled camel that nosed its head into a tent and gradually pushed out its inhabitants, the mustard made a modest début as an apparently inoffensive weed, and then gradually overran the countryside. Captain Auguste Duhaut-Cilly wrote in 1827, "The people could have fought this enemy in the beginning, by totally extirpating the first plants of this species becoming troublesome; but their neglect has permitted the evil to increase to an extent almost irremediable with so small a population. Fire . . . has been employed unsuccessfully. When the stalk is dry enough to burn, it has already sown a large part of its seed, and fires serve but to make the ground more suitable for the reproduction of the plant one wished to destroy."[3]

Mustard was flourishing in California in the late Eighteenth Century. An analysis of the adobe bricks of the interior walls of Mission Nuestra Señora de la Soledad, dating about 1793 to 1798, showed the presence of mustard.[4]

The earliest lengthy account of mustard in the state is to be found in the diary of Duhaut-Cilly, who anchored his ship, Hèros, at San Pedro in the spring of 1827. While his supercargo went to Mission San Gabriel in an effort to sell merchandise, Duhaut-Cilly decided to devote a few hours to recreation. "One of my officers and I had brought our rifles," he said, "intending to hunt; but we were deprived of this relaxation . . . by unlooked-for obstacles. What, at a distance had appeared to us like a beautiful carpet of grass, mixed with heath, was found to be a thick vegetation of mustard, already reaching above a man's head. We wished, our feet. . . We feared at each instant we should step upon the tail of one of these dangerous reptiles; and an involuntary shudder shook us as we thought that its head, on raising would be at least on a level with ours."

Neither Duhaut-Cilly nor his companions were bitten, but when he went to Mission San Gabriel sometime later, he chose a different route from that he had taken on his hunting venture. On this next trip he "encountered more than one forest of mustard, whose tall stalks were above the ears [illegible] were, two thick walls on the two sides of Brinley, manager of Rancho Los Alamitos, wrote to his employer, Abel Stearns, that he anticipated a "run of two or three days" at the Nietos in which he expected cooperation from Manuel Dominguez, the Lugos, Temples and other rancheros. [8]

One is impressed by the height of mustard in pioneer California. The variety called black mustard (Brassica nigra) frequently grew as tall as twelve feet and sometimes taller. This was probably the kind that Jesus had in mind when He said, "The kingdom of heaven is like a grain of mustard seed which a man sowed in his field; it is the smallest of all seeds, but when it has grown it is the greatest of shrubs and becomes a tree, so that birds of the air come and make nests in its branches." [9]

There has been considerable dispute among Bible scholars as to whether Jesus meant that birds nested in the mustard or merely perched on its branches. Perhaps some of these pundits would not have had so much difficulty with their interpretation if they had been better biologists. [10] Louise Werder Backs, who came to Anaheim with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman L. Werder, in 1859, could easily have answered those who doubted that Jesus meant exactly what he said. In her memoirs she wrote: "The country all around [Anaheim] was covered with tall mustard. When we rode in our fasionable up-to-date Studebaker [wagon], it was as high as our heads. The blackbirds built their nests in the branches of the mustard. We girls would go out and gather the eggs and have Mother cook them for us." [11]

The pioneers have left many reminiscences about the height of mustard. William M. McFadden, a young Alameda County school teacher, came south in December, 1868, in search of a suitable piece of land to purchase. He visited his friend, John Hanna, who resided south of Anaheim. Borrowing a horse from him, he rode northeasterly to the area now known as Placentia. "Going north through the mustard so high one could not see over it, he followed the foothills and looking them over, Mr. McFadden concluded that a land that would grow such wonderful mustard would grow anything. . . Over the land lay mustard stalks as big or bigger than a man's wrist." [12]

In the following year, William H. Spurgeon, founder of Santa Ana, explored the Santa Ana Valley in search of a suitable tract for a townsite. According to Mrs. R. J. Blee, the mustard was so tall that Spurgeon had "to climb a sycamore tree to get a clear idea of the country." Like McFadden, he reasoned that land which would produce such a luxuriant growth of mustard must, indeed, be very fertile. [13]

Members of the Ross family who preceded Spurgeon to the Santa Ana district found that the mustard in the valley "was so tall that when one stood on the seat of a prairie schooner it was impossible to see the fields." [14]

The late Frank F. Hill, who became director of production for the Union Oil Company, visited the company's holdings, in what is now Brea, at the turn of the century. He recalled that he hired a livery rig at Whittier and as he drove through the high mustard it was necessary for him to stop his horse from time to time so he could stand up in the buggy and get his bearings. REINA DEL MAR

Reina del Mar Parlor celebrated its 67th birthday with a potluck dinner and party at Knights of Columbus Hall. President Mary Louise Days acted as chairman for the anniversary event, which also honored past presidents of the parlor; assisting the chairman were Mmes. Kenneth Bell, dinner arrangements; Peter Graham, hall setup; Ambert Phillips, exhibit; Beverly Burdick, music, Joseph Meyerink and Roy V. Miller, telephone; and Miss Sue Harrison and Mrs. Anthony Days, hostesses. A display of memorabilia from the parlor collections included 40 year old scrapbooks and early fiesta photographs. HIAWATHA

"It was indeed a wonderful basket when it was finished, but it looked so empty. It would look much better filled with eggs" . . . read the story being heard at Toyon School one afternoon. Hiawatha Parlor had sent a committee to this Head Start Unit on the occasion of the recent Easter holiday season to help entertain and surprise our little children.

Hiawatha president Ruth Goesele Griffin, speech therapist at Shasta Lake Union School District, diverted the children's attention to the above flannel board adventure: A Surprise for Mrs. Bunny by author Charlotte Steiner, while Mrs. Pruitt, a mother working in the Unit on this day, assisted the Native Daughters Edith Lowry and Inez Evans in filling lovely rabbit baskets made by Mrs. Dicus with the "goodies" brought from the Hiawatha Parlor at Redding.

The Parlor also through Chairman Aurelia Shuffleton remembered the shut-ins and members who lived at at a distance. A gift and card was sent to each.

On May 4 Hiawatha Parlor held a mother-daughter tea for members and guests. The Native Daughter hall was decorated with many baskets of spring flowers in the colors of the order — red, white and gold. President Ruth Griffin welcomed the

To interest the prospective members present, Virginia Banigan told of the many projects of the Native Daughters of the Golden West and the aims and purposes of the order.

Among those present was Mrs. Berness Medford of Camellia Parlor and two representatives of the Junior Native Daughters. Since Hiawatha Parlor is interested in organizing a Junior Unit, Mrs. Medford was asked to tell the group something about the requirements and purposes of the Junior Unit.

DGP Jeanette Hall, was in attendance. Chairman for this event was Regina Swarts.

BONITA

Approximately seventy members and guests of Bonita Parlor were present to celebrate the eighty-first birthday of the Parlor on May 14. Dinner was held at the Carrousel de Soliel in San Carlos. Chairman Mary Sousa and her committee did an outstanding job of making the table decorations. Beautiful candle holders and ornamental bird cages, complete with artifical birds first used for table decorations and later as prizes to lucky winners.

Seven members received their twenty-five year emblems. Those present to receive this honor were Elsie Blomquist and her daughter, Ruth Warren, Nancy Durham, Vera Liguori, and Catherine Mileti. Unable to be present due to illness were Lola Hayne and Margaret Tuite. PGP Evelyn I. Carlson made the presentations. Dinner guests of the Parlor were PGP Evelyn I. Carlson, SDDGP Helena Lewerenz, DGP Lillian King and Bonita's own President Loretta Mosley. Also present to celebrate the occasion was Alleen Maguire, daughter of deceased charter member Mamie Glennan. Alleen has been a member for sixty-four years and is our oldest member, in years of service. She has been Parlor president twice and has been parlor chairman to the ND Home for many years. She visits the Home on holidays and special occasions when she personally delivers gifts of food donated by the Parlor.

The Sweet Adelines Inc. presented several songs in barber shop style which were immensely enjoyed by all. Secret Pals were revealed and new pals for the year chosen. At the conclusion of the program, members visited with members who for one reason or another do not get to Parlor meetings regularly and are happy for this opportunity to visit.

LOS ANGELES

A steak dinner at Michael's Los Feliz Restaurant marked the 67th birthday of Los Angeles Parlor No. 124, with 65 members and friends in attendance.

The occasion was also in honor of DGP Florence Parsons and SDDGP Laura Blosdale. The Parlor was honored to have G. T. Lila Hummel, PGPs Hazel Hansen and Anna T. Schiebusch and Judge Alfred Peracca, PGP, NSGW and Mrs. Peracca.

Judge Peracca gave an inspiring talk about the laws of California and their changes from 1901 to 1968.

There were present on this 67th birthday twelve past presidents of Los Angeles Parlor: 29th President Kathryn Ronan; 41st, Edna Neikirk; 43rd, Louise McNary; 47th, Juanita Porter; 54th, Evelyn Frinier; 57th, Emma Rose; 58th, Norma Coleman; 60th, and 68th, Martha Gristock; 61st, Vivian Morse; 62nd, Sophia Stewart; 66th, and 71st, Shirley Dearborn; and 69th, Noma Stretch.

At the conclusion of the party a drawing was held for many nice doors prizes. It was indeed a gala affair.

CALIZ DE ORO

Hazel Newman, a member of Caliz de Oro No. 206, Stockton, as well as a board member of the Native Daughters of the Golden West Home, arranged an excursion (innovation) to San Francisco, leaving Stockton at 9:40 a.m. on Saturday, May 4, via chartered Greyhound bus. On a typically overcast cool San Francisco day, first stop was the NDGW Home, 555 Baker Street.

Special interest and high lighting the day was the tour of NDGW Home facilities — the parlor, dining area, kitchen, meeting hall, as well as the guest rooms. This was a "first" for the majority of the 37 members and guests; members especially expressing amazement at seeing firsthand the activities centered around one of the most important projects of the Order. The gracious manager, Frances Harris, and her assistant, Gladys Marinai, made everyone feel welcome and at home, and kept busy answering questions. After the tour from basement to the top floor, a delicious buffet luncheon prepared by the regular kitchen crew was served; at this time the guests living in the Home joined (as well as the bus driver) and it was delightful to have a visit and hear of their activities as individuals outside the Home, as well as the collectively-shared interests in their "Home".

This is a stately old building erected in 1928, with an addition, called the Emma G. Foley Annex, completed in the early part of 1966. The decorations and appointments are symbolic of California history; In the NDGW Historical Room are displayed California antiques donated by Parlors and members (dresses, jewelry, dishes, etc.) Of particular interest to the visiting members were the old constitutions, rituals and regalia.

Mrs. Newman expressed appreciation to the management for their hospitality and called on PGP Norma Hodson, who came with the group from Manteca. Mrs. Harris graciously responded and expressed sincere appreciation for all the helpful parlor donations to make the Home comfortable. The five San Joaquin County Parlors were represented: Phoebe A. Hearst Parlor (Manteca), El Pescadero Parlor (Tracy) and Stockton Parlor, Joaquin Parlor and Caliz de Oro from Stockton. Lifetime member Louise Rich from Darina Parlor of San Francisco, came also.

At 1:30 p.m. the congenial bus driver, (Feliz) was waiting and took the group on a sight-seeing tour on John F. Kennedy Drive around colorful Golden Gate Park, Hippie-Haight-Ashbury, Embarcadero, Fisherman's Wharf, Cliff House, and then back across the Oakland-San Francisco Bay Bridge to Oakland for a three-hour stop at Jack London's Square. At 6 p.m. the group was homeward bound. It was an enjoyable day, long to be remembered. Special thanks to Hazel for her time and effort put forth in arrangements. She is to be congratulated for a most successful as well as educational Native Daughter day.

Mission Inn

A State Historical Monument

MISSION INN, Riverside, with its old Spanish architecture reflects a way of life. Art galleries with historic collections, chapels jewel-lighted through stained glass give charm and atmosphere.

The founder-builder of this unique place (now a state historical monument) was Frank Augustus Miller. In fact, Mission Inn is the embodiment of the life, dreams, aspirations and acquisitiveness of Mr. Miller. He began the inn as a small adobe cottage in 1902. During the next 30 years he added wing after wing, refinements and additions. He toured Europe, Mexico and the Orient for furnishings. Almost everything in the Inn has a story behind it.

The Inn's architecture comprises a profusion of balconies, towers, arches, domes, flying buttresses, inset statues and representations of grotesque Aztec deities. Beneath the Inn, winding like the catacombs of an ancient castle is the Inn's Cloister Walk with dim corridors filled with statues, religious paintings, curios, tapestries and Miller's large collection of dolls.

Seven hundred bells hang in alcoves, niches and in cases. There is a hammered bronze, bowl-shaped gong that once hung in a Buddhist temple. There are tiny bells from Syria, and little Roman bells found in excavations in the Holy Land. There are caravan bells that hung on the necks of camels when Mohammed was in Mecca, muffin bells that were worn by English muffin men and a bronze temple gong from China, said to be over 1800 years old. The Inn's crosses include gold crosses, carved wood and ivory ones, ornate crosses, ikons and tiny silver ornamental pieces.

Of the Inn's many treasures, none is more striking than its gold marriage altar in St. Francis Chapel. It was built in the early 1700s for a Spanish family which owned silver mines in Mexico. Miller acquired the altar in 1920 and had it brought in piece by piece. Gold leaf covers intricately designed figures of saints and popes. It stands 25 feet high and is 16 feet wide. The chapel includes also a 200 year old carved saint's head from a Belgian convent, 300-year old, six foot candleholders, old paintings and bells.

The chapel was dedicated as an International Shrine to Fliers in 1932. In its alcove and in the small aviation museum are cases of fliers' wings, insignia, bits of planes and mementoes from famous flying events.

Other features not to be missed include Anton's Clock, made in 1709 in Nuremburg, with the procession of life-size figures creaking slowly around its base; the Rotunda Internacional with its massive stone staircases spiraling upwards seven stories and the rooms de los Escritores where such famous authors as Zona Gale, Harold Bell Wright, Henry Van Dyke, Joseph Lincoln and Edward Markham once stayed and wrote.

EL DORADO

El Dorado No. 186, met in I.O.O.F. Hall, Georgetown, May 11, with President Helen Francisco, presiding. The high-light of the afternoon was the official visit of Grand President June Titus Goldie.

Sixty members and visitors, shared a fine ham dinner, preceding the meeting. There were the usual speeches and introductions, including an interesting talk by James Mace of the California Historical Council of El Dorado County. Mr. and Mrs. Mace were guests. Also, at the table, charter members of El Dorado Parlor, Louise Schmeder, and Elizabeth Murdock were given special mention, as were the fifty year members, Kathleen Flynn, Flossie Francis, and Alice Pugh. At the conclusion of the dinner, the guests expressed appreciation for an enjoyable "get-together".

The Parlor was then called to order, owing to lack of time, most of the usual order of business was omitted. The following escort work was performed with fine precision by Grand Marshal Ann Larson. Grand President June Goldie was presented at the altar and welcomed. PGPs Ethel Enos, Morado No. 199, Modesto, 1946; Henrietta Toothaker, Woodland No. 90, Woodland, 1950; Norma Hodson, Phoebe A. Hearst No. 214, Manteca, 1956; Audrey Brown, Sutter Parlor No. 111, Sacramento, 1957, were presented.

GVP Hazel Mallette, sister of President Helen Francisco was presented and welcomed as were other dignitaries. Alice Pugh was presented with her fifty year membership pin by GP June Goldie. SDDGP Georgia Gardner reported concerning the art contest.

GP Goldie gave an interesting and instructive talk and presented the

MISSION

May 10 at Native Sons' building, San Francisco, Mission No. 227 gave a reception for Inga Meyer, SDDGP of San Francisco County, who is a member of Mission Parlor. Fourteen of Inga's deputies were present to pay homage to her. Deputy Clarise Meyer of San Francisco Parlor graciously played "mod" music before the program began. Deputy Grace Tuttle of Guadalupe Parlor sang several numbers. Mission Parlor Drum Corps girls acted as an escort team. Parlor President Esther Krause (also a member of the corps) escorted Mission's deputy Ann Shaw of Golden Gate Parlor, to the podium, then escorted SDDGP Meyer. Constance Warshaw, deputy to Guadalupe Parlor, acted as mistress of ceremonies.

Members from many San Francisco parlors attended, also a large group of Native Sons from local parlors. The supervisor's family; her father, a Native Son for over 50 years, and her two sisters, members of Mission Parlor were introduced. PGPs Evelyn Carlson and Emily Ryan and grand officers GM Nancy Conens and GT Irene Bondanza were in attendance.

Inga was the recipient of a Native Daughter "charm" bracelet from the Parlor; a monetary gift from her deputies and many, many personal gifts. Chairman Marian Reed and her committee served home-made sandwiches and cake. The center piece for the table was pink and white carnations.

The San Francisco County Deputies' luncheon was held Saturday June 1, at the Del Webb Towne House. Inga was general chairman of this affair.

this project to the Grand Parlors of the Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West at a joint project. Matching funds were made available by the State of California, and a magnificant statue of Padre Junipero Serra was dedicated in 1965 and now stands in the shadow of the Capitol Dome, surrounded by replicas of the nine missions he founded almost two hundred years ago. The Bi-Centennial celebrations planned by the State of California and history-minded citizens of the state beginning in 1969 points up the importance of this recognition of California's First Pioneer.

Mrs. Dismuke has always taken an active part in Old Spanish Days Fiesta celebrations, having participated as a young girl in the first Fiesta in 1924. Her home is filled every year with Native Daughter and Native Son visitors from throughout the state, who are here as guests of Santa Barbara Mission and the City of Santa Barbara during Fiesta.

Mrs. Dismuke was married in 1926 to Ben C. Dismuke, and their daughter, Mrs. Wesley Gray, is a resident of Santa Barbara. The Dismukes are the proud grandparents of four grandsons and three granddaughters, whom Mrs. Dismuke is looking forward to spending this summer with at the beach and in the mountains on her retirement. Their plan is to live at their home on San Marcos Pass after her retirement.

Mrs. Dismuke is a past president of the Santa Barbara Legal Secretaries Association, of which she served as president in 1946, and she is a past president of Tierra de Oro Parlor No. 304, Native Daughters of the Golden West, of which she was president in 1953. She is the recording secretary of her parlor, and is co-chairman of the statewide Native Daughter magazine, The California Herald, and is chairman of the Junipero Serra Statue Committee for this year. As chairman of the latter committee, Mrs. Dismuke is presenting a resolution at the Grand Parlor of the Native Daughters, to be held in Riverside next month, recommending that funds remaining in the Serra Statue Fund be used for assistance to Native Daughter Parlors throughout the state in 1969-70 in placement of El Camino Real Bells and plaques dedicating historic sites along the Pathway of the Padres, during the Bi-Centennial Celebrations.

San Bernardino and Los Angeles and a corps of energetic pioneers.

In the early days of Riverside, Luther C. Tibbets and his wife, Eliza,

Don Juan Bandini and his daughter, Ysidora brought forth the first navel oranges. The young trees came from Washington, D.C. and were planted in the Tibbets garden. The first fruit ripened in the winter of 1878 and the fame of the seedless orange (the Washington Navel as it was called) swept through California. This was the start of a great new industry. Today one of the parent trees still produces oranges in Riverside. (See picture on the cover of this magazine.)

In 1883 Riverside was incorporated and its water problems settled. Ten years later, the California Legislature created the new County of Riverside which was formed out of 590 square miles taken from San Bernardino County and 6044 square miles from San Diego County.

In 1907 a citrus experimentation station was established at Riverside. It has become one of the world's largest research stations devoted to subtropical agriculture.

Above the original townsite stands Mt. Rubidoux. The annual Easter pilgrimage to its top was started by Frank Miller. It was the first outdoor interdenominational Easter Sunrise Service in the West. In Riverside buildings, bridges and along the picturesque west entrance around Mt. Rubidoux can be seen evidence of Miller's dedication to reviving and preserving mission architecture. Even the city's streetlights with their Indian rain cross and three bell design show his influence.

The Unfatigued Clara Barton

(Great Grand Niece)

Clara Barton

THE MANY STORIES of the American Red Cross are too well known to be repeated here, but so few know of the life, character and personality of its founder, who under much stress and difficulty was to become the organizer of the greatest humanitarian work in the world!

Clara Barton was born Clarissa Harlow Barton on December 25th, 1821, in a two-story house built by her father at Ben Learned Hill, Massachusetts. In 1823, her sister, Sally was also born there. Aunt Clara passed away at the age of 91 in her summer home at Glen Echo, Maryland, on Easter Sunday, April 12, 1912. When she was 14, she began to resent her first two names and decided to call herself Clara Barton. Clarissa was the name of her father's favorite cousin and Harlow was the married name of her mother's favorite Aunt.

At the age of six, her father moved the family to a two and one-half story house he had built in Oxford and it was there that Clara's two brothers, Stephen and David were born, to be followed by another sister, Dorothy.

Clara Barton stood just five feet tall, was very slender, had brown eyes, black hair which never turned white during her lifetime. Her clothes were of her own personal design and no one copied her style. When she was in Corsica, she taught the women one of her stitches which saved five hours of time and she left them the best dressed. Her garments were her personal care, whether at home, in the barnyard or in a banquet hall, but they were entirely forgotten when she was in a disaster area. She never wore a uniform, but always a small hand-made Red Cross on the sleeve of her left arm.

She had little use for jewelry and the Red Cross pin seen at the collar of her dress was put there by the photographer and removed promptly after photography. But she wore two pins daily which were her prized possessions. One was a Pansy pin given to her by the Grand Duchess of Baden and the second, the Iron Cross of Prussia presented to her by the Emperor of Germany, and at the request of the donors, she wore these during her life time. Her favorite color was green.

As to her religion, she always called herself, "a well disposed pagan,' but she was active in the Universal Church in Oxford. She was a close friend of Mary Baker Eddy, who was just five months and nine days younger, and although not having acquired the knowledge of the Christian Science creed, she fully believed it to be a worthwhile cure for those who "enjoyed very poor health."

Her favorite saying was, "I am with the wounded."

About the Author

The author, a member of Sequoia Parlor No. 272, Berkeley, is a great grand niece of the founder of the American Red Cross and named after her.

She ate two meals a day and always for breakfast warm graham mush with fresh fruit, milk, poached egg on toast and cocoa. She enjoyed coffee when she had time to make it. Her lunch, when she ate, was just fruit and milk and at dinner time, if she had the opportunity, she would cook a steak, chops or ham, but mostly she would rely on vegetables. She never ate between meals and she never lost weight. She never felt weak from hunger, but her real weakness was for ice cream and she always made it herself.

Her working hours she claimed to be 14 out of 24, but her co-workers disagreed, as to them it was 18 out of 24. She worked hard and she slept hard. Her hands might have been idle, but her mind was always devising new and better ways to help humanity.

She had many hobbies, but her favorites were her pets and the study of the lives and activities of insects. Her pets consisted of a small Jersey cow which gave much milk. Her dog "Buttons" was a small terrior, pure white, with black beady eyes, silky ears and a very short tail, which never seemed to stop w a g g i n g. "Billy", her horse, was one of two she owned. Rita Marshall

RITA'S FIRST DAY

We are here today,
To give three hearty cheers
For the first day of Rita's 81st year.
Yesterday's birthday celebrated
Years of loving, learning and serving
Of full and fruitful living.

This first day brings
A new Wonder Ball
For Rita to unwind
And rifle, to find
Prizes rich and joyous.
Here's to Rita's "First Day"!

EIGHTY YEARS of practice in pioneering enterprises in unfamiliar territories, through three generations of a California family, have prepared Rita Marshall to tackle several new ones! After 30 years in the home in Berkeley, she begins a new domestic chapter in a new, pink flat, and drives a little red "bug" to Berkeley Parlor meetings.

Twelve NDGW friends officially launched the new careers, the day after the family birthday party, on the first day of her 81st year, on the long-famous "Gold Street" in San Francisco. On a balcony overlooking the ordinary diners in the Victorian setting, Rita was toasted with rhyme and "Gold Street" punch, feasted, and surprised with a post-birthday cake which she received with the music of "Happy Birthday" by the young managers of the historic restaurant. Guests were thanked by Rita with butterfly kisses on each head around the table; and she herself was "bussed" by the manager, whose homage was a tribute worth receiving.

As usual, Rita was greeted by enthusiatic friends of her sons and grandsons to and fro on the pilgrimage to "Gold Street", each showing such spontaneous joy and anxiety to tell her the "latest" that we were all convinced that we were in the train of a born queen. A crown would have been superfluous! Those present will never forget the First Day of Queen Rita's 81st year.

Daughter of Edith Simpson and Stonewall Jackson Matthews, she was born at Maxwell, lived in Ukiah, spent some time in Selma, then went to Everett, Washington where, pretty and popular, she attended high school. The high school annual shows many of her art and literary contributions. Her family moved to San Francisco, from which Rita attended San Jose Teacher's College, being graduated in 1908. She taught her first year in Santa Barbara. She married George Mack, called the "Mayor" of the model estate Naples, founded by wealthy John H. Williams and his wife, owners of Dos Pueblos Rancho, to be an ideal colony. This colony with its beautiful church and other landmarks, is a "ghost" town now; the Dos Pueblos converted to the largest orchid nursery in the world. The old Santa Barbara Morning Press published a full-page article on Naples on Sunday, April 19, 1925. A recent story by historian Walker A. Tompkins of the Santa Barbara News Press is the article, "Sentimental Journey," an extensive interview with Rita on December 17, 1967, when she returned to the locale of her first year of teaching 60 years later. She visited with the friend with whom she had boarded that first year, and is still receiving letters from friends who read the article.

Rita has since received a grateful acknowledgments for the records, souvenirs, and pictures she presented to the Goleta Valley Historical Society. One of her accounts is seeing the wreck of a ship she had watched building during her Everett Washington stay. She is now writing a history of Goleta, beginning with the arrival of Cortez!

A second marriage, to Wendall Marshall, pioneer engineer, led her to a tent on San Marcos Pass, and added another son, Neil, to her family. After adventurous years developing many California engineering projects, the family was united with the Matthews in Berkeley, after Mr. Matthews retirement from the State Printing Office where he had been since 1920. So the big home with attending chorus of wild birds dined every day by the hospitable Matthews, echoed through 30 brimming years with the voices of a social family and their many friends, and the growing grandchildren. Patriotic services by the Marshalls at h o m e and abroad brought to Rita herself one of her most valued souvenirs, an early Doug Kingman watercolor from the dismantled nursery school where she was a volunteer during World War II.

Rita invited Berkeley No. 150 to her farewell to this home on Valentine's Day, 1968. These 80 years have been transmitted by Rita into lasting friendships. She is presently touring the United States. She will return soon, to warm and enliven Berkeley Parlor and her deputies' group; to write historical reminiscenses and poetry; to continue her delightful work as a watercolorist; and, of course, begin several absolutely new projects! Look for her at Los Banos in 1969 where several of her character dolls have already found homes.

One of the toasts, given by Sophie MacFarland, was:

Rita, there's nobody sweeter!
Today we salute her
To celebrate an occasion
Eighty years in preparation!
We extol her with praises
That sing of our praises.
We know the full measure
Of her works for our pleasure.
She has always been faithful
Through nights, or through days
Full of labors and planning
For us and our parties.
No pretense or hedging
No thought but of pleasing
Carrying her load as demanded
For success as commanded.
Congratulations! Salutations!
And our very best wishes
For more birthdays for Rita—
There's nobody sweeter!

The 82nd Grand Parlor of the Native Daughters of the Golden West

Riverside, California

By Martha Jean Johnson

State Chairman, Public Relations, 1967-68

PRIOR TO the formal opening of Grand Parlor, a champagne press conference was held in the Wisteria Room of the Mission Inn. The 82nd Grand Parlor began with a formal reception held in the Pool Gardens. Introductions and entertainment followed in the Music Room. The Grand Parlor sessions co-chairmen Pat Jackson, Florence Davis and Floretta Banks of Jurupa No. 296, were escorted on stage and introduced. Mrs. Jackson then introduced PGP Hazel Hansen, honorary chairman of this Grand Parlor, who presented the 23 Past Grand Presidents in attendance and PGS Irma Murray. The Grand Officers were escorted and introduced. The escort included Messers. Woodhead, Heron, Robertson and Hodges of Riverside No. 299, NSGW.

Program chairman Helen Lugo of San Gabriel Valley No. 281 introduced John Hyden who presented an excellent musical program. The Music Room was filled to more than capacity.

On Monday morning, sessions formally opened with honorary chairman Hazel Hansen inviting the Grand Parlor sessions co-chairmen to enter. The entire committee entered. Each of the Districts involved wore can-can dresses of various colors, each District having its own color. The escort team from San Gabriel Valley dressed in green satin skirts and gold lamé blouses. The Grand Officers made their formal entrance, dressed in white floor length formals. After the Grand Officers were seated, the escort team sang a song written for Grand President June Goldie. It was based on all the things "June" stands for.

Councilman A. Norton Younglove presented a proclamation issued by Mayor Ben Lewis, proclaiming the week of June 16 through June 21 as "Native Daughters of the Golden West Week." A similar proclamation was received from the City of Colton. Edward M. Carperter of the Chamber of Commerce of Riverside and Harry E. Creasey of the County of Riverside extended a welcome. Grand President June thanked the sessions committee for the many hours of work taken to bring about this Grand Parlor.

All Grand Officers, Past Grand Presidents and PGS Murray were escorted to the altar for formal introduction. PGP Claire Lindsey, who presided 25 years ago, was introduced, presented with a gift by Mrs. Banks, and escorted to the Grand President's station. She spoke reminiscing of the Grand Parlor held in 1943 in Santa Cruz when she presided. She recalled how all the Parlors had purchased War Bonds and one member on gas rationing drove her car a certain distance and then went on horseback the rest of the way to Native Daughter meetings.

The Municipal Auditorium was decorated in the theme of "Chain of Gold", consisting of golden and green filigreed topiary stands, with a chain of golden links across the front of the stage. Other decorations included palm trees, junipers, and baskets of flowers.

Grand President June gave her report of the past year, stating that she had attended 93 official visits, with three Parlors celebrating their 75th anniversaries, one Parlor its 50th, and one its 80th. She spoke of the many civic ceremonies, breakfasts, lunches, dinners and historical markings. There were several presentations of 25 and 50 year emblems to members throughout the state. She has travelled by automobile between 35,000 and 40,000 miles and more by jet and rent-a-car. She announced that the NDGW had endorsed the bill to make "The Golden State" the official nickname of California. A new unit of the Junior Native Daughters was instituted this year, Golden Poppy Unit No. 38 in San Francisco. She spoke of the homecoming dinner held in her honor at the Huntington-Sheraton Hotel in Pasadena. Ben Herbert then played piano selections during the memorial services held for those members who passed away this year.

During the noon recess, a luncheon for Alameda County was held in the Spanish Dining Room of the Inn. Chairman was Esther Ragon of Fruitvale No. 177. A check was presented to the Childrens Foundation by the DGPs of Alameda County in memory of Katherine Madden.

The Southern Counties luncheon was held in the Galeria Room. There were 166 present at this luncheon with Sarah Miller of San Diego No. 208 as chairman. Co-chairman was Mrs. Francis Saner.

While members were busy attending to matters at hand, visitors were taking a tour of March Air Force Base, guided by Lt. Howell.

GT Marie Landini was hostess for the Santa Clara County dinner held in the El Mundo Room with Palo Alto No. 299 hosting a cocktail party.

The Past Grand Presidents started the evening's festivities with a cocktail party hosted by PGPs Orinda G. Giannini and Claire Lindsey. A highlight of the evening was the presentation by PGP Evelyn I. Carlson to PGP Annette Caiocca of the traditional baby bib, rattle and feeding dish, as she is the "Baby PGP". Mrs. Giannini presented Mrs. Lindsey with a 50-year membership emblem, which will go on a sterling silver chain. PGP Jewell McSweeney was in charge of the entertainment for the evening.

Included in the evening's activities was a dinner held at the Dunes. with SDDGP Ruby Meadows of Lugonia No. 241 as chairman. There were 55 present.

On Tuesday morning the Northern Counties Breakfast was held in the El Loro Room with Maxine Dodge of Oak Leaf No. 285 serving as chairman. Mustard

by

Mustard "has been invading man's grainfields wherever he has begun to cultivate," and its performance in California was no exception. Threshing machines of the pioneer period were not capable of separating mustard and other weed seeds from wheat and the befouled grain brought lower prices. Writing in the November, 1868, issue of The Overland Monthly, Horace Davis observed, "The enemies of the farmer are ready to spring into life with the awakening grain. Our winter is so mild that every foul seed and weed sprouts as thriftily as what is sown, and as most of them ripen before wheat, they reproduce themselves constantly to its great injury. Chief among these are barley, mustard, wild oats and wild clover." [16]

In addition to its other bad qualities, dried mustard stalks were a fire menace. The editor of the Fullerton Star warned in the May 10, 1889 issue of his paper: "Later in the season when the tall weeds and mustard have become thoroughly sun dried they are very inflammable, and are liable to take fire from a very slight cause. A burning gunwad, a cigar stump, or a spark from a passing train might be the incendiary. Let us protect ourselves in time from a danger that will threaten our haystacks, our barns, and our homes. Clear out the weeds and save insurance." [17]

Mustard has its medicinal use and as a condiment it adds zest and flavor to a "hot dog." In other respects it is a villain. Helen Hunt Jackson, who marvelled at its beauty when she visited the Mission Indians in southern California in 1883, wrote in her novel, Ramona, "The wild mustard in Southern California is like that spoken of in the New Testament, in the branches of which the birds of the air may rest. Coming up out of the earth, so slender a stem that dozens can find starting-point in an inch, it darts up, a slender straight shoot, five, ten, twenty feet, with hundreds of fine feathery branches locking and interlocking with all the other hundreds around it, till it is an inextricable network like lace.

"Then it bursts into yellow bloom still finer, more feathery and lacelike. The stems are so infinitesimally small, and of so dark a green, that at a short distance they do not show, and the cloud of blossom seems floating in the air; at times it looks like golden dust. With a clear blue sky behind it, as it is often seen, it looks like a golden snow-storm. The plant is a tyrant and a nuisance, — the terror of the farmer; it takes riotous possession of the whole field in a season; once in, never out; for one plant this year, a million the next; but it is impossible to wish the land were freed from it. Its gold is as distinct a value to the eye as the nugget gold is in the pocket." [18]

MENLO JUNIORS

The Menlo Juniors held a public, formal installation of officers at Menlo Park Recreation Center. Eileen McLaughlin, whose grandparents were early settlers of Menlo Park, became Junior president. The ceremonies were conducted by Linda Cane assisted by Reneé Cook, Laurie Cane and Mary Ellen Olsen.

Many guests attended including Mrs. Dolores Ferenz, member of Junior State Commission and Junior State Officers Kathy Slater, Linda Cane, and Linda Ucovich.

Two highlights of the evening were the presentation of the merit award of a Junior Native Daughter emblem by Mrs. Lois Cook to her daughter Reneé and the Junior Past President's pin by Mrs. Nancy Cane to her daughter Linda. This pin was presented to Mrs. Cane fifteen years ago when she was Jr. Past President.

Refreshments and program closed the delightful occasion.

ALELI

Aleli No. 102 celebrated its 70th birthday with all past presidents as hostesses. Preceding the birthday party, Evelyn Alioto, parlor chairman of California History and Landmarks art talent contest, presented checks and ribons to the winners whose work was chosen from the 137 paintings submitted. First place, "Arches of San Juan Bautista" by Daniel Lewis; second, "Fort Ross" by Kathy Loughran; and third, "Nuestra Señora de la Soledad" by Wyman Carrier. Green ribbons for honorable mention went to Mark Rizor for "Flamboyant San Juan" and to Mary Lynn for "Miracle of the Swallows".

Past President Anna McTarnahan Black presented Past President Lena Adams with her 25-year pin. A skit presented by Past Presidents Lillian Brindero, Marjorie Burden, Ella Fahey and Louise Little reviewed the Parlor's history from 1898 to date.

Past President Rose Rhyner was honored for her faithful service to the Parlor. She has been recording secretary since 1932, an officer almost since her initiation in 1923 and a former officer of the Grand Parlor. The Past Presidents presented her with an armful of red roses and Aleli Parlor gave her a tapestry bag and coin purse.

In keeping with the occasion, roses were used to decorate the lodge hall and banquet room. A huge cake was cut while everyone joined in singing "Happy Birthday, dear Aleli." Visitors were present from Santa Cruz No. 35, Mission Bell No. 316 and Califia No. 22.

HIAWATHA

At dedication ceremonies for the new Shasta College Campus, held early in June, Hiawatha No. 140 presented the college with a bear flag. President Ruth Griffin made the presentation. Members of Hiawatha Parlor attended dedication ceremonies held by Shasta Historical Society at the Reading Adobe Site east of Cottonwood. This it the site of the pioneer Major Pierson B. Reading's home, but nothing remains of the adobe building. Graves of Major Reading and members of his family are at some distance from this site. The graves are in a fenced plot and are cared for by Hiawatha Parlor and Camellia Parlor to whom the area surrounding the plot was deeded by Alice Reading, the last surviving member of the pioneer family.

At the scholarship awards assembly held at Shasta College, the Native Daughter scholarship was presented to a second year student, Denice Grinslade. Parlors in the area: Alturas No. 159, Eltapome No. 55, Lassen View No. 98, Hiawatha No. 140, Camelia No. 41, Berendos No. 23, and Olivia No. 309 all help to maintain this scholarship which is presented each year to a deserving student who intends to continue at Shasta College for a second year. Hilda Haryford, chairman, made the presentation.

A chartered bus left Redding early Sunday morning, June 16 to take delegates to Grand Parlor at Riverside. Leaving from Redding were representatives from Etna, Alturas, Bieber, Weaverville, Shasta and Redding. As they travelled south more delegates boarded the bus from Red Bluff, Corning, Chico, Willows, Marysville, Wheatland, Lincoln, Grass Valley, Nevada City and San Juan. It was a delightful trip and everyone is looking forward to Grand Parlor next year at Los Banos.

cestory, high stepping, had a long black mane, glossy coat and she had trained him to do a variety of steps on command. During the Spanish-American War, in Santiago, she was given an Arabian horse which was born and trained on the island of Jamaica. He visited New York, Massachusettes and Virginia and made friends everywhere. He loved to eat bananas. Clara named him, "Baba" and in the Hall of Fame for Trees in Washington, is a painting of a tree named for him. He died in 1912, just three months before her death and is buried under a huge oak tree in the same cemetery at Oxford and this tree is also named for "Baba". Her canary, "Tibby" sang on dark and gloomy days. "Johnny Walker", her bantam rooster "must have bad tonsils", she always claimed, "as I never heard a worse crow!" She had a pet turtle with a green shell which she could never find a name for. The worst pet she ever owned, was a large green parrot given to her by a friend who came from South America. He knew all the swear words in Spanish. After his death, she remarked, "Well the good Lord is good to us sometimes!"

Clara Barton's home was always open to anyone and she never turned away any persons no matter who or what they were. "Everybody gets something from me, no matter what they asked for." she would say.

CLARA BARTON . . .

Her favorite books included those of Shakespeare. Longfellow, Milton, Keats, Schiller, Bunyan, Tennyson, Scott and Browning and many of them were first editions and autographed by the authors. In them she found running brooks, a sermon and a message.

Her friends came from every clime, religion and all the diplomats and the closest associates were Dr. J. B. Hubbell, Mrs. John A. Logan, Abraham Lincoln, William McKinley and a few heads of Europe who worshiped her.

The only romance in her life was a long-time sweetheart who had sailed around the Horn to California in 1849 with her brother David. While there, he became a victim of a shotgun and lived just long enough to give David $10,000 in gold dust to present to Clara to be used to locate missing persons. Who he was, only David and Clara knew and that secret went with them to their graves!

She had never trained to be a nurse such as Florence Nightingale did, but the skill came naturally to her. When she was 11 years old her brother, David, was helping his father repair the roof of the house in Oxford. He fell and was severly injured. She took over as his nurse, gave him her undivided attention, obeyed the doctor's orders and three months later, David was back on his feet.

Aunt Clara's career in many professions spanned many years. She was 12 years old when she was teaching the sixth grade at an Elementary school in Oxford; at 34, she became a clerk in the patent office in Washington; at 40, she was in the front lines during the Civil War. She was 50 when she organized the relief work in the Franco-Prussian War and was 60 when she created the Red Cross and became its first president.

While taking treatments at the spa in Geneva, Switzerland, she learned about the relief work of the Red Cross from its founders, Henri Dunant and Gustave Moynier, but when she brought back to the United States the picture, President Chester Arthur shelved the idea. It took Dr. Hubbell and Mrs. Logan to help her push her efforts and in 1880, the American Red Cross was prepared for any disaster. All expenses were paid out of the pockets of Aunt Clara and the United States never offered to repay her. At the age of 78, she was still the president of the American Red Cross during the Spanish-American War, but at 83, she decided to retire and have Mrs. Logan take her place. Her "retirement" did not last long and Mrs. Logan always called herself Clara Barton's understudy.

It was during this so-called "retirement" stage that Aunt Clara decided to organize a National First Aid and with it a Humane Society. She was always the first on the scene of a disaster and the last to leave.

For 50 years she kept a diary and each volume contained her philosophy, anecdotes, wisdom and experiences. Some are kept in the Congressional Library in Washington, some in the Smithsonian Institution and some in her Glen Echo home in Maryland. None will be published.

She received 72 citations for her untiring labors. She was presented with 15 diplomas of honor, 30 badges from all nations; 25 jewels, numerous flags, resolutions and testimonials by the thousands, 27 decorations, but not a thing from Uncle Sam!

At the head of her grave in Oxford stands a large monument shaped like that of the Red Cross. The children of Oxford were directly responsible for it and its accompaning feature, the flag of the Red Cross, which incidentally is the Swiss Flag in reverse.

In my possession, I have one of the three Flags of the Red Cross which flew over one of her supply stations in Cuba during the Spanish-American War and a book she wrote and sent to my father, titled "THE RED CROSS". It was published in 1898. Her picture illustrating this brief biography came from that Book!

Clara Barton had a head to think, a heart to feel and hands to work. What more can be said about a frail little woman?

The 43rd annual Evelyn I. Carlson luncheon was held in the Galeria Room. It was given by Dolores No. 169 with PGP Fern Adams giving the invocation. When Mrs. Carlson was Grand President, two local Parlors were instituted — Utopia No. 252 and Ontario No. 251. Seated at the head table were Helen Scannel of Utopia and Dorothy Dodge of Ontario. Chaiman of the event was Leora Wilson, with Betty Marlin, co-chairman.

At the afternoon session, it was voted to start a fund to assist the Parlors in the placement of El Camino Real bells and plaques during the Bi-Centennial year, 1969-70. This fund is known as the Junipero Serra Bi-Centennial Fund. It is hoped that contributions will be given to supplement the amount now budgeted for this fund, by any interested persons and Parlors.

May W. Perry, of Placer County, was selected to have her name placed on the "Roll of Honor of the Native Daughters of the Golden West." This honor is given only to women who have performed some signal service for the Order or for the State of California. Her name was submitted by Auburn Parlor No. 233.

The hall was decorated with orange trees, palms and junipers. The Grand Officers carried bouquets of orange and olive green feathers. GP Hazel wore a pale orange lace gown with white gloves. The orange trees were from Oroville and Riverside, and the feathers represented the Feather River. A vocalist sang "Climb Every Mountain" and "I Love You California." The precision drill team performed to the enjoyment of all. Several presentations were made to Grand President Hazel and Junior PGP June. In attendance for the installation were GP Andrew Stodel and Jr. PGP Joseph B. Perez of the Native Sons. Harriett Stoddard Lee

The president of Woodland No. 90, Isabel Plank, recently received a framed copy of the State Assembly resolution memorializing Miss Harriett Lee as the founder of Mother's Day in California. The late Miss Lee was a charter member of Woodland Parlor and a former Grand Trustee.

Mrs. Don Plank, Sr., President of Woodland Parlor No. 90, and Mrs. E. J. Elston, Secretary of the Yolo County Historical Society, and also a member of Woodland Parlor, receive copies of the State Assembly Resolution memorializing the late Miss Harriett Lee as the founder of Mother's Day in California.

The resolution was presented by Jack Harmonson, chairman of the Historical committee of the Woodland Chamber of Commerce. A copy of the resolution was also presented to the Yolo County Historical Society, and was received by Elizabeth Elston, secretary of the society, and also a member of Woodland Parlor. Mr. Harmonson has been instrumental in obtaining statewide recognition for Woodland and for the late Miss Lee, (who served as county Superintendent of Schools for many years) in connection with the annual Mother's Day Observance. It was Harriett Lee who presented a resolution at Grand Parlor held in Red Bluff in 1903 requiring each Parlor to have some event during the year to honor mothers. No particular date or kind of event was specified, as this was left up to each Parlor to decide. In Woodland, the first event was a dinner for mothers and was held on December 12th of the next year. Later, a Spring date was usually celebrated throughout the state. Largely because of the efforts of Miss Lee, California in 1909 became the first state to have an official observance of Mother's Day. The text of the resolution is as follows:

James D. Driscoll
Chief Clerk of the Assembly

Miss Lee died on July 1, 1951 at the age of 92. A senior elementary school in Woodland is named in her honor and was dedicated by Woodland Parlor in October, 1954.

Woodland Parlor still carries out the tradition of a dinner honoring mothers, particularly the pioneer mothers of the community, and members' mothers and mothers-in-law. The only break in this tradition was during World War II when afternoon teas were held instead of dinners, because of the possibility of black-outs occurring at night. Every year, on the Thursday evening nearest Mother's Day, the dinner is held, with elaborate decorations, and a short program following. This event is eagerly looked forward to annually by the pioneer women, many of whom consider it the highlight of their year.

When Anaheim was 21

by Leo J. Friis

Through good fortune, a copy of Anaheim's first business directory has been found. It was printed in 1878, just twenty-one years after the founding of the town and is believed to be the only on in existence.

This directory has been faithfully reproduced in "When Anaheim was 21", the latest book to be written by Leo J. Friis, well-known California historian.

Using the anecdotal approach with sparkles of humor, the author describes Anaheim as it appeared in 1878 with its Chinese quarter, irrigation ditches and wineries.

Congratulations to new President Judy Enos and her corps of officers who were recently installed into office. The girls are in the process of trying to raise their membership. Each member is working hard on the project. The Unit will be initiating several members at the next meeting.

A "Bake Sale" was held at one of the meetings of the Unit's Mother Parlor. A profit of $13 was realized and there were goodies in many lunches the next day for school and work. On June 24th the annual Rummage Sale was held. The Unit wishes to take this opportunity to thank all the members of Argonaut No. 166 and Advisor, Mrs. C. Evans, for helping make this day such a huge success. Approximately $100 was made.

PALM SPRINGS

by Alzada Eaton

Illustration by Edward J. Pugh

IN 1853, a government survey party, headed by Lt. R. S. William P. Blake, a geologist, made the first modern discovery of Palm Springs and its mineral pool (30 feet in diameter) bubbling out of the hot sand. Traveling on horses and wagons through the desert, these men are credited with establishing the first wagon route through the San Gorgonio Pass. In 1872, Palm Springs had become a stop on the Bradshaw Stage Coach Line between Prescott, Arizona and Los Angeles.

The first permanent white settler was the Honorable Judge John Guthrie McCallum of San Francisco, who arrived in 1884 with his family seeking relief from his tuberculosis. He built the first house in Palm Springs. Two years later he purchased all the surrounding land in the vicinity from the Southern Pacific and set about improving the water supply by constructing a $60,000 aqueduct. Completion of the project made possible the rapid growth of fruit trees and alfalfa fields and led to the subsequent rich agricultural development of the Coachella Valley.

Following closely behind Mr. McCallum was Dr. Welwood Murray, who purchased a site from Mr. McCallum and erected the first Palm Springs Hotel in 1886, a 26 guest establishment. Dr. Murray built a house in 1893 of railroad ties and it still stands in the heart of Palm Springs. Miss Cornelia White lived in the house from 1913 to 1966 when she died. The Palm Springs Historical Society now has charge of the house. It is furnished with Victorian furniture, donated by people in the area.

Mr. McCallum passed away in 1897, but his daughter Pearl, who was married to Mr. McManus, a real estate broker, lived to see her father's dream come true. Mrs. McManus, incidentally, became very wealthy.

DRINK AN ORANGE

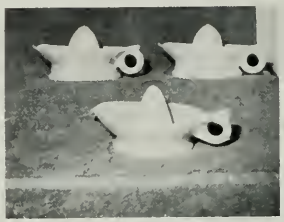

by Margaret Key

Did you "DRINK AN ORANGE" for breakfast this morning? This slogan "DRINK AN ORANGE" was first used in a full page advertisement which appeared in the Saturday Evening Post magazine on February 19th, 1916. With this advertisement the clear glass hand Sunkist Orange Juice Extractor was introduced to the market. For ten cents you could purchase from your grocer or fruit dealer "The Sunkist Juice Extractor especially designed to extract the juice of the largest as well as the smaller sizes of either Sunkist oranges or lemons." It was noted this new pattern was of an unusually large size, manufactured of heavy tough glass exclusively for Sunkist. The advertisement related that if you were unable to secure this extractor from your dealer, it could be obtained by sending 16¢ in stamps to cover the cost and expense of mailing, or 24¢ to points in Canada.

Three SUNKIST opaque extractors' of the 1920s; the glass reamer in front in a rose shade is marked SUNKIST, MADE IN U.S.A. PAT. NO. 6876.

Rapidly expanding crops of oranges in California by 1916 had made it imperative to increase consumption. By 1910 one grower, R. H. Gilman, one of the pioneering citrus growers of the Fullerton area, shipped 9466 field boxes of oranges to market. The annual report of the Santiago Orange Growers' Association of Orange for the season of 1916-17 shows that beginning September 1, 1916 through December 31st, 1917 the Association packed and sold 324,415 boxes of fruit. Until this time most oranges were cut in half, or peeled and eaten out of the hand, and one orange could be fairly filling and satisfying.

Three opaque extractors, the two for reaming orange juice are marked MCK in a circle; the smaller reamer was intended for lemons.

Albert Lasker, a young man from Texas, working with the Chicago advertising firm of Lord and Thomas conceived the slogan to "DRINK AN ORANGE" and the campaign was underway to persuade the nation to squeeze and drink orange juice, something only a few health-faddists had done before. Mr. Lasker certainly succeeded in selling California's oranges, and incidentally establishing a market for juice extractors or reamers.

Seven clear green glass extractors, all different; no marks.

The first extractor marketed by Sunkist in 1916 was of a heavy, clear glass, a practical size for reaming the juice, with a useable handle and an efficient pouring spout. The word SUNKIST appeared in large raised letters on one side. Although there are no records of the number of these extractors sold, it must have been tremendous. People really did start "drinking" oranges, and an amazing variety of extractors were produced by many firms in different sizes, shapes, and colors. Until fairly recently, when plastics began invading the home in many forms, small glass reamers like those illustrated were very handy for squeezing the breakfast juice to be poured into a pitcher, and then into small glasses, commonly referred to as "orange juice size." Reamers were also useful for extracting the one or two ounces of fresh juice to be diluted with water for the baby's glass bottle, or for a recipe for orange waffles, orange rolls, or last few years, no two are quite alike. The clear glass reamer seems to have been the most popular, but a bright spring-like grass green was also evidently a favorite shade, as are the seven examples shown in one photograph, all slightly different. Two extractors are in the handsome opalescent-like type of glass, and both have deeply fluted sides. The one with the flat extension handle is marked in the base FRY HEAT RESISTING GLASS and on the opposite side the number 1967. Ceramics were not frequently used at any period, but two very different late types are illustrated, one has a deep blue-green glaze and is shaped like the majority of the glass examples.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Mrs. Key is a member of the staff of the Charles W. Bowers Memorial Museum at Santa Ana.

She would appreciate letters from anyone who has information to share on the subject of reamers. Write her at Bowers Museum, 2002 No. Main St., Santa Ana, Calif. 92706.

On the left, an example in pale blue glass with a tall cone, intended to fit over a large cup with hole-like slots in the base; marked on grip handle PAT PEND; the clear handled reamer shown on the right fits down into a graduated glass cup, and is marked on the base FOR/HOUSEHOLD USE/ONLY, probably because the measurements aren't very accurate.

The taller 7½" H. pitcher type operates on a spring loaded shaft and is and published in small, colorful, recipe books, and a juice reamer became a real necessity in every kitchen.

In a collection of thirty-two examples of extractors formed over the marked on the base ADE-O-MATIC /PAT. — 6 — 355/JUNE 10, 1930. Don't forget either the small lightweight metal reamers by FOLEY to hold over a cup, nor the small DAZEY / SUPER - JUICER / produced by the DAZEY CHURN & MFG. CO. / ST. LOUIS, MO. that fit into the metal bracket screwed into a door jamb or wall and which was provided with a small wooden handle beneath to turn.

The original clear glass reamer marketed by Sunkist was replaced in the early 1920s with an opaque glass version in white, an especially handsome medium shade of blue, and one in green. These were manufactured by the Thatcher Glass Company of Jeannette, Pennsylvania. One in green was illustrated on the back cover of a recipe booklet, dated 1927, entitled For Vigorous Health — Sunkist Recipes for Every Day. By this time reamers were being sold by the gross to the fruit trade at from 29¢ to 39¢. In 1934 a publication titled Advertising and Merchandising Plans for Sunkist Oranges illustrated the various Sunkist juice extractors available. At that period over 2,600,000 of the opaque reamers had been sold. In the same publication, five of the electrical extractors then available are also illustrated, noting the first electrical extractor of 1928 called the Sunkist Junior.

Today, in most kitchens in many parts of the country these simple glass reamers, and even the electric ones, are being replaced by the cylindrical light-weight aluminum or cardboard container holding quick-frozen concentrated orange juice. The frozen juice can be quickly defrosted and mixed with sufficient water in a tall plastic container with a tight fitting lid . . . absolutely no fuss nor muss. The glass reamers are being discarded and some are sold in small thrift shops, and at rummage sales. With normal breakage they will soon pass from use and with their passing will go another part of our social, citrus, and early advertising history.

PIONEER REMEDIES

Those who are interested in the modern miracles of medical science will be astonished at some of the "wonder drugs" of the early Nineteenth century in California.

Here are some remedies contained in a bok published by General Mariano Vallejo in 1838 at Sonoma:

"The toothache is cured by carrying in the mouth the eye-tooth of a black dog.

"For impaired eyesight, do as the swallow does. Bruise the leaves of swallow-wort and annoint the eyes with the juice.

PLACERITA

A party honoring DGP Marguerite Tann of Toluca No. 279 and SDDGP Juanita Porter of Los Angeles No. 124 was held by members of Placerita No. 277. Following a short business meeting conducted by President Sybil Jones, gift presentations were made to the honored guests.

Placerita is adopting another child from the school for visually handicapped children in Los Angeles. For many years the Parlor has contributed a monthly sum for tuition for a nursery-aged blind child, plus wardrobe necessities twice a year and various gifts for holidays. So much interest and pleasure has been derived from participating in this welfare project that the decision was made to adopt another child, thus providing that two little blind children will get a start in life.

Placerita has also presented a bronze plaque to the Crespi Carelite High School, Encino in recognition of the role the parochial schools have played in the growth of the San Fernando Valley. Presentation was made by Mrs. Wesley Jones, president to the Carmelite Superior, Revcrend John Fogarty. Civic Participation Chairman, Mrs. George Doyle said that the plaque would be placed under the replica of the El Camino Real Bell previously presented by the Native Daughters and now hanging in the arch of the outside chapel which honors Father Crespí.

A resumé of the history of the bells was given by PGP Eileen Dismuke, organizer and member of the committee for the El Camino Real Bell restoration and a present member of the State Historical Society. Members in attendance were Mmes. Atkinson, O. Brandenburg, W. Brandenburg, Gebers, Henry (general chairman of the day), Phillips, Rolando and Wrankle, also PGPs June Goldie and Mary Barden.

Placerita held its Art Show and Contest under a large native oak tree at the Leonis Adobe in Calabasas. Students from all San Fernando Valley High Schools were contacted by Art chairman Ethel Somers for participation. Judges were Mmes. Dan Cook of the Encino Women's Club and Somers and Don Terry of Placerita. First prize was awarded to Sue Ann Cook of Birmingham High School; Lori Markman, U.S. Grant High School was awarded second prize. Honorable mention awards were given to Carol Bogden, Taft High School and to Lynn Tikotsky of Birmingham. Mrs. Jones noted that the Leonis Adobe had been the site for other Parlor Civic Participation activities. Last year Placerita presented the American and the California State Bear flags to the Leonis association and that it was here that the memorial services for Charter member Grace Williamson were held. At this time a replica of the El Camino Real Bell was donated along with a bronze plaque honoring Grace. Various members of Placerita serve as hostesses at this old adobe home believed to have been built in 1844.

SCHOLARSHIP

Tierra de Oro No. 304 is pleased to announce that a "Fifty dollar Book Scholarship" known as the Vesta A. Olmstead Memorial was presented to the Santa Barbara City College to be awarded in the fall to some deserving student, preferably to a native Californian boy or girl.

The Vesta A. Olmstead Memorial was established by Tierra de Oro in 1963. Miss Olmstead, a native Santa Barbaran, died in December, 1961 in her late nineties. She had been a teacher during all of her adult life in the Los Angeles area, and when she retired she returned to her home community of Santa Barbara where she resided until her death. In her last will and testament she named the Native Daughters of the Golden West of Santa Barbara as one of the many devisees under her will, and it is for this reason that Tierra de Oro thought it fitting and proper that her memory be honored with the naming of our book scholarships for her.

EL CAMINO REAL

The spacious adobe home and patio of Dr. and Mrs. Mark R. Harrington rich in early California lore and Indian artifacts was the setting for "Tardeada Mexicana" a Mexican supper party on August 3 at 7:00 p.m. Dr. Harrington for many years Curator of the Southwest Museum headed the restoration work in many rooms of the San Fernando Mission. His knowledge of early California history and especially in the valley provides an interesting background for gracious hospitality.

El Camino Real No. 324 sponsored this first in a series of International dinners planned for the coming year. Special sweets from Sonora, Mexico were flown in for the party.

Mrs. Henry Grossi was chairman, assisted by Mmes. Ben Wilkinson, Harold Haselbusch, Anthony Bongiovanni, Iola Acker and Miss Wilda O'Hanlon. Mrs. Grossi entertained with accordian selections and acompanied group singing. Mrs. William Downs, Parlor president, received the guests. SDDGP Mildred Kubler and DGP Florence Parsons were guests.

BONITA

Approximately seventy members and guests of Bonita Parlor were present to celebrate the eighty-first birthday of the Parlor. Dinner was held at the Carousel de Soliel in San Carlos. were PGP Evelyn I. Carlson, SDDGP Helena Lewerenz, DGP Lillian King and Bonita's own President Loretta Mosley. Also present to celebrate the occasion was Alleen Maguire, daughter of deceased charter member Mamie Glennan. Alleen has been a member for sixty-four years and is our oldest member in years of service. She has been Parlor president twice and has been Parlor chairman to the ND Home for many years. She visits the Home on holidays and special occasions when she personally delivers gifts of food donated by the Parlor.

The Sweet Adelines Inc. presented several songs. Secret Pals were revealed and new pals for the year chosen. At the conclusion of the program, members visited with members who for one reason or another do not get to Parlor meetings regularly and are happy for this opportunity to visit.

PALM SPRINGS . . .

By the turn of the century, Palm Springs was becoming a thriving resort with more than ten buildings, a post office and many seasonal visitors. The world-famous Desert Inn came into existence when Mrs. Nellie Coffman, who visited the village with her son, Earl, in 1908, returned a year later and bought the Eleanor Martin Home and 1¾ acres of land for a down payment of $2000 to start the hotel. Over the years property and buildings were added to the site; and in 1955, son Earl sold the Desert Inn to Marion Davies for close to $2,000,000. In February, 1960, Miss Davies sold the Desert Inn to George Alexander and Samuel Firks for figures in excess of 2,500,000. It was sold again in 1963 to Home Savings and Loan for an undisclosed amount.

A school house was raised in 1915 and by 1927 the community had its first newspaper, The Desert Sun, and Palm Springs appeared on the Southern Pacific schedule.

World War II brought increased activity to the desert with Gen. George S. Patton, Jr. directing swiftly moving tank corps, training for what was to be a rehearsal for the invasion of the North African deserts. El Mirador Hotel and grounds were requisitioned and turned into Torney General Hospital in time to receive the wounded from the battlefields of the world. An air-field was established with two mile-long runways and this later became the Palm Springs Airport.

The newest attraction bringing visitors to the desert is the $8 million Palm Spring Aerial Tramway. This is the world's largest and longest single- span lift. It carries passengers from a spot in Chino Canyon, six miles from the heart of Palm Springs, to the 8516 foot level of Mt. San Jacinto, opening up previously inaccessable state park areas for year-round recreation.

An elderly lady, Mrs. McKinney, was born in Palm Springs and still lives there. She remembers, as a young girl, seeing Ramona. Ramona lived on a reservation on the other side of the San Jacinto Mountains. According to Mrs. McKinney, Ramona's little girl was buried on the reservation and not in San Diego as the book states. Mrs. McKinney and other children used to put flowers on the little girl's grave.

MISSION WELLS DEDICATED

Believed to be the oldest historical structure in the San Fernando Valley, the Mission Wells and settling Basin in Sylmar was dedicated Historic-Cultural Monument No. 50 by the Los Angeles Cultural Heritage Board recently.

By means of handmade clay pipe operating on a gravity system, the original five wells comprising the basin began serving the San Fernando Mission shortly after its construction in 1797. Six acres surrounding the historic site were purchased in 1919 by the Department of Water and Power which currently draws 2.6 million gallons of water per day from five newer wells, serving over 20,000 Valley residents.

Carl Dentzel, Cultural Heritage Board president, was principal speaker at the dedication attended by Councilman Louis R. Nowell, officials of the Department of Water and Power and grand president June T. Goldie of the Native Daughters of the Golden West.

The town of Dixon is celebrating its centennial. In 1868, Dixon was founded by Thomas Dickson who gave 10 acres of land. It is related that the first shipment of freight to arrive was consigned to Dixon instead of Dickson. The spelling was never changed and the town bears the name Dixon. In the very beginning the community was called Silveyville.

This year the community celebrated with a big parade. DGP Janet K. Moore decided on a centennial float and asked the members to serve as a committee. They met at the Moore residence and made California poppies for decoration. The float won second place and an award of $75.

The Weaver

by Sara L. Riley

Part 1

IT IS MY distinct privilege tonight to unfold for you a tapestry which portrays the story of Liberty Parlor. We first met the weaver of our dreams and history as he stood before his loom, shuttles in hand wound with threads bright and strong to begin a pattern that would tell a story 50 years in the making.

There are those in this hall tonight whose pulse still quickens at the stirring strains of "Over There", "Keep the Home Fires Burning", or when they recall the glow of patriotism that surrounded a Liberty Bond rally. Those were serious-minded days back in 1918, and it was then that a balancing interest was welcomed.

It was then, too, that Past Grand President Ema Gett, a member of Califia Parlor No. 22, Sacramento, was casting about for material from which to forge a new strong link in the golden chain of NDGW. She recognized that the Elk Grove area would well qualify for that link.

Interest mounted as the party telephone lines, often wires strung on farmers' fence posts, carried plans for the new organization. By what name should this Parlor be known? Were we not fighting for the cause of Liberty, and buying Liberty bonds to support that cause? Indeed "Liberty", seemed to be the ideal name. It identified us with the time and principle. So, our weaver chose his first threads. They were red, white and blue for loyalty, truth and patriotism. Then he added brown and yellow threads to reflect the strength and warmth of our pioneer heritage.

On the night of May 2, 1918, the Odd Fellows Temple was ablaze with gas lights, and the happy glow of anticipation, as the soon-to-be sisters gathered for the institution.

Since Ema Gett had no child of her own, the 56 charter members became the beloved children of Mother Gett, as she was fondly called. Ema Gett, an idealist, counseled her children well. She inspired them to reach for high goals, such as: to strive for perfection, to revere the necessity of understanding and compassion, and to work hard in the support of Parlor and Grand Parlor projects The torch that she lit from the flames of these principles was handed to the charter members for them to light the way. It has been carried as an inspiration through the years.

After institution by members of Califia Parlor, officers were elected. Many of you will recognize these names of that first slate. As I call the roll will those present, please rise.

Past president, Etta McConnell; president, Belle Bradford; 1st vice president, Elizabeth Foulks; 2nd vice president, Harriet Hogaboom; 3rd vice president, Frances Wackman; recording secretary, May Rhoades; financial secretary, Blanche Hooper; treasurer, Florence Polhemus; marshal Mary Coons; inside sentinel, Annie Ring; outside sentinel, Julia Nesche, (Lucy Sehlmeyer finished out the term); organist, Marie Ajax; trustees, Rilla Lewis, Ethel Hauskins, and Ida May DeRoza.

To these and the other Golden Members who have carried the torch so valiantly, we say: All Hail!

Less then 6 weeks after institution, this new-born Parlor was ready to receive Grand President Grace S. Stoermer on her official visit. It is said by those present at the meeting that the remarks made in regard to the aims and objectives and the roles played by the various projects of our Order were so comprehensive and interestingly given that the speech of the Grand President is well remembered today.

The late PGP
Grace S. Stoermer

On our first full-term installation, Elk Grove Parlor No. 41, Native Sons of the Golden West, presented us with a beautifully-bound, gold-inscribed Bible which is used at all regular meetings. We have had reason to appreciate the close cooperation the Native Sons have given us through the years.

Also, on that occasion, Organizer Ema Gett donated her $20 institution check to the Parlor toward the purchase of a flag. The examining doctors, Beattie and Wildanger, contributed the amount of their fees and the book officers added to the fund what their dues would have been. The beautiful flag you see in this hall tonight was bought in early 1919 through those contributions.

In those days there were no summer - cooled, winter - heated cars to defy the elements, but seldom did rain, freeze or dust storm keep the sisters away. They simply battened down the side curtains — left father to mind the children, and set forth to answer roll-call. The word babysitter had not yet been coined.

Striving for 100% attendance, the membership was divided into three teams — the winning team to be honored at a dinner. As our present dining hall did not come into use until several years later, all refreshments were served on the third floor — a story above our meeting hall. That last flight was indeed an endurance test, especially when carrying pans of goodies and table decorations. The big banquets held jointly with the Native Sons were given in the Masonic Hall.

To support our many projects, balls, card parties and food sales were held. The balls often netted the joint parlor endeavor well over $300, so it was not uncommon to read that a check for $150 was sent to the Homeless children, then a project very near the hearts of every Native Daughter. Our order led the State in creating an adoption agency and we gloried in the great number of little ones who were placed in homes where love and security prevailed.

Here our weaver's shuttles fly back and forth as a dainty pattern in pink and blue is woven into the tapestry. It speaks of love and compassion for those little ones in our care.

When Anaheim was 21

by Leo J. Friis

Through good fortune, a copy of Anaheim's first business directory has been found. It was printed in 1878, just twenty-one years after the founding of the town and is believed to be the only on in existence.

This directory has been faithfully reproduced in "When Anaheim was 21", the latest book to be written by Leo J. Friis, well-known California historian.

Using the anecdotal approach with sparkles of humor, the author describes Anaheim as it appeared in 1878 with its Chinese quarter, irrigation ditches and wineries.
